Commissioner Chalmers Charged with Serious Wrongdoing.

ALD. McDIARMID CREATED A SENSATION AT MONDAY NIGHT'S MEETING OF COUNCIL.

An Investigation Will be Held Before the County Judge in the Course of the Next Ten Days.

Our city fathers met Monday evening in regular monthly session, and sat for nearly four hours. In addition to the regular order of business the aldermen were called upon to receive a deputation of south ward property owners who appeared to oppose the closing of Sioux, Duke and Wolfe-sts., and the giving of a strip off Durham-st., from Lindsay-st. east, for railway siding purposes, and the discussion in connection with the matter occupied much time. Then Ald. McDiarmid's presentation of charges against Commissioner Chalmers was a procedure that could not be hurried nor postponed, and it was almost 11.30 when the members donned their overcoats for the homeward journey, somewhat dazed by the events of the evening.

After the reading of the minutes Ald. Burrows moved that the contract for 45,000 feet of granolithic walk be not let, and that the action taken at last meeting be rescinded, his reason being that he considered it unfair to interfere with the duties of next year's Council. The Dr. failed to secure a seconder, and his motion was consigned to the waste basket.

Communications.

From Mrs. E. Bolger, south ward, asking that her taxes be remitted.—Referred to Finance committee.

From Albert Wells, submitting a claim for $4 for shade trees planted at corner of Glenelg-st. and Victoria-ave.—Town Property committee.

From H. Sewry & Co., Barrie, quoting prices of snow plows.—Board of Works.

From P. G. Pilkie, asking that P. J. Hurley be accepted as one of his bondsmen for sewer work, in place of Dougald Sinclair.—Finance committee.

From A. D. Kitchener, Clerk of the Baptist church, stating that the church officers were dissatisfied with the thin boarding put up by Mr. Webster to replace the clock dials in the tower......Ald. Hore—"I asked Mr. Webster if he had satisfied the church trustees, and he said yes." ......Ald. Burrows took advantage of the chance to urge that the clock in the fire hall tower be properly lighted up at night......The grievance of the trustees will be remedied.

From Mrs. P. Berry, east ward, asking for return of $1 dog tax.—Finance committee.

From R. J. McLaughlin, accepting Council's offer of $25 in settlement of a long-standing claim of the late W. A. White for fire hall plans. Mr. McLaughlin added that the impression of some aldermen that a payment made for another service had included the plans was erroneous, and had been so acknowledged by Town Solicitor Hopkins, who had seen the entries in deceased's book. That being the case, parties who had charged that Mr. White had not a just claim should no longer make that statement.—The communication was fyled the offer having been ratified at last meeting.

From W. E. Reesor, tendering his resignation as Chief of the Fire Brigade owing to inability to devote sufficient time to the duties.—Town Property committee.

From Jas. Bogue, asking that he be granted an extension of time on his granolithic walks contract owing to the approach of cold weather. His tender was for 25,000 feet, but he had built 35,000 feet. — Board of Works, with power to act.

From Clerk of Penetanguishene, with regard to shortage of cars on the G.T.R. System.—Finance committee.

From W. F. O'Boyle, Clerk of Ops, enclosing a resolution passed by that Council in response to the complaints of certain farmers living south of the town, who claimed that the almost constant blocking of Lindsay-st crossing by trains, coupled with the electric gong, rendered driving into town from the south very unsafe, and that as a result they would be compelled to purchase their supplies elsewhere unless there was an improvement.—Laid on table.

From Town Solicitor Hopkins, disapproving of the improvement of York-st. south on the plan proposed by the property owners thereon, and recommending that Council adhere to the statutory procedure.—Board of Works.

From W. H. Giles, relative to his taxes.—Finance committee.

From Thos. Beall, asking that an error in his assessment be rectified.—Finance committee.

From the Meagher-Clark Shoe Mfg. Co., Chicago, offering to establish a factory in Lindsay to employ from 25 to 40 hands if Council would advance a sum of $10,000, to be repaid in ten annual instalments.—Finance committee.

From C. Oryell and Mrs. Anne McDonald, relative to tax remissions.—Finance committee.

From R. A. Douglas, sanitary inspector, asking that his salary be raised to $275 owing to the increased cost of living.—Finance committee.

From J. Marshall, with respect to a ditch on Albert and Sussex-sts.—Board of Works.

From Market Clerk Callaghan, reporting the collection in November of $82.92 for weighing fees and tolls.—Fyled.

From Mrs. Bolger, charity dispenser, enclosing account.—Finance committee.

They Are Up in Arms.

Clerk Knowlson read a petition signed by H. A. Rider and 60 others owners of property contiguous to the railway tracks in the east part of the south ward, protesting against the G.T.R. Co. being allowed to close up certain streets and place another track on Durham-st. Property in that vicinity had deteriorated in value year by year as a result of the blockade of the streets, and the owners were determined to resist any further encroachment upon their rights, especially in view of the fact that all the land required for sidings can be secured by the company in the vicinity of the roundhouse.—Laid on table.

York-st. Work Held Over.

Ald O'Rielly read an amended petition from York-st. property owners, asking for the improvement of the roadway on the frontage plan without limiting the cost.

Ald. McDiarmid said he had no desire to block the scheme, but in view of the submission of a by-law to borrow $40,000 he would move that no action be taken on the petition at present. Ald. O'Rielly offered as seconder, and the motion was adopted.

A Batch of Granolithic Walks.

Clerk Knowlson reported relative to the long list of granolithic walks advertised by Council some weeks ago on the initiative plan. The list comprised 31 walks, and in the case of 21 of these the necessary legal formalities had been complied with.—Adopted.

The Collector's Bond.

Clerk Knowlson announced that the Collector's roll for 1901 had been returned and a proper settlement made. In reply to a question he said that a Guarantee Co. bond had not been secured for the Collector for 1902, as ordered by Council.

Ald. Jackson, chairman of Finance committee, explained that he had endeavored to secure a bond, but after due consideration and enquiry the companies had refused the risk on account of Mr. Nicolle's age and for other reasons.

Moved by Ald. Robson, seconded by Ald. Burrows, that the Collector's private bondsmen be accepted, as in the past.

Ald. McDiarmid—"They are not acceptable to me. A Guarantee Co. bond represents sound security, while private bondsmen about whom we know nothing constitute very flimsy protection. Personally I haven't a word to say against Mr. Nicolle, but regard for the best interests of the town, and not sentiment, should govern us in this matter. For that reason I hold that if we cannot secure a bond for Mr. Nicolle then we ought to appoint some person acceptable to the company. I fail to understand how Mr. Nicolle secured possession of the roll for 1902 when his bonds were not satisfactory."

Clerk Knowlson—"He was given the roll in order that he might issue the necessary notices, and has not collected a dollar; all the taxes are being paid to me, and I have taken in over $20,000 to date."

Ald. O'Rielly—"I say now what I said some weeks ago when the matter was first mentioned—I'm not willing to take the bond of outsiders about whom we know nothing, and who by the stroke of a pen can secure themselves against loss should circumstances require it; they may be all right, yet they may be all wrong. I see that Victoria Co. Council have bonded their treasurer with the Guarantee Co., yet some members of this Council are willing to vouch for a Collector whom the Guarantee Co. will not accept."

Ald. Hore—"No one wants to protect the town from loss more earnestly than I do. It is well known that some members of Council want Mr. Nicolle dismissed. Last year Town Solicitor Hopkins investigated the standing of Mr. Nicolle's bondsmen, and reported that the town was amply protected; let him enquire again this year, and if they are satisfactory then I move that the bonds be accepted. No one has ever lost a dollar by Mr. Nicolle—indeed, he lost all his property by going security for others."

Reports of Committees.

Chairman McDiarmid presented a short report from the Police and Lighting committee. In connection with the lighting of the town clock dials he explained that the 16 c.p. light in position on the south dial for a time would cost on metre rate $26 per year. He had asked for a flat rate for the four lamps required, but the Electric Light Co. would not grant the request. He had then made a trial of an 8 c.p. lamp, which answered admirably. Four of these would cost on metre $13 each, or $52, an amount which the town would be justified in paying for the service.

Ald. Burrows—"I don't like this coquetting between the two companies; the town lighting is costing us altogether too much."

Ald. McDiarmid—"I don't understand the Doctor—he wants ground glass dials, which in addition to being costly would call for an arc light inside at a cost of $55 or $60 per year, yet he claims to be seeking economy."

The report was adopted.

Ald. O'Rielly, chairman, read Reports Nos. 30 and 31 of the Board of Works, which were passed without a challenge, as was also Report No. 29 of the Town Property committee, read by Chairman Hore.

When Ald. Jackson read Report No. 17 of the Finance committee, Ald. O'Rielly moved, seconded by Ald. Jackson, that the exemption granted at last meeting to the Ladies' Physical Culture Association be struck out of the report. He did not think the Council had power to exempt from school tax. Nobody was benefitted by the class save the members, who joined for their own pleasure, and if they were too poor to pay the cost they should say so. The Council had received dozens of requests for repairs to walks, etc., that could be done for less than $15, the amount of the exemption, yet they had been refused on the ground of lack of money.

Ald. Burrows—"If the ladies were not occupying the building it would be empty and we would have to remit part of the taxes anyway."

Ald. Jackson—"I agree with every word uttered by Ald. O'Rielly—the principle is wrong. The ladies belonging to the class are able to pay all proper charges. If the class were open to all who wished to join it would be different, but it is not, yet every ratepayer would have to contribute to make up the tax exemption. There should be no question of taxes where a building is rented for a short time, and the application looks like a scheme on the part of the owner to evade a just payment."

Ald. O'Rielly—"It is different in the case of the Y.M.C.A. and St. Mary's Parish Hall, which are exempted in part, because the two classes of the community may join."

Ald. McDiarmid—"I moved at the Finance committee meeting that the exemption be granted and Ald. Robson seconded the motion, while Ald. Burrows attacked the proposition viciously and then voted for it. Since then I have changed my view somewhat—I don't think any property should be exempted from school tax, and I now move that all but the school tax be remitted."

Ald. O'Rielly—"There is also a Local Improvement tax, which we cannot remit."

Ald. McDiarmid—"We only want the general tax remitted."

This was agreed to, and the report was adopted as amended.

The Collectorship Again.

Ald. McDiarmid, seconded by Ald. O'Rielly, moved the first reading of a by-law to repeal By-law No. 980, appointing a tax collector.

Ald. McDiarmid thought the matter matter might as well be discussed on the first reading, instead of in committee of the whole. As he had already stated, he had no fault to find with Mr. Nicolle as a collector, and believed he was scrupulously honest in all his dealings, but Council had to face the responsibility of accepting a collector without bonds or with one, or of calling a bit of waste paper a bond, for that is what it amounts to when we are asked to take the surety of an outsider. Only one member of Council professes to know the collector's bondsmen. Experience shows that if we should have to look to private bondsmen to make good a loss we would have to fight them from court to court, only to find in the end that they had placed themselves beyond reach of the law and that the bonds were worthless. The citizens should be properly protected against possible loss, and with that end in view he was in favor of paying Mr. Nicolle liberally for the work already done by him, and appointing in his stead a man acceptable to the Guarantee Co.

Alderman Burrows said the Town Solicitor last year reported that the bondsmen were responsible parties, and he could be asked to ascertain their present standing. He would not lend himself to a scheme to guillotine an old and faithful servant.

Ald. McDiarmid—"Dr. Burrows' reasoning is as bad as his pronunciation."

Ald. O'Rielly—"There is no one I respect more than Mr. Nicolle, but we should protect the town — we know about the serious mix-up that occurred a few years ago in connection with the roll. Should something of the kind happen again the papers would carry the news to Kingston, and then a lawyer could fix things for the bondsmen in a few minutes. The only safe bond is that of a Guarantee Co., and it's not necessary for a man to possess property—if his age and character are satisfactory the company will accept the risk."

Ald. Jackson—"The present County Treasurer furnished bonds signed by six local men of high standing, and the other day, when one of them wished to withdraw for a private reason, the County Council decided to pay for a Guarantee Co. bond for $20,000. It is straight business to protect the municipality. The collector's bondsmen are foreigners; in the County Treasurer's case they are responsible citizens of the town and county yet a Guarantee Co. bond has been added."

In reply to a question by Ald. Robson, Clerk Knowlson said the Collector usually turned in his money in sums of $200 or $300, but he could retain a large sum if he wished.

A vote was then taken and the proposed by-law was defeated on its first reading.

The Railway Siding Problem.

Ald. McDiarmid in moving the first reading of a by-law to close Wolfe, Sioux and Duke-sts., south of Lindsay-st., for railway purposes, said the Council merely wanted to expedite matters in case it was found to be desirable to take the action proposed. It was important that the G.T.R. Co. should be extended the most generous treatment, as certain plans under consideration would, if carried out, tend greatly to the town's advantage. It would be well to bear in mind also that Lindsay would be on the main line of the proposed Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. The congestion of freight at this point for months past had been so great that the siding accommodation was woefully insufficient, and at times from 150 to 200 cars had been blocking the private sidings of our manufacturers, with the result that shipments had been held back and loss caused on many occasions. The accommodation that would be gained by closing the streets asked for would be trifling, and would afford room for only 47 cars, while track room for ten times that number was necessary to provide for present needs and reasonable future growth. It was held that the true solution of the difficulty lay in the company building new sidings in the vicinity of the roundhouse, where acres of very level land were available. In connection with this he understood that the company's engineers had surveyed a line to run west of the town to the roundhouse. It was just possible that this plan might involve the removal of the station further west, and this should be prevented if possible. The Township of Ops was interested in the solution of the difficulty, because Lindsay-st. is the leading road to and from South Ops and bordering townships, and the

MR. HAYS' STATEMENT

General Manager Speaks Regarding Grand Trunk Policy

G. T. R. WILL ASK FOR A SUBSIDY

Wherein Some of the Public May Have Been Mistaken—Mr. Hays Discusses Their Minds—Canadian Northern Not Essential to the Success of the Project—A Canadian Port.

Montreal, Dec. 1.—"If anyone thinks we are not going to ask Government assistance for our Pacific Railway project, the sooner his mind is disabused of that idea, the better," was the emphatic statement made yesterday by Charles M. Hays, general manager of the Grand Trunk, who also expressed great satisfaction at the very favorable manner in which his vast project, as outlined just a week ago, had been received by the press and people of Canada.

It was obvious that to the general manager that public opinion was considerably exercised over the probable relations of the new enterprise with the Canadian Northern system. In reply, he said that the business public would understand that in all projects of this kind there were certain matters that could not be worked out in a day, and he added, "the security of the Canadian Northern is by no means essential to the success of the project while we now have in hand."

It was then suggested that the question of Canadian and American ports would provide a vital one as soon as the matter reached the House of Commons, and Mr. Hays made the highly important announcement that they had this transcontinental project in view when they made their recent terminal arrangements with the Government and harbor commissioners, and he expressed confidence in their facilities at this port.

DALEY BACK IN JAIL

His Father Persuaded Him to Return and Serve Out Sentence.

Lockport, Dec. 1.—John Daley, son of a Toronto contractor, who broke jail here Thursday night by sawing a steel bar and climbing down a rope, improvised out of a cell blanket, returned to prison Saturday night accompanied by his father.

Daley said he was seized by a force longing to be home with his family as Thanksgiving drew nigh, and planned an escape, which was successful. His father persuaded him to return and serve out his sentence, as he would always have the punishment for breaking jail, as well as for forging over him otherwise.

The father and son bade each other an affectionate and touching farewell at the jail portals.

MR. WILLISON'S RESIGNATION.

The Evening Globe and Mr. Willison Makes Statements About It.

Toronto, Nov. 29.—Evening Globe, Nov. 29.—Mr. Willison's letter of resignation was brought before The Globe Board of Directors this morning. Owing to misapprehension caused by outside news reports, it may be definitely stated that the relations between the board and their editor-in-chief are by always been, and still are, of the most cordial nature, and no cause of authority has ever taken place, as erroneously stated.

Mr. Willison has issued the following statement: "My resignation leave The Globe is due to a determination to enter independent journalism. My relations with The Globe during the term of my editorship have been agreeable and harmonious, and, so far as I know, I leave the paper on the best of terms with the board and the staff. In entering the field of independent journalism, I will be associated with Mr. J. W. Flavelle. He will supply the capital, and all the capital, for the new venture. No money will come from any other source. It is the distinct and clearly expressed understanding that the paper to be acquired or established shall not be the organ of any political party, or of any organized interest, and shall be absolutely independent of all business and corporate enterprises. The only objects in view are free and frank discussion of public questions, in no spirit of hostility to any party, and without regard to the effects upon any party to debate public questions only upon public grounds, to further in a sane, rational and practical way all movements which tend to make for the public betterment, and, above all things, not to yield the paper for the promotion of the private interests of any individual or group of individuals."

ALLEGED BY A STRIKER.

Kingston, Nov. 29. — Yesterday morning Frederick Days, a linesman on the Kingston and Pembroke Railway, was struck by an overhead bridge at Colton Mill and instantly killed. Missing him and starting a search the train hands found his extended lifeless on the top of a car.

BIG FIRE AT NORMAN.

Rat Portage Lumber Company's Mill Wiped Out.

LUMBER AND VESSELS BURNED.

Twenty-Five Million Feet of Lumber Go Up in Smoke—Six Steamers, Including the Presbyterian Daystar Indian Mission Boat, Burned—Eleven Dwellings and a Stable Also a Total Loss.

Rat Portage, Nov. 29.—The most disastrous conflagration that ever visited this district for years started about 3.30 yesterday morning in the Rat Portage Lumber Co.'s lumber yard, No. 4, Norman, and it was added by a stiff breeze from the southeast.

The fire started from a spark being blown into a pile of cedar behind the planing mill, and, fanned by the wind, soon got into the lumber piles, and beyond the control of the fire appliances.

There have been burnt 25 million feet of lumber, Lemay's shipyard, six steam boats, two barges, eleven dwellings, one stable.

Steamer Rambler was hauled up on the slip for the winter, and would have been burned had not Capt. Kelbert hitched a line to her propeller and with her sister boat, the Clipper, pulled her back into the water with her cabin burning, which was soon extinguished with the Clipper's hose.

The boats burned were: Daystar, belonging to Presbyterian Indian Mission, valued at $600; Phantom, loss, $1,000; E. L. Terrace, $2,000; Kenina, owned by L. H. MacKay, valued at $2,000; Spray, owned by R. Knight, valued at $1,000; Pearl, owned by Gardiner & Co., valued at $700; Midge, owned by Dominion Fish Co., valued at $800. The insurance on these boats, Lemay's house and shipyard are a total loss. Insured in the Hartford Insurance Co.

The other buildings consumed were: L. Demarais, loss $2,000; J. H. Snifler, occupied by J. E. Astier, loss $1,000; E. L. Terrace, $700; S. Lavarr's, $200. Balance were vacant houses. Insurance small.

The Lumber Company's insurance is said to be from eight to ten dollars per thousand.

Insurance of $110,000.

Winnipeg, Nov. 29.—At the local offices of the Rat Portage Co. notice has been received of the conflagration as the manager here could not get into communication with Rat Portage. No. 4 yard, which was destroyed, is one of the largest belonging to the Rat Portage Lumber Co. (National Union Insurance Company placed all the insurance, which amounts to $210,000. Norman is a town of about 800 souls, situated between Keewatin and Rat Portage, about two miles from the latter town. Its chief industry is lumbering, the Rat Portage Lumber Co. carrying on an extensive business.

Big Fire at Halifax.

Halifax, Nov. 29.—The J. S. Henderson Lantzen factory at Robert's Cove, N.S., was destroyed by fire last night, together with 20,000 pairs of lariggs, and throwing 100 men out of employment. The loss is $40,000, partially covered by insurance. The factory was one of the largest of the kind in the provinces, and supplied much of the product to Western Canada.

DENY THAT HAZING KILLED HIM.

Diabetes Caused Death of a Young Student From Lakefield.

Woodstock, Nov. 29.—Denial is given to a statement in the Toronto Presbyterian that severe hazing at Lakefield College caused the death of a youth in Lakefield. The lad referred to is Harry Mahlbion, and he entered the college last September. Principal McCrimmon says the student's suffering from diabetes, which troubled him shortly after he came to the school. Dr. Sinclair treated him for the disease, and the boy was confined for some time in the college hospital. He went to his home in Lakefield and died there Nov. 1. Principal McCrimmon says there is no foundation for the rumor that McMahlbion died from the effects of hazing. Dr. Sinclair's statements regard to the case coincide with those of the principal. The boy never told him that he had been hazed, but it appears that his grandfather, with whom he lived, suspected that the illness was brought on by hazing. The doctor says the disease was coming on, and the unfortunate student entered the college.

NEW EAST AFRICAN RAILWAY.

Lisbon, Dec. 1.—The Government has granted a concession to Robert Williams, a financier, to construct a railroad 1,400 kilometres inland from the coast of Portuguese East Africa. The concession carries mining rights for 120 kilometres on each side of the line. The terms include the deposit of an immediate guarantee of £20,000 for the formation within 10 years, of a company capitalized at £2,000,000.

THE CATTLE DISEASE.

Imports from Infected States to Canada Prohibited.

FIGHTING HOOF AND MOUTH EVIL

Canadian Minister of Agriculture Gives the Reasons Which Led Up to the Order Being Issued—Halifax Ready to Profit by Probable Increased Canadian Trade—Prices to Go Up in England.

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—The Minister of Agriculture has taken prompt action to prevent Canada's cattle trade with Great Britain, which represents amounts to about ten million dollars annually, being jeopardized by the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease and herds of the New England States.

Hon. Mr. Fisher, when asked about the matter yesterday, said that in the first place it had been ordered that all empty cattle cars returning to Canada from New England ports, shall be stopped and thoroughly disinfected before being allowed to cross into the Dominion.

"In the second place," continued Mr. Fisher, "we have forbidden absolutely any entry of cattle from the six infected New England States into this country. We have also communicated with the High Commissioner in London, with the Imperial authorities, informing them of what steps we are taking. We have, further, notified to the Department of Agriculture at Washington, to ascertain what they are doing to prevent the spread of the trouble in the United States."

Hon. Mr. Fisher was asked if, confidently, many cattle from the Eastern Ports would come to Canada, either for consumption or in transit. His reply was "No, very from that. If exportation be forbidden by way of Portland and Boston an attempt might be made to run cattle from the infected districts into St. John for shipment, we must guard against bringing the disease into Canada or having ships sailing from Canadian ports infected, which would ruin our cattle trade with Great Britain very quickly, as the outbreak is ruining the cattle trade from the United States."

Halifax is Ready.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 1.—The Halifax Board of Trade, on receiving inquiry on Saturday from the agents of the Grand Line Steamship Company of Boston as to the facilities at this port for the shipment of cattle took prompt action. The agents wanted to know what kind of accommodation at Halifax and how difficulty will be experienced at Halifax ports in handling all the cattle sent along. The Exhibition grounds have been secured and between 2,500 and 3,000, head of cattle can be housed there.

The I.C.R. will provide increased accommodation, and the trains will run right into the grounds.

Temporary sheds will also be erected at Richmond. Canadian shippers of cattle need have no fear about the facilities of this port, as the business can be handled without great difficulty.

Prices to Go Up.

London, Dec. 1.—The closing of British ports to cattle exported from the New England States, on account of the prevalence there of the foot and mouth disease, takes in connection with the already high price of beef, that seemed inevitable when who look forward to a dear Christmas market.

There is some mention of stock being available in Holland and Denmark, and that Holland will do some benefit accruing to the English ration.

It is estimated that the price of good Christmas joint will now probably be about a shilling a pound Several cattle ships which are now on the Pacific are ordered to the New England ports with consignments for the Deptford market will be watched closely on their arrival. The men and cattle will be carefully quarantined before the men who have been working among infected herds are allowed to enter any other part of the country, and their clothes will be fumigated, and they thoroughly will have to stay in a disinfecting vapor bath.

Cattle Shipments.

Montreal, Dec. 1.—According to the best authority there does not appear to be much fear of the cattle disease of New England being contagious. Dr. Rutherford, Professor of Medicine McEachron, honorary veterinary adviser to the Government, stated yesterday that the embargo placed on American shipments would probably give Canada a temporary advantage. This, he added, is not the first time the foot and mouth disease has been introduced to the States without its being thence imported into Canada.

Last For Some Time.

Boston, Dec. 1.—With the departure of a drove of cattle on the steamer Sylvania for Liverpool yesterday the Boston export market for cattle on the hoof officially closed for an indefinite period. Permission to ship these cattle had been given by the Bureau of Agriculture at Washington, as they had been pronounced physically sound and free of any infection from the foot and mouth disease. The vessels in this port at present that were to have carried cattle freights to Europe will have to seek some other area or region. Dr. Bennett, the representative of the Bureau of Agriculture here, says that not another live animal will leave this port until the disease is satisfactorily that the foot and mouth disease has been stamped out.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Six Charges Not Yet Decided in the Lennox Election Trial.

TAMPERING WITH WITNESSES.

Indignant Charge by the Counsel of the Petitioners—Some Evidence Tendered—Mr. Herrington's Statement—A Tiff Between Lawyers Agree-ment Reached—Evidence Stands Without Date.

Napanee, Nov. 29. — The trial of the protest against the election of Mr. Cascallen, Conservative, to the Legislature concluded yesterday morning, judgment being reserved on six charges. Mr. Justice Britton presided, Mr. Martin for the petitioner, Mr. Lennox and Mr. Justice Osler. Yesterday's evidence was not of special interest.

The charge that J. W. Ball, a scrutineer for Cascallen, had offered to pay Lionel Rix for going to bring a voter by boat was dismissed. A personal charge that Mr. Caracallen offered to forgi a Charles Wagar an account of $13, funeral expenses for the burial of Wagar's grandchild, on condition that Wagar would vote for Cascallen was also dismissed.

During Mr. Osler's examination of a witness Jud Osler requested him to "cut you," all unnecessary questions.

A charge that a man was bribed by R. H. Baker was dismissed. The witness Kelly, who was examined the other day, was put in the box in connection with the case. Mr. Watson's counsel objected to Mr. Baker and a man named George Greer, who were just entering the court, asked if they had spoken to him in the corridor a moment before. Kelly denied this, and the case was dismissed.

Mr. Herrington, Mr. Watson's assistant counsel then entered the box, and swore that he had spoken to Baker and Greer taking Kelly into the corridor to prevent tampering. Mr. Herrington continued: "as I had warned Greer I would report him if he tampered with my witnesses any longer, and I have observed it this morning for the first time."

Judge Osler directed Mr. Watson to adhere to the case.

Charles Herrington then called in connection with charge 35, but the constables returned word that he had gone down town. Mr. Watson arose and said: "I am instructed and I defined to state that my instructions were that Mr. Herrington was on the ground all the time, and I have taken all reasonable pains to find him. I have sent for him, and I have taken advantage of the time of this trial." Judge Osler directed Mr. Watson to adhere to the case.

I have sent for him, and I have taken advantage of the time of this trial." Judge Osler directed Mr. Watson to adhere to the case.

Mr. Watson—The only excuse for my learned friend making this statement is his ignorance.

Judge—It is a great pity, Mr. Watson, that statement was made. It is unfortunate to be said in court. That is the duty of the petitioners. Such statements are all like what Mr. Herrington has done just now—he is not able to say anything. It is the duty of counsel.

Mr. Watson (to Mr. Cascallen)—Did you mean that I was not doing my duty? I want you to explain that.

Mr. Cascallen—I did not mean so gladly. I did not mean to say that Mr. Watson was telling an untruth, but that Mr. Watson is informing him was telling an untruth.

After hearing another charge Mr. Watson requested that the court rest his case. The Judges said they would not decide upon the six charges which they had not dealt with, saying that one or two cases required further consideration. Judgment on the whole they would postpone until Christmas.

On the cross-petition Mr. Bristol said he had not been in a position to conveniently to go into it, as the counsel was engaged in other matters, and the most important witness for Mr. Caracallen, Mr. George Symington, was not in the city, though they had applied to Mr. Hanna.

Mr. Watson replied that the chief witness for Mr. Caracallen, Mr. Alexander Smith was present in court. He was not prepared to proceed Mr. Smith, who was seated in one of the jury boxes. He left the matter in the hands of the court. The cross-petition or respondent entirely in the hands of the court.

Judge Osler intimated that no adjournment would be granted on the cross-petition, and the hearing of the cross-petition would be fixed for Monday, November 24th, 1902.

To Install Exhibits.

The Minister of Agriculture has arranged to have Mr. Hay, formerly of the Experimental Farm, permanently affiliated with the new exhibition branch of his department, as an expert for installing Canada's exhibits at the Chicago World's Fairs, his whole time to be devoted to such work in future. Mr. Hay was identified with the delicate work of arranging in position of Canada's display at the International Exposition at Chicago, Omaha, Paris, Glasgow, Wolverhampton and Cork, as well as putting in place the exhibits the Experimental Farm has made at numerous small shows in the country. His most recent work of note was in decorating the Canadian office erected in London at the coronation of King Edward. He will be succeeded as accountant at the farm by Mr. W. M. Cramp, assistant accountant, who recently has made a report for Mr. Hay by his colleagues at the farm on his retirement. He was previously of accountant.

Looking For a Canadian.

The Government of the Australian Commonwealth has asked for the recommendation of a Canadian to fill the position of Controller of Government Railways. Mr. Lafleur, President of the Ottawa Board of Trade, who has resided in Australia and is identified with Canadian enterprises there, was requested to make a recommendation, but submitted the name of an official in Montreal. He refused to state who the gentleman was, on the ground that it would not be fair to do so, as the recommendation might not be accepted. It is stated that Sir Sandford Fleming has also been invited to make a recommendation, but the statement could not be verified.

TROOPS TO AVE STOKERS.

Eight Thousand Against Three Thousand, and No Fire Hold Sunday.

Eight thousand strikers are in the port and are strongly patrolled.

Figueiberg, Cape Colony, Dec. 2.—The inquiry into the death of the Rev. Mr. Vlok, a Dutch minister who had been shot for the displeasure of his congregation for his loyalty during the war, was held yesterday by the court martial of minister. The question whether Mr. Vlok could continue to be the minister of the congregation was negatived by the eldership of the church by twenty-six votes to three. Mr. Vlok was shot the office of $21,000 sterling in cash and the balance of $1,000 in bills of exchange. In a parting address Mr. Vlok said he had received good treatment after twenty-one years' service.

Loss of Over a Million.

Detroit, Dec. 2.—There have been 33 vessels lost on the lakes so far this season, and the loss of the underwriters has been over a million dollars. The number of vessels of this has been on hills and one-quarter on tugs. Unless there should be exceptionally bad luck during the next few days of the season, this year will go on record as one of the worst fit to the marine insurance business.

New Apostolic Delegate to Devote Attention to School Question.

Rome, Nov. 29.—The Vatican's instructions to Mgr. Sharrett, Apostolic Delegate to Canada, recommended that he devote great attention to the school question, on the ground that the Pope spoke earnestly on the matter to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, when he received him on Sept. 8. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on that occasion, informed the Pope that he would give the question his greatest personal thought.

The Weekly Post.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 5, 1902.

FOR PROHIBITION.

An Eloquent Address by Rev. Dr. Galbraith, of Belleville.

THE LIQUOR ACT OF 1902 A FAULTLESS INSTRUMENT

Countless Millions Ruined by Strong Drink—The Responsibility of the Voter—The Revenue Bogey.

The Council chamber was comfortably filled on Friday by citizens who were anxious to hear Rev. Dr. Galbraith, of Belleville, discuss the Prohibition question. The chair was taken by Rev. A. J. H. Strike, of Queen-st. church, and on the platform with the speaker of the evening were Rev. Roberts, Mr. Jos. Staples, President of the County Temperance Association, Dr. Herriman, and Mr. H. Rider.

Rev. Mr. Strike, before introducing the speaker, referred to the good work being done for the cause by the local workers, and to the encouraging reports from all parts of the Province. He quoted Lord Rosebery as saying, "The question is not so much what we are going to do with the bar, but—what the bar is going to do with us." Hotels could get along without bars, in fact in many cases the bars drove patrons away. He had been informed that Toronto citizens and business men do not now take their meals at hotels in such numbers as formerly — they go to the departmental stores restaurants, or to some one of the many dining rooms established by Nasmyth, to McConkey's, and others, all of whom are making money. Things would quickly adjust themselves to the new conditions in Lindsay as elsewhere, and he urged all present to mark their ballots on Dec. 4th to abolish the barroom. The absence of other clergymen from the meeting was due to the fact that they were away speaking in other parts of the district.

was received with applause. In opening he remarked that in the few days remaining before polling day the people of Lindsay and of Ontario would be making important history that would prove a blessing or a curse to the Province. It rested with the voters whether it should be evil or the reverse. There are two great evils in the world to-day —idolatry and strong drink. Against the latter God thundered his most solemn warnings and anathemas, as set forth in the scriptures.

In speaking upon the subject of strong drink we need not guard against exaggeration, because the facts were stronger than any words he could utter. About the middle of the last century Thos. Dick, a prominent and God-fearing minister, wrote; "If we were to gather together all the victims of strong drink from the beginning of the world until now they would number 17 billions of human beings, equal to twelve times the population of the world at the present hour." Oh God! Can it be possible that an evil of such awful magnitude, that has swept away countless human beings into drunkards' graves, and their souls to perdition, is tolerated to-day by a christian people! If we were to collect the strong drink consumde in one year by the peoples of the two great continents of Europe and North America it would fill a canal 28 ft. wide, 8 ft. deep and 100 miles in length. They expend in liquor yearly four billions of dollars. Statistics show that there are in these countries about three millions of confirmed drunkards, and that about three hundred thousand of these die annually. Think of it! Every day in the year, excluding the Sabbath, 1000 human beings are swept to death by this awful river of destruction, and one acre of land is filled up every day with the graves of these unfortunate victims. Marshall the drunkards of these two continents and they would form a procession, marching two abreast, that would extend a distance of 500 miles. If we could see the misery and wretchedness of these slaves to drink, and hear the wails of the mothers and fathers, the wives and children of these drunkards, our blood would run cold with horror. Is it any wonder that God pours out upon drunkards and those engaged in the traffic his severest warnings? Out of very pity for the victims and the men engaged in the traffic every earnest christian in the Province should cast his vote on Dec. 4th against the sale of strong drink.

Why does God's curse rest on every man connected in any way with this traffic? Because, as everyone knows, it is a debasing, character-destroying traffic. No doubt some good men engaged in the business, but a very short time sufficed to blunt their finer feelings and deaden their moral sensibilities. God sets a high value on men created in His own image, and throughout the story of the bible he throws a safeguard around human life. He pours His wrath out on the liquor business because of the brutalising and demoralizing nature of the traffic. He (the speaker) had visited lunatic asylums and like institutions, but the most appalling sight he had ever witnessed was on one occasion when he saw 30 or 40 drunken men carousing in a room on a day when liquor was not supposed to be sold. Such a devilish pandemonium! What caused it? Drink! The liquor traffic had debased and demoralized the poor victims.

Another reason why God pours out his woes on the traffic is because liquor is the great home-wrecker. In proof of this the speaker cited a number of examples in his own experience, one being that of a man named Ryan, many years ago a respected citizen of Peterboro, who stabbed his wife to death in a fit of drunken rage. He is serving a life sentence in Kingston Penitentiary, and wears the look of a hopeless man.

The fruit of the traffic is bad. Some say we should trim the tree of its dead branches, but Jesus says the tree that will not bear good fruit shall be torn up by the roots and destroyed utterly. Dr. Herriman could bear him out in saying that the liquor traffic blighted not only the living, but also the unborn —children are ushered into the world bearing the stamp of the curse, which is continued even to the third and fourth generations.

Another reason why the traffic is accursed is that it places a stumbling block in the path of the young. Is it not from the ranks of the young that the ever-full ranks of the drunkards are recruited? An army of drunkards is passing away annually—who fill the vacant ranks? The moderate drinkers, of course. Who fill the ranks of the moderate drinkers? Our schooll boys and girls. Liquor is even now being placed in candies in order that the young may acquire the taste and more easily fall a prey to the liquor habit. What hellish ingenuity! The devil himself could not be guilty of a more diabolical act. God says, "Take up the stumbling block," but the wise men of to-day say, "Let it remain to develop human character." We know the sort of character the liquor traffic builds—it is the kind that lowers and debases, and lead men down to hell. He could speak for hours on the eternal consequences of the dreadful evil.

What is to be done? We must first purge the church of God. When we have men in our churches apologizing for the evils of strong drink, when we have ministers who openly or stealthily tipple, how can we expect to win? Christ purified the temple before he began to preach. No minister ought to be allowed to enter the church pulpits, no man ought to be allowed to become a member of a church, unless he first declares his opposition to the drink evil. (Applause.)

We should thoroughly impress upon the minds of the young—our boys and girls—that drinking strong drink as a beverage is a sin and leads to the making of drunkards. Every week in the year in this Province 200 boys take their first glass of liquor—10,000 every year. One writer says that 20 per cent. of these eventually go down to drunkards' graves, but in all the figures quoted he (the speaker) had been conservative in his estimates, and he would therefore put the number at 10 per cent. Does any young men start out with the intention of becoming a drunkard? No. How, then, does it happen? Because the use of strong drink as a beverage has a two-fold effect on everyone who uses it. The young man of vigorous nervous, high strung temperament is more likely to fall a victim than he of a slow-going, phlegmatic disposition. It is not the worst men who become drunkards—no, it is the clever, bright man as a rule. Used as a beverage, strong drink inflames the appetite and enfeebles the will. "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." Educate and save the boys—teach them the real nature of intoxicating drink from a scientific standpoint. Temperance does not mean moderate drinking. Socrates says, "He who knows what is good and chooses it, and he who knows what is bad, and avoids it, is temperate."

Moderate drinking leaves behind it a trail of death and destruction. Teach the young the true meaning of liberty—false types are being presented. Liberty does not mean license. What is liberty? It means doing what you like so long as it does not interfere with the rights of others. Does liberty mean the right of a drink-maddened man to wreck his home? If a man seeks perfect liberty he must retire to a desert island. There is not a man in the British Empire or the civilized world who can do as he likes in all things. Has a man the right to appropriate the goods of others? The police would soon deprive him of liberty. Is a man allowed to do a thousand other things he might do on a desert island if opportunity offered? Can he commit suicide if he wishes? No, the state assumes that his life belongs to the community. Children should be made familiar with the true meaning of liberty. The text book on temperance should be in every school in the land, as in the United States, and we should have it taught in the Sunday schools, in the home, and in every church society. (Applause.) Do all you can to save the poor drunkard: do all you can to remove the stumbling block.

Let us have prohibition for the state. Blackstone, the great legal authority, says, "Natural law requires that we love honesty, injure no one, and give to everyone his due." Does the manufacturer of liquor, does the seller, does the taker or the giver of strong drink, injure no one? If there is anyone injured, then, according to Blackstone, natural law requires that we remedy the wrong. Common law, says the same authority, requires that no one shall use his property to the injury of another, and the consent of the injured party is no mitigation of the offence. Does this liquor business employ property to the injury of anyone? Does the brewer, the retailer, the seller, use his property to anyone's injury? If he does, he has no right to do so.

The statutory law is placed on the statute book for the time being. It is simply the will of a body of legislators, and is constantly being amended and altered. It ought to harmonize with the natural and common law. The present license act is not in harmony with the two great principles governing human life, and what we are asking in this campaign is that it be made to so conform. In the Liquor Act of 1902 we have the very best law, short of absolute prohibition, that was ever presented to any people—there is not a flaw in it. The speaker then outlined a number of salient clauses, and remarked that the highest court in the realm had declared it within the power of the Province to pass, and hence all the lawyers in the employ of the liquor party could not interfere with it. The question of Prohibition had also been taken out of the sphere of party politics because the law had been framed for a Conservative Government—that of Hugh John Macdonald, in Manitoba, and had been adopted by the Liberal Government in Ontario. It cuts off every bar, closes every saloon and destroys the treating system. The sale of liquor for the arts and medicinal and sacramental purposes is placed in the hands of the druggists —an educated class—who must record every transaction in a poison book (the proper place, by the way), and every druggist must take oath every six months that he has observed the law. In case of any infraction of the law his license is taken away for three years. In every other respect the machinery for enforcing the act is perfect. The work is not left to spies or informers, as opponents aver — the Attorney-General himself is the person held responsible. The license law is not enforced—it is broken in almost every hotel in the country. (Applause.) In his city, Belleville, only two hotelkeepers observed the law—how many in Lindsay? (A voice—"Only one.") Why there is no machinery—many of the inspectors are in open sympathy with the law-breakers, and many magistrates inflict first offence fines on men who have been before them twenty times for a breach of the law. (Applause.) The new law is perfect in that respect—proof of drinking is not even compulsory, if the implements necessary in the sale of liquor are found, and the penalty is severe—minimum fine, $200, maximum, $1000, or six months' imprisonment. The law ought to commend itself to everyone.

The liquor men made a great ado about the loss of revenue. What were the facts? Last year the liquor traffic took from the people of the Province the sum of $19,126,753, and paid back in taxes; to Dominion Government $3,911,745, to Province $364,677, to municipalities $250,482, a total of $4,466,904, leaving a net loss to the people of about $14,659,849. Do away with liquor and the people will be richer by all these millions. Does the revenue come from the pockets of the liquor sellers or from the pockets of the drinking class? Is it honest for a state to compel that class to pay such a tax? No, the principle is dishonest, and if necessary he believed the mass of the people would prefer to pay it out of their own pockets. But the 19 millions referred to is but a trifle of the sum indirectly lost through liquor—the total is estimated at 151 millions annually. The liquor traffic is a huge burden on any state, and is responsible for at least one-half the cost of asylums, gaols, penitentiaries, etc. Permit these 151 millions to flow into channels of industry and there would be a great growth of prosperity in every branch of business life.

A word as to responsibility. The voters of the Province never faced a more solemn issue. The word Referendum is new to us, but familiar to the people of England and Europe. It means that the Government frames a law and leaves the responsibility of its ratification on the people. Every voter who remains at home, or who votes to keep the bars open, will thereby enter into partnership with the liquor interests. Death by strong drink is murder, and all who participated in the sale, and all who helped to perpetuate the system, are responsible for the deed. Who wants to bear that dread responsibility? He loved his country and wished to see this grand land free from the terrible blight and curse of strong drink. That should be the aim of every true patriot. (Applause.)

By request Dr. Galbraith then devoted a few minutes to answering the "Ten Sound Reasons" advanced by the liquor party why the present license law should be maintained. Loud applause greeted the rev. gentleman's caustic and effective arguments in rebuttal.

A cordial vote of thanks to Dr. Galbraith for his excellent address was moved by Mr. Rider and seconded by Dr. Herriman. In reply Dr. Galbraith said he would feel amply repaid for his labor if the good town of Lindsay rolled up a majority for prohibition on Dec. 4.

The meeting was then brought to a close.

THEY TACKLED THE WRONG MAN.

Sad Mistake of Two Muddled "Scrappers" Last Evening.

About 9 o'clock last night a couple of men,—one of them named Albert Dufty of the north ward,—who were under the influence of liquor, assaulted Peter Johnston, Benson house bus driver, in the rear of that hotel. Peter drove into the yard, and while in the act of putting his team in the stable he heard a man remark, "It's Peter Johnston — let's punch him." He then walked over to the spot where the men were standing and thinking they were joking said, "Punch me if you can." At this Dufty struck Peter and the two clinched. Dufty's chum, seeing that Peter was getting the best of the argument said, "Let him up or I'll kick your brains out." By this time a couple of the employees of the hotel had been advised of what was going on outside, but before they could be of any use Dufty and his chum had skipped out to Kent-st. via York. Peter gave chase but was unable to catch them. He then returned to the hotel lavatory to wash his face, and while there he was again attacked by Dufty, who had entered the hotel by the front door. Peter was out of his heavy fur coat this time, and in an instant he had his assailant on the floor and was raining blows on him with the rapidity and force of a pile-driver. He would have put his man out of business if they had not been separated, but as it was Dufty was taken home with a badly bruised face and head. Dufty's friend also received a few of Peter's taps, which he will remember for some time

Cinnamon the Marksman.

Under the above heading the Canadian Woodman for Nov. says: We are pleased to inform our readers that Sov. D. Cinnamon, our Head Adv. Lieutenant, of Lindsay, was again successful in capturing the Silver Cup in the Victoria County annual rifle matches held on the 9th inst. This makes the third year in succession. The first was the Association cup, presented to the association by the Dominion Government; last year the Vrooman Cup, presented by Dr. Vrooman, M.P., and this year the Fox Cup, presented by Sam Fox, M.P.P. The rule for winning the cup is the person making the highest score at 500 yards and 600 yards.

Hockey Notes.

—With Boyce, Cecil Deyman and R. Sandford, former members of the Fenelon Falls team, Collingwood should have a strong and fast aggregation this year.

—We understand Mr. Geo. Taylor, of the Woods Stove Co., is to be the new president of the Lindsay Hockey Club; Dr. Walters, manager; and Mr. Lewis, of the Bank of Montreal, secretary.

—Toronto World: Secretary A. H. Beaton, of the O.H.A., received an application yesterday for admission from the Port Perry Hockey Club, which desires to place a team in the intermediate series. Port Perry won the trophy at the Markham tournament last year.....Port Perry is going to make a hard chase for the O. H. A. intermediate championship this season. That town has secured a couple of Lindsay players and an Orillia man, and have so far got together a very strong team.

—The proposed amendments to come up at the Ontario Hockey Association convention on Dec. 6th are not numerous. Those affecting the game and players are: To allow players in city or local leagues to play also in O.H.A. teams. To play only six men a side on rinks of less ice surface than 60x100 feet. To exclude from the junior series players who have played one senior or more than one intermediate match. Other proposals are: To exclude Past Presidents from the Executive except for the first year after their retirement from office. To deprive the Executive of the power to amend or alter the rules of the cup competition. To reduce the association's share of the gate receipts in final matches from 33 1-3 to 20 per cent. To provide that in semi-finals and finals a third match be played if the score is a tie after an hour's play in each match.

BOARD OF WORKS COMMITTEE

A SPECIAL SESSION HELD LAST WEEC.

Snow-cleaning Contract for West Part of South Ward, and other Matters Dealt with.

A meeting of the Board of Works was held on Nov. 27th in the Clerk's office at 11 o'clock. Those present were Mayor Ingle, Aldermen O'Rielly, Hore, Burrows, Robson and McDiarmid, and Commissioner Chalmers.

Tender for Snow Plowing.

Ald. O'Rielly, chairman, said he had called the meeting to decide on letting the contract for the snow plowing in the west half of the south ward, and to deal with a couple of other matters. Two tenders were read, one from Thos. Connors for $75, and the other from Thos. Armstrong for $65. On motion of Ald. Burrows, Mr. Armstrong was awarded the contract, his offer being the lowest.

Russell and Sussex-st. Sewer.

A petition signed by Mr. Thos. Murdock and other ratepayers asked that the proposed sewer on Russell and Sussex-sts. be not proceeded with until spring on account of the

Ald. McDiarmid—"There will be a caretaker, and why not put in the stove first as last."

Mayor Ingle—"Driver O'Neill must have some such appliance to get hot water."

Ald. Burrows—"Let us go over to the fire hall and see for ourselves what is really required."

This was agreed to, and after the members had visited the hall it was moved by Ald. O'Rielly, seconded by Ald. Burrows, that a new stove be purchased.—Carried.

Cleaning of Kent-st. Walks.

Ald. O'Rielly wanted to know by what time the sidewalks on Kent-st. should be cleaned after a storm —there was a by-law, and Chief Nevison should enforce it.

Ald. McDiarmid—"Certainly, let the Chief look after that. It's his business."

The meeting then adjourned.

blocking up of the above streets which would be sure to happen in the winter.

Ald. Hore—"We promised Major Martin that the work would be proceeded with."

Mayor Ingle—"There is another matter—we do not know how it will affect other parties concerned."

On motion of Ald. Burrows it was decided to accede to the request, provided that the town or other parties concerned are not put to any cost.

A Stove for the Fire Hall.

Ald. Hore—"I understand Driver O'Neill needs a stove, to be put up in the kitchen of the fire hall for heating purposes."

Commissioner Chalmers — "The stove is necessary, as no connection can be made with the water boiler."

Ald. Burrows—"A heating system is to be installed, and why not let that do? It's very easy to suggest ways of spending the public funds."

Ald. O'Rielly—"Driver O'Neill must have hot water for cleaning the wagon and hose."

Newspapers and Magazines

—A bouncing romance is that of H. B. Marriott Watson, in the Christmas Lippincott, entitled "The Attack on the Chaise." The author has had a full career at stirring fiction and holds the reader at the point of the sword.

—Miss Maude Roosevelt offers very valid claims to attention this month. She is, first of all, a cousin of the President, and has won repute as an able actress; secondly, she may sign herself by the sounding German title—Baroness Mumm von Schwarzenstein, and lastly, she has written as talkative a society novel as any of recent years. The novel is called "The Price of Fame," and appears in full in the December —Christmas—number of Lippincott's Magazine.

—The Christmas Number of Scribner's Magazine has been always made notable by the richness and beauty of its pictures, and the fine quality of the sentiment and exquisite workmanship of its stories. The issue of this December Number sustains and adds to that reputation. It contains eight short stories, most of them illustrated, and special articles and poems, among them a beautiful unpublished poem by Robert Louis Stevenson, written in 1872, when he was a young man. The poem shows the charm of Stevenson's style at the very outset of his career.

WEEDS

Consumption is a human weed flourishing best in weak lungs. Like other weeds it's easily destroyed while young; when old, sometimes impossible.

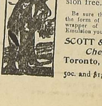
Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it, you won't.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better; you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.



We will send you a little of the Emulsion free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

DR. JACK'S WIFE

By ST. GEORGE RATHBORNE

Author of "Dr. Jack," "Captain Tom," "Miss Caprice," Etc., Etc.

[illegible] with pleasure, [illegible] the other.

Larry glances around him. He does not care to share his bright thoughts with those who may be enemies, and they are known to have a number of this class on board the limited train.

The coast seems clear, yet Larry assumes a voice equal to a dramatic stage whisper in imparting his momentous secret.

"I believe I can dwop the wascals behind and give them a chance to hire a [illegible]," he announces, at which Avis gently claps her hands, and Jack says: "Bravo, dear boy."

Larry tries to swell out with more importance, but it is impossible, since he has already reached the point of danger.

"Now, listen to me, my friends, while I explain my idea. Of course, it must hold until night comes. Jack will get the exact time we stop at some station. Timing himself, he will leave the car. These men can be depended on to follow. Jack must lead them a little chase, give them the slip, and run back to the twain as fast as he can. The second he puts his foot on the step, the conductor will start ahead."

"Ah! how d'ye know he will?"

"Because you must have an arrangement with him beforehand, dear boy. That little part of my plan I have left to your ingenuity."

"I'll wrestle with it, and endeavor to do my duty," says Jack, in mock humility.

"That's one scheme."

"What! you have others, Larry?"

"Jove, dear boy, hosts of them. They bristle like quills on the back of the fretful porcupine. Here's an idea that might come in later. We could arrange for a special to be ready at Denver, where we lost half an hour. It would take us to St. Louis in time to catch a twain in advance of the one regularly made."

Jack opens his eyes at this.

"Bless me, a splendid thought. If it comes to the worst I'll have a talk with the conductor about it. What else, my dear fellow?"

Larry has only started. He begins to describe certain unique plans for accomplishing the desired result, some of them so very original, that Doctor Jack is fairly staggered.

"Hold on, I beg of you! Don't bewilder me. Talk about your Cardinal Richelieu. He couldn't hold a candle to Larry Kennedy," and he really means what he says this time.

"Then you will accept and twy one of these plans?" asks the proud inventor, twisting his diminutive whiskers with the air of a conqueror.

"All of them, Larry, in time, if necessary. But first we will endeavor to leave our friends, the enemy, to-night, with the aid of the conductor. There he comes, now. I'll talk with him a while."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The conductor is, of course, inclined to be non-committal. He has heard much of Doctor Jack's story, and is deeply interested, ready to do all in his power to assist him, and yet at the same time fully aware that his duty will not allow him to swing trains at the whim of a passenger. All Jack desires, at present, is the assurance that there will be no holding the train a minute or two in order to allow belated ones a chance to get aboard.

Here the iron rules of the road, which the conductor could not break for him, work in his favor.

"When the time is up we start, if there are a dozen Englishmen wandering about," he says, firmly, and Jack builds upon this.

He also speaks about the special at Denver, and has the official figure to see whether it would count him anything at St. Louis.

Thus the day passes.

With the coming of night, Doctor Jack prepares to carry out his little plan whereby he will possibly shake off the worst foes for a while.

They draw near the town where a short stop will be made. Jack knows just how long. Even now the engine gives a long signal whistle to warn the people of their coming.

"Be very careful," pleads Avis, looking a little anxious, as her husband shows some eagerness to be off.

"Don't be alarmed, dear. I shall keep just ahead of them, and lead them a wild-goose chase. Even if they should try to overhaul me, they are only two, and I am well armed, you know."

She looks proudly at him. Memory carries her back to many a scene where her Jack proved himself a man in every particular. She has seen him master a black bull in the plaza de los toros, at Madrid, when no matador dared enter the ring—has watched him beat back a mob of rascals who waylaid the train by which they passed over the Pyrenees, and been nearby when he saved her brother from the vengeance of a Turkish pasha, meeting the Russian wolf-hounds in the garden of the palace and wresting victory from what promised to be defeat.

All these and many other similar scenes flash before her mental vision. No wonder she has the utmost confidence in this man who twists difficulties that are seemingly insurmountable to his will.

He waits after the train stops, just two minutes, timing himself so as to hit it just right. Lord Rackett and Garcia have alighted to stretch their legs. Larry reports that they are watching through the window, as though they do not mean to take their eyes off the little party.

Doctor Jack arises. He gravely kisses his wife good-by, shakes hands with his two friends, walks to the end of the car, and steps off.

Lord Rackett and Garcia have apparently already taken the alarm, for they are not in sight. Jack strides away. His manner is that of one who travels no more at present.

"What success?" asks Avis, eagerly, as Larry comes back to her side.

"The best, I believe. At any rate, I saw two dark forms gliding after him."

Doctor Jack's wife cannot help from showing anxiety, no matter what unlimited confidence she puts in him.

"What time is it, Larry?"

He consults his chronometer.

"Seven and a half after nine."

"And we leave here?"

"At exactly nine-ten."

There remains two and a half minutes [illegible] to this devoted wife. There are times when we measure the passage of seconds by heart beats—when even a minute may seem an eternity.

Larry walks up and down, trying to smother his own impatience, while Kirke Smith is on the platform keeping an eye about.

At length Larry walks to the end of the car. The time is about up. A few more seconds and the train must start if the conductor is as prompt as he has promised to be.

A hand touches Larry's shoulder, and, turning, he sees Avis, who has been unable to remain in the car, when so much is at stake.

"Surely the time must be up," she says.

"Just."

Even as Larry utters the word, there is a whistle from the engine, a jerk of the cars—they move.

Doctor Jack's wife holds her breath.

If he has made a mistake of three seconds, Jack will not only leave his enemies behind, but be caught in the same trap.

The train moves slowly at first, being a long one, but the momentum increases.

"There he comes!" exclaims Larry.

A figure appears in view at the farther end of the station platform; a figure that delays not a second, but rushes across the lighted space after the train with a speed equal to a young cyclone; a figure that the eyes of the loving wife instantly recognize as Jack.

Will he reach the last car? The train moves faster each second, but Doctor Jack has not yet put forth his best efforts, though rapidly annihilating the space that separates them.

Now he makes a spurt—encouraged by the presence of Avis, whom he sees. Five feet only separate him from the platform, but the train is going at a lively rate.

Another burst of speed; two feet remain. He puts out his hand; a fall now must mean ruin to his hopes; but Jack is light on his feet.

Kirke Smith stands on the steps. He holds on to the rail, bends forward and reaches out his horny hand, which Doctor Jack instantly seizes upon.

Another second and the daring runner has swung himself upon the back platform of the last car. He has won.

Avis throws her arms about her husband.

"Oh, Jack!" she says, with a long breath. "I began to fear you would lose the race. It was a terrible moment of suspense," at which the doctor, though exceedingly short of breath just at the time, is compelled to laugh, as the ludicrous side of the matter appears before him.

"How did you succeed? Were you followed?" asks the Texan, eagerly.

"Two shadowy figures kept after me up to the time when I gave them the slip, and made a bolt for the train. They could not have gotten aboard—simply impossible—I ran as fast as I could, and had a narrow escape, as you have all seen."

"By Jove! look yondah!" exclaims Larry, at this juncture, and all turn their eyes backward over the road bed.

They are now quite a distance from the station. Nearly an eighth of a mile, and making good time that momentarily grows faster.

The track chances to be straight, so that they can readily see the well-lighted platform and all its immediate surroundings.

Even as they look in response to Larry's call, two figures come dashing upon the boards. They are men who thus run, men who have beyond a doubt been left by the train; men who even run up the track some distance, as rattled travelers left behind are apt to do, in the vain hope of overhauling the train that has given them the slip.

Of course, the distance is too great for our friends to make them out, but they are almost positive as to the identity of the men who have been dropped so neatly.

Larry in particular is greatly tickled over the discomfiture of the enemy. He takes off his hat and makes a bow in the direction of the stragglers.

"Farewell — farewell — the best of friends must part!" he says, dramatically, and, of course, the two figures, now growing shadowy in the dim distance, answer not a word.

Doctor Jack regains his breath after a little while. They are speeding along over the open prairie now, the town having been left behind, and as the night air is decidedly chilly, it is deemed proper that they seek for warmth and comfort inside the car.

Jack has already told in a few sentences how he managed to outwit the two men who followed him so closely. It is not his habit to boast, and those who hear what he has to say must draw upon their own imaginations to fill in the story.

Larry walks forward to indulge in a smoke, for the car has been turned around during the day, and the little compartment is no longer at the rear.

A few minutes later they see him hastening toward them. His expression is really ludicrous. At the same time they can see that the dude has received a shock.

He sinks into a seat opposite Doctor Jack and his wife, who have just arranged with the steward for a little supper, and have a table spread between them.

"What is the matter, man? You look as if you had seen a ghost," says Jack.

"By Jove! two of them, dear boy," gasps Larry, rolling his eyes.

The doctor and Avis exchange glances.

"Now, what in the duse can he mean? Come, Larry, out with it. What have you seen?" the former remarks.

"Tell me, can a man be in two places at the same time?" demands the dude.

"Well, hardly. I've known people to try it, but the attempt generally ended in failure. Why do you ask that? Is it possible—"

Larry jerks his thumb over his shoulder.

"I've found 'em snugly deposited in the smoking-room," he says, laconically.

"Them? Do you mean the Britisher and his Chilian ally?"

Larry nods, unable to say a word.

Doctor Jack looks at his wife again and laughs. He takes it very coolly, indeed; one would think it might be a great joke with him.

"How can it be possible, when we saw that man lose the train?" Avis [illegible].

"Ah, my dear, not one of us could declare their identity at that distance. As to the two men who followed me, I only saw them in the dark. It is evident that instead of entering the chase themselves, these worthies, suspecting a trick perhaps, stuck by the train and sent the two Chilians who have come under their orders after me."

"Then it was all useless?"

"Not so. We have reduced the number of our foes by two. That is something to feel good over. I believe Lord Rackett and Garcia are all we have to watch now, and by my next coup d'etat I hope to get rid of them."

"You have wesolved, then—" begins Larry, but his drawl is so labored that Jack, as is often the case, finishes the sentence for him.

"To have a special awaiting our arrival in Denver, on which we shall outstrip the regular train and leave our foes behind."

"Three cheers for Doctor Jack!" but the other's frown causes Larry to restrain his enthusiasm.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Presently the Englishman is seen to look through the car. Larry declares that he seems greatly surprised when his eyes fall upon Doctor Jack, but he returns again to the seclusion of the smoking apartment, where doubtless various schemes are being brought forward between the colonel and himself, having for their object the detention of the American, perhaps even his death.

Having talked the matter over with the others as they pass the time over the little table, Jack proceeds to make out a message which he desires to send ahead, and which will give him a tight squeeze on the game.

Then he waits for the conductor, with whom he has a long talk in the seclusion of the state-room. Sworn to secrecy concerning the facts, this official folds the message up with some bank bills Jack hands over, and then the affair is as good as arranged.

Jack can lie on his oars.

All that is necessary is to watch the enemy and circumvent any move looking to a sly attack from the rear.

When Denver is reached by this transcontinental train, there will be a surprise in store for some people, no doubt.

The schemes of the two allies may embrace a variety of forms, since one wants the secret packet that seems of such immense value to Doctor Jack, while the other covets his wife.

By this time, however, the bull-dog nature of the British nobleman has been fully aroused. He hates Jack with intense fervor. Every victory of the American stirs up the sluggish bad blood in his veins, until he is now in a condition bordering on frenzy, though outwardly cool, and could see the man against whom his anger is kindled burned at the stake with pleasure.

When two such unscrupulous plotters strain their energies in the endeavor to hatch up mischief, the chances are they will arouse something of a commotion.

An hour later the sleeper drops off from the train which goes on and leaves it on the open prairie. Luckily the accident is discovered by the conductor a few minutes later. He happens to look out of a window and sees lights a mile or so in the rear, where no illumination could be expected, pokes his head out still farther, counts the cars, and finds his train one short of the number with which it started.

So he pulls the cord, stops the train, and they back down the track to secure the lost sleeper. Already those on board have become aware of the situation, and crowd the platform. An investigation shows that it has been no accident. Some strong hand uncoupled the cars after detaching the bell-rope and accomplishing other things that are necessary on account of the vestibule.

No one makes any accusation. True, Colonel Garcia was in the smoking compartment, but he was the first to give the alarm, and declares he saw a rough man, whom he took to be a trainman, doing something outside the door, but paid little heed to the matter until the sleeper slowed up, when, looking along the track, he discovered they were left.

Lord Rackett ventures the august opinion that this is the work of train robbers, who intended going through the sleeper when the remainder of the east-bound train had passed from sight.

Some of the passengers grasp this story eagerly. Strange how people want to be connected with some notoriety, especially when it does not cost anything and involves no dangers.

Doctor Jack and Larry exchange a glance, and even the dude's smile is suggestive. Evidently they know just about how that car chanced to be left behind. The rough man was all in the mind of the indignant Garcia.

Again they move forward.

One of the colonel's first acts is to wash his hands, which fact Larry reports with considerable emphasis.

The conductor is suspicious, and during the remainder of the night keeps a close watch upon the sleeper "Diana." It will not redound to his credit to leave a car filled with first-class passengers standing on the main track.

It is a game of diamond cut diamond, now, and as yet Jack seems to be holding his own, yes, and gaining ground continually.

Another dawn and all well. So the day and night pass and Ogden is left far behind.

The train is on time. That golden lubricator appears to be doing its duty remarkably well. There is nothing like it to surmount difficulties when it comes to railroad travel.

"When do we reach Denver?" asks Larry, who begins to weary of this chase against time.

"In a few hours," returns the doctor, handing over the time-table, for they have left Cheyenne.

They are whirled on their way. The great Rockies have been climbed, beyond which lie the prairie lands of the corn-growing states.

Their enemies seem very quiet, but it is at such times the most danger is to be looked for. Perhaps they have engaged in a little surprise of their own, which may be sprung upon the party of Doctor Jack at the moment when least expected.

Denver opens before them.

"Get in readiness, Avis, but show no more excitement than if we meant to stop here for a meal like the rest of the passengers," and Jack snaps his valise shut.

"How about our trunks?" she asks, woman like, thinking how terrible it might be to land in New York without her wardrobe.

"They will follow—only a few hours later. We don't dare take the risk of transferring them to the special. My dear girl, you surely know money will provide—"

She puts a hand over his lips, which he immediately kisses.

"Say no more, Jack. I can get on if I never see my trunk again. You know best, dear."

"Denver—half an hour for dinner." [illegible] car.

The train rolls into the depot, and stops. Around them is the wizard city of Colorado, where in a decade magnificent blocks of business houses and lovely palaces have sprung into existence.

They do not mean to lose any time, but having gathered what few packages they carry, are ready to leave the sleeper as soon as it comes to a stop.

Larry leers at milord, who, standing in the aisle, looks after them with a peculiar expression on his face, and then makes a motion with his arm to Colonel Garcia.

No doubt he is very much surprised at seeing them with their luggage—at least Larry takes this view of it—for a very brief space of time.

They pass out.

The conductor awaits their coming, for he desires to see them win, and at once says:—

"Follow me, Doctor Jack. I will show you where your special lies."

"Gentlemen, I am sorry to detain you, but truth to tell I have a document here that requires your presence at police headquarters," says a tall man, opening his coat and showing a detective's badge, while two blue-coated officers push into view.

Larry's jaw drops, Doctor Jack frowns, at once recognizing a bold move of the enemy.

"Perhaps you have made a mistake," he says, knowing full well, however, that this is not so.

"You are Doctor Jack Evans, of New York?"

"Yes."

"And these gentlemen, Lawrence Kennedy and Kirke Smith—the latter I knew of old in Texas?"

"Quite right. Let us see your warrant."

All of them glance over the document, but Avis notices milord and the Chilian colonel hurry away, though she thinks little of it at the time, believing they are heading for the restaurant connected with the central station.

"There's no disputing the fact that you have authority to take all of us or only one member of the party to headquarters," says Jack, into whose mind a thought has flashed, by means of which he may bridge the difficulty.

"Well?" drawls the officer, waiting.

"We are in a great hurry. I have hired a special to take us to St. Louis ahead of the regular train. It means much to me to reach New York at a certain hour. There are men on board this train who strain every nerve to halt us—an English lord and a Chilian colonel. I was in the affair at Valparaiso when the sailors of the Baltimore were mobbed, and these men have followed me all the way. You understand the situation, I am sure. Now," and his hand meets that of the officer on the sly, transferring a little roll of greenbacks, "so far as I can see, your document really only calls for the presence of one of our number at headquarters to explain this charge."

"Now that you mention it, Doctor Jack, I believe you are right," returns the officer, as he glances again at the warrant. This time looking through different glasses.

Jack gives Kirke a meaning look. Kirke, who has stood there eager to knock the whole trio of officers over, if need be, so anxious does he feel to be of assistance.

"I will remain," he says, quickly.

"That settles it, then. Follow on the next train," and each, in turn, shake hands with him.

"The law is satisfied. Come, Kirke," remarks the astute detective, locking his arm with that of his old friend. "Good-by, Doctor Jack—I've heard of you before—and good luck follow you."

Jack waits no longer. Already five minutes have been wasted by this episode, and that is a considerable period of time when one travels at the rate of sixty miles an hour. He picks up his valise.

"Come, Avis—Larry!"

The conductor has waited. When the detective first appeared on the scene he was filled with considerable apprehension regarding the outcome of the affair, but now his face fairly beams with satisfaction at witnessing the neat manner in which Doctor Jack has manipulated matters and baffled the intentions of his foes.

They pass around several trains and come upon the special—an engine and Pullman sleeper. Everything seems in readiness for an immediate start.

It takes them just about a minute to enter the car—the conductor exchange a few sentences. Perhaps their old friend is giving the new man some hints that it may pay him to serve the party whose plethoric pocket-book pays the cost of the special.

Now they move, leave the depot, and start down the track like a bird, with jangling bell and an occasional toot from the whistle.

Larry and Jack shake hands. It does look as though they have the best of the bargain at last.

"Hope our fwiends, the enemy, will enjoy their dinner. If they knew the twuth I wather think it would choke them. Gweat thing, the telegraph—wonderful what pwogress railroads make—think of us flying across the continent in five days. Give me Yankee ways every day. I wather guess Denver agwees with milord. He may take a notion to settle down there," laughs Larry, but that is where he counts without his host.

CHAPTER XXX.

Apparently all is plain sailing now, and the world looks very bright ahead. When we have won a well-deserved victory, a sense of satisfaction steals over one that gives a very comfortable feeling.

As before, our friends have the car to themselves, with a conductor and porter, the latter also serving in the capacity of steward, for luncheons may be obtained from a fairly well-stocked buffet.

This feeling of security and exultation last just one hour with Larry. Then his dream of fancied triumph is rudely shattered, and he realizes that there are others who can plot and plan as well as themselves.

They have just finished a lunch. Avis remains seated in another section, while the gentlemen repair to the smoking compartment. Larry will station himself at the open window, where the smoke of his cigarette may pass out and not destroy the flavor of his companion's cigar.

Jack has already settled himself, and Larry is about due. He waited to secure a package of his favorites from his overcoat.

Presently in comes the dude—the other looks at him in surprise. Larry has, since their leaving Denver, assumed a very important and consequential air, as though fortune has made him the benefactor of the community—the fact that this pretty scheme originated in his brain gives him something of a right to strut about and appear taller than he really is.

Now, however, this look has suddenly faded. Larry's glory seems to have departed. One could almost compare him to a dog that comes sneaking home with his tail between his legs. There is a woe-begone expression on his peculiar face.

Jack jumps to conclusions.

"Train hustles and swings pretty lively, but I didn't know you were subject to sea sickness, my boy," says the man of iron nerve.

Larry gives him a reproachful look.

"Jack, dear boy, it's something else," he says.

"Let's see if I can guess it, then. D'ye know, Larry, you looked just that way when the black-eyed Susan in Alexandria gave you the mitten. Now, if we were settled in a city, I'd be inclined to think—"

Larry grins now.

"No woman in the case, I assure you, Jack. The Chilian beauty was left in Fwisco, you know."

"Then, what the duse? You couldn't have received a telegram of any kind?"

A shake of the head in the negative.

"Dinner doesn't agree with you?"

"Jove! it was superb!"

"Ah! now I have it, my boy. You have made a terrible discovery." Larry nods eagerly. "You have been too fast, too impulsive, and consequently run out of cigarettes. Have a weed?"

Larry holds up a package of the article that are to his mind a thing of beauty and a joy forever, at which Doctor Jack shrugs his shoulders.

"Then I give it up, Larry."

That means he would like to be enlightened as to the cause of the dude's conduct.

"Look, my dear boy, have you ever seen this article before?"

He holds up a hat—a peculiar hat, with something of the military look about it—a hat which once seen could never be forgotten.

Doctor Jack opens his eyes wider than their habit. He takes the hat in his hand and examines it carefully.

"As sure as I live I remember seeing that hat upon the head of Colonel Garcia, the Chilian. Yes; here is his name on the lining inside. Now, how under the sun could you have worn that hat here and I never noticed it?"

Larry claps it on his head. The chapeau comes down to his ears, and Jack laughs.

"I'd look widiculous, wouldn't I now, with such a head-piece on? Not quite such a fool, dear boy, if I do look it."

"But why did you bring it here?"

"Excuse me, Jack, I deny the soft insinuation; I'm not in the hat business just at pwesent."

"Eh? then who brought it here?" sitting up, with something of sudden interest.

"That's what I want to know, by Jove!"

"Where did you get it?"

"Found it on a seat in the car, or wather hanging on a hook."

Doctor Jack turns his eyes from the military chapeau until they meet Larry's gaze.

He does not seem disturbed in the least. It is not his way to show his feelings, and yet the truth that surges through his brain is of a character that might alarm any one.

"I remember now," he says, slowly, "that when those men passed us Colonel Garcia certainly wore his hat, for he ironically bowed to Avis. Your finding it here proves one thing—those men were not heading for the restaurant."

Larry nods his head wisely.

"That is so," he says.

"They got wind of our plans—knew we had a special here—feared lest their own plans might miscarry, and came here to take adavntage of our forethought. Perhaps they sighted us coming through the depot, and beat such a hasty retreat that our colonel forgot his head-gear."

Again Larry wags his head as though he agrees with his companion.

"The question that arises now is of great importance to us. Did those men in their hasty retreat give up their captured position here, or are they still secreted about the car?"

It is, indeed, a serious thing to decide.

"A queer twick to play on us. Wonder how they bwibed the conductor and porter?" ventures Larry, half to himself.

Doctor Jack sneers as he puts his hand in his pocket, takes out a handful of coins and jingles them together.

"That music will accomplish wonderful things, my boy, astonishes things. Most men have their price. You have only to find out the size of their figure. Remember, I don't say all men, but there is more humbug about this world than appears on the surface. I must say I don't exactly fancy the looks of those who have charge of our car."

"My mind, Jack. The darky is ugly, and the conductor, well, I've seen better men in his line."

"Where could they hide?"

"You know there's a state-room at the other end of the car."

"Is the door shut?"

"Yes, and locked, for I twied to open it when I went that way, meaning to smoke there."

HARD DRIVEN.

The mother slowly times her footsteps to those of her baby driver. Yet she is hard driven because not alone in the brief moments of play, but all day long must she keep pace with baby's wants and needs. Generally the mother who experiences a larger demand on her energies has less and less strength to respond. Sometimes she suffers from diseases peculiar to her sex, and often has never thoroughly recovered her strength after baby's coming.

For all women who are weakened by womanly diseases or who are run-down by maternal and household cares Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is commended as a medicine which promptly cures disease and restores the strength. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It is unexcelled as a tonic and nervine for weak, run-down women.

"If mothers who dread the baby's coming would take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they would find it a great help and benefit," writes Mrs. K. Henderson (President Milwaukee Woman's Literary Club), of 625 Grand Ave., Milwaukee, Wis. "After the birth of my first child I did not seem to regain my health, so began to take your medicine, and in two weeks I felt stronger and able to be about, so kept taking it for two months and found at the end of that time I had completely regained my usual health. I also found that it was of benefit to take a few months prior to baby's advent; in fact it is of great benefit in all forms of female weakness."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 5, 1902.

FOR PROHIBITION.

An Eloquent Address by Rev. Dr. Galbraith, of Belleville.

THE LIQUOR ACT OF 1902 A FAULTLESS INSTRUMENT

Countless Millions Ruined by Strong Drink—The Responsibility of the Voter—The Plain Duty Ahead.

The Council chamber was comfortably filled on Friday by citizens who were anxious to hear Rev. Dr. Galbraith, of Belleville, discuss the Prohibition question. The chair was taken by Warden F. M. Strike, of Queen-st. church, and on the platform with the speaker of the evening were Mayor Jennings, Mr. Staples, President of the County Temperance Association, Dr. Herriman, and Mr. J. Bogart.

Rev. Mr. Strike, before introducing the speaker, referred to the good work being done in the cause by the local workers, and to the encouraging reports from all parts of the Province of the Canadian Temperance Federation. The question is not so much what we are going to do politically in this matter, but what are going to do with us." Hotels could get along without bars, in fact in many cases the bars do cause the money. He had been informed that Toronto citizens and business men do not even take their meat at hotels in such numbers as formerly.

Says go to the departmental stores in Toronto, or to some one of the many dining rooms established by Massey's, by McConkey's, and others all of whom are making good. Things would quickly adjust themselves to the new conditions in Lindsay as elsewhere, if people urged all present to mark their ballots on Dec. 4th to abolish the barroom. The absence of other clergymen from the meeting was due to the fact that they were away asking in other parts of the district.

was received with applause. In opening he remarked that the few days remaining before polling day the people of Lindsay and of Ontario would be making important history that would prove a blessing or a curse to the Province. In treating with the voters whether it should be evil or the reverse. There are two great evils to be dealt with—Idolatry and strong drink. Against the former God has given the most solemn warnings and Anathemas as set forth in the scriptures.

In speaking upon the subject of strong drink we must not guard against exaggeration, because the facts were stronger than any words he could utter. About the middle of the last century Tom Paine, argument and God-fearing philosopher, said: "If we were to gather together all the victims of strong drink from the beginning of the world until now they would number 17 billions of human beings, equal to three times the population of the world at the present hour." Oh God! Can it be possible that an evil such awful magnitude, that has wrought away countless human beings into drunkards' graves, and their souls to perdition, is still upheld by a christian people! It was never to collect the revenue sink one cent in one year by the peoples of the two great continents of Europe and North America it would fill a canal 25 feet wide, 5 ft. deep, 100 miles in length. They expend one hunger yearly four billions of dollars. Great Britain alone there are in those countries about three millions of confirmed drunkards, and that about three hundred thousand of these are annually. Think of it! Every day in the year, excluding the Sabbath, 1000 human beings are swept to death by this awful river of destruction, and one acre of land is filled up every day with the graves of these unfortunate victims. Marshall the drunkards of these two continents and they would form a procession, marching two abreast, that would stretch a distance of 500 miles. If we could see this misery and wretchedness of these slaves to drink, and hear the wails of the mothers and fathers, the wives and children of these drunkards, our blood would run cold with horror. Is it any wonder that God pours out upon drunkards and those engaged in the traffic his severest warnings? God of very pity for the victims and the men engaged in the traffic every earnest christian in this Province should raise his voice in fear, with against the sale of strong drink.

Why does God's curse rest on every man connected in any way with the traffic? Because, we are told, we know, it is a debasing, characterizing traffic. It does not do the good men engaged in the business, but a very small part of it, but it blunt their finer feelings and deaden their sense of honor. God sets a high value on men created in His own image and redeemed by the blood of the blood he throws a surplus upon those who engage in it. He wants out on the liquor business because of the degrading and demoralizing nature of the traffic. He has already had outlined a system of asylums and like institutions, but the most appalling of the sights I ever witnessed was on one occasion when I was in a place where I was visiting in a room on a day when unusual fun was supposed to be said such a devilish pandemonium! What caused it? Drink! The liquor traffic had debased and degraded the poor victims.

Another reason why God pours out his woes on the traffic is because liquor is the great tempter. Proof of this the speaker cited a number of examples in his own experience, one being that of a man named Bogart, who was only age a respected citizen of Peterboro, who established his wife to death in a drunken rage. He is serving a life sentence in Kingston Penitentiary and wears the hook—a hopeless man.

The fruit of this traffic is bad. Does any one say we are not the victims of the dark branches, but leave says the tree is well? Well, the good fruit shall be torn up by the roots and destroyed utterly. Dr. Herriman took odd fellows to task for saying that the liquor traffic blighted nobody. He (Dr. Herriman) said he—children are ruined into the world during the nine months' traffic which is continued even to the table and church and Sunday.

Another reason why the traffic is hateful to God is because it is a growing block in the path of the young. It is not from the ranks of Duffy's men that the ever-full ranks of the drunkards are recruited. The army of drunkards is passing away annually—why is the reason asked? The moderate drinkers, of course, are the victims. Is it a fact that drinkers? One school boys and girls. Liquor is, even now, being placed on the tables in certain homes. Young may acquire the taste and have ready fallen victims to the habit. What hellish ingenuity. The well himself is a drunkard. Is it a more diabolical act. God says, "Take up the stumbling block." Let the wire men of today say, "Let the stumbling block be in the right way." We know the sort of character we have to deal with. Some of the kind that lowers and debases, and that, more than any other, makes speak for hours on the eternal consequences of the drunkard's sin.

What is to be done? We must first purge the church of God. When we have an unanimous voice against the evils of strong drink, when we have minimized the evil, or stealthily tipple, how can we expect to win? Great good will be done if the Bible be begun to spread, and the minister of the church, the center the church pulpits, no man ought to be ordained or retained a member of a church, unless his first question be against the drink evil. (Applause.)

Is it true that thoroughly impressed the minds of the young—my boys and girls—that drinking strong drink is a heresy—is a sin and leads to the making of drunkards. Every week in the year in this Province 200 boys take their first chase of liquor—1,000 every year. Dr. Oliver says that 20 per cent. of these eventually go down to drunkards' graves, but in all the figures quoted by the speaker had been conserved to life in estimation, and he would therefore add to the number 10 per cent. Does any young man start out with the intention of becoming a drunkard? No. How, then, does it happen? Because the use of strong drink as a beverage has a twofold effect on everyone who uses it. The young man of vigorous nervous, high strung temperament is more likely to fall a victim than be of a slow-going, phlegmatic disposition. It is not the world who become drunkards—no, it is the clerks, bright man as a rule, who use the beverage, strong drink influences the appetite and sensations. Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." Educate and save the boys—teach them the evil effects of intoxicating drink from a scientific standpoint. Experience does not mean moderate drinking. Some, indeed, say, "I know what is good and choosen it, and the wise drawer what is bad, and avoids it, is temperate."

Moderate drinking leaves behind it a trail of ruin and misery. Teach the young the true meaning of liberty—liberty to do what is good essential. Liberty does not mean license. What is liberty? It means doing what you like so long as it does not interfere with the rights of others. True liberty mean the right of a drunkard and man who wrecks his home? If a man seeks liberty to do what he wants to do it doesn't mind. There is not a man in the British Empire or the civilized world who can do as he does all the time. Shall a man in virtue of his birthright be granted the power of other? Shall a man deprive him of liberty, is a man allowed to do as thousand other things he might do if he could have the opportunity of doing so? Can he commit suicide if he wishes? No, he is not allowed that he lives belongs to the community. Children should be made familiar with the true meaning of liberty. Prove to them that experience should be in every school in Ontario, as it is in Toronto and Ottawa and we should have it taught in the public schools of the land, and in every church society. (Applause.) Do all in your power to do the people and do all you can to remove the stumbling block.

Let us have prohibition for the state. Blackstone, the great legal authority, says, "Natural law requires that we love honesty, injure no one, and give to everyone his due." Does the manufacturer of strong drink do this? Does he give or the giver of strong drink, injure no one? If injury of anyone injured, then according to Blackstone, natural law requires that we remedy the wrong. Common law, says the same authority, requires that no one shall use his property to the injury of another, and the consent of the injured party is no mitigation of the offence. Does the liquor business employ property to the injury of anyone? Does the brewer, the retailer, the seller, use his property so as not to injure others? If he does, he has no right to do so.

The statistics he displayed on the stands took for the liquor traffic to be simply the will of a body of legislators, who had helped to form the system, are responsible for the evils of the traffic. Who made the present system? He loved his country and wished to see the people free from the terrible blight and curse of strong drink. He (Dr. Galbraith) is the aim of every true patriot. (Applause.)

By request Dr. Galbraith then described a letter which he had received the "Ten Sound Reasons" advanced by the friends of the present license law should be maintained. Lord applause greeted the ten arguments of Mr. Galbraith, and the arguments in rebuttal.

Dr. Galbraith said: Thanks to Dr. Gunbolly for his excellent address we appreciate. Mr. Galbraith's address by Dr. Herriman. In reply Dr. Gunbolly said he was not prepared to regret for his labor if the good town of Lindsay voted in favor of Prohibition on Dec. 4.

The meeting was then brought to a close.

THEY TACKLED THE WRONG MAN.

Sad Mistakes of Two Muddle "Scrapers" Last Evening.

About 9 o'clock last night a couple of men—one of them named Albert Duffy—came to the Lindsay police under the influence of liquor, and wanted Peter Johnston, Benson house business, to take them home. Johnston Peter drove into the yard, and while in his office heard a noise in the stable he heard Duffy exclaim, "Pete Peter Johnston—let's punch him." Peter was not over to the spot where the men were standing, thinking they were joking said, "Punch me, what for?" Then Duffy struck Peter and the two blackened, Duffy's eye was closed. Peter was getting the best of the argument when Duffy came and kicked your brains out." By this time a couple of men came from the hotel and been advised of what was going on called Duffy aside and told him of his error. Duffy said he could be of any use Duffy said its time to go home. Duffy left for New York. Peter gave chase but was unable to find the man. By this time returned to the hotel lavatory to wash the blood off his face. Peter was when again attacked by Duffy who had returned the hotel by the front door. Peter was not in the mood for fooling this time, and in an instant he had the assailant down. Duffy was now raining blows on him with the regalia of a good hard fist, when Peter would have put his man out of business if Duffy had been separated, but as it was Duffy was taken home by a friend. Peter was left to fight Duffy's friend also received a few of Peter's blows. Duffy he will remember for some time Cinnamon, our Head ...ick, Lacrosse team of Sunday, ...ason successful in capturing the silver Cup in the Victoria County annual Lacrosse tournament last year. This makes the third year in succession, that was the Association cup presented to the champions of the Dominion Government last year in Victoria County presented by Mr. Crossman, M.P., and this year the Rev. Dr. Freeman, M.P.P. The rule for winning the Cup, the team must have the highest score at 500 yards and 600 yards.

Hockey Notes.

—With Boyce, Cecil Deyman and R. Sandford, former members of the Lindsay team playing with Peterboro, should have a strong and fast aggregation this year.

—We understand Mr. Geo. Taylor, of the Woodie Stove Co., is to be the new president of the Lindsay Hockey Club. Dr. Herriman is secretary, and Mr. Lewis, of the Bank of Montreal, secretary.

—Toronto World: Secretary A. H. Beaton of the O.H.A., received an application yesterday for admission from the Port Perry Hockey Club, which desires to place a team in the intermediate series. Port Perry was one of the strongest lacrosse tournament last year....Port Perry is said to make a hard chase for the O. H. A. championship in intermediate ship this season. That town has secured Hall from Lindsay, Ross and an Orillia man, and have so far got together a very strong team.

The proposed amendment to come up at the Ontario Hockey Association meeting next week, are not numerous. Three affecting the playing of players. One allows players in city or local leagues to play junior O.H.A. matches. Only six men a side on rinks of less 65 feet instead of 70 feet. Also a clause from the junior series players who have played in senior matches in more than one intermediate match. Other proposals are from the Toronto Representatives from the Executive except for the first one after their retirement from office. Two from the Executive are for the power to amend or alter the rules of the cup competition. The rules the association's share of the gate receipts, the matches from 33 1-3 to 20 per cent. To provide that in case of the finals a third match be played if the score is a tie after the four play in each match.

BOARD OF WORKS COMMITTEE

A SPECIAL SESSION HELD LAST WEEK.

Snow-cleaning Contract for West Part of South Ward, and other Matters Dealt with.

A meeting of the Board of Works was held on Nov. 27th in the clerk's office at 11 o'clock. Present were Mayor Ingle, Aldermen O'Reilly, Hore, Burrows, Jackson and McMurray, and Commissioner Chalmers.

Tender for Snow Plowing.

Ald. O'Reilly, chairman, said he had called the meeting to decide on letting the contract for the snow plow. He had received a letter from Russell, Sunset, and to deal with acceptance of other matters. The tenders were from Thos. Connors for $50, and the other from Thos. Ure, strong for $65. On motion of Ald. Jackson and Mr. Burrows the lowest tender was accepted.

Russell and Sunset at Sewer.

A petition signed by Mr. Thos. Murphy and other ratepayers asked that the proposed sewer on Russell and Sunset—to be not proceeded with until spring on account of the expense. Commissioner Chalmers said Mr. Burrows, that a new stove be purchased for the office.

Cleaning of Kent-st. Walks.

Ald. O'Reilly wanted to know by what time the sidewalks on Kent-st. should be cleaned after a storm. Mayor Ingle said the Chief Engineer should enforce it.

Ald. McMurray—Certainly, let the Chief look after that. It's his business.

The meeting then adjourned.

Sprinkling up of the new streets which would be sure to happen in spring.

Ald. Hore—We promised Major Ingle that the work would be proceeded with."

Mayor Ingle—There is another matter—we do not know if we have left other parties concerned."

On motion of Ald. Hore it was decided to recede to the request, provided that the town or other parties concerned are not put to any cost.

Ald. Hore—Is the Fire Hall Sewer?

Ald. Hore—I understand Driver O'Neill made a complaint in the kitchen of the fire hall for the sewer connection.

Commissioner Chalmers—The sewer is necessary and the connection can be made with the sewer. The sewer is necessary. A heating system is to be installed, and water closets and other sanitary arrangements are to be of expensive easy to suggest ways of expenditure.

Ald. O'Reilly—Driver O'Neill must be a member for cleaning the sewer goes and hose.

Politician—Congratulations, Sarah, you've been married.

Sarah (with delight)—Honestly? J. Bullman—What difference does that make?

Newspapers and Magazines

—A booming romance is that of H. B. Marriott Watson, in the Christmas Ladies' Home Journal, "Jack Tack on the Chaine." The author has had a full career at stirring fiction and holds the leader at the point of the sword.

—Miss Maude Roosevelt offers a very valid claim to attention this month. She is, first of all, a comsumed Ibsen enthusiast, and has set out to prate as an able actress; secondly, she may sign herself the Queen of Spanish Gitanos—Baroness Minnie Hall Gwynne—and lastly, she has written an talkative sketch of Spain and many of recent years. The novel is called "The Ladies Gitana" and appears in full in the December Ladies' Home Journal, and Ladies' Magazine.

—The Christmas Number of Scribner's Magazine has been always one notable by its artistic beauty, the beauty of its pictures, and the fine quality of its literary and musical contents workmanship of its stories. The issue of this number Scribner's sustains and adds to that reputation. It contains eight stories, some of them of them illustrated, and special articles and poems, among them a beautiful unpublished poem by Robert Louis Stevenson, written in 1875, when he was a young man. The poem shows the charm of Stevenson's style at the very outset of his career.

WEEDS

Consumption is a human weed flourishing best in weak lungs. Like other weeds it's easily destroyed while young; old, sometimes impossible.

Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it long before.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If you do not stop consumption so much the better; you can easily forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be well at once, but if you will begin in time you will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.

We will send you a little of the Emulsion free.

DR. JACK'S WIFE

By ST. GEORGE RATHBORNE

Author of "Dr. Jack," "Captain Tom," "Miss Caprice," Etc., Etc.

—with pleasure,, returns the other.

Larry glances around him. He does not care to share his bright thoughts with those who may be enemies, and they are known to have a number of this class on board the limited train.

The coast seems clear, yet Larry assumes a voice equal to a dramatic stage whisper in imparting his momentous secret.

"I believe I can dwop the wascals behind and give them a chance to him a [illegible]," he announces, at which Avis gently claps her hands, and Jacks says: "Bravo, dear boy."

Larry tries to swell out with more importance, but it is impossible, since he has already reached the point of danger.

"Now, listen to me, my friends, while I explain my idea. Of course, it must hold until night comes. Jack will get the exact time we stop at some station. Timing himself, he will leave the car. These men can be depended on to follow. Jack must lead them a little chase, give them the slip, and run back to the twain as fast as he can. The second he puts his foot on the step, the conductor will start ahead."

"Ah! how d'ye know he will?"

"Because you must have an arrangement with him beforehand, dear boy. That little part of my plan I have left to your ingenuity."

"I'll wrestle with it, and endeavor to do my duty," says Jack, in mock humility.

"That's one scheme."

"What! you have others, Larry?"

"Jove, dear boy, hosts of them. They bristle like quills on the back of the fretful porcupine. Here's an idea that might come in later. We could arrange for a special to be ready at Denver, where we lost half an hour. It would take us to St. Louis in time to catch a twain in advance of the one regularly made."

Jack opens his eyes at this.

"Bless me, a splendid thought. If it comes to the worst I'll have a talk with the conductor about it. What else, my dear fellow?"

Larry has only started. He begins to describe certain unique plans for accomplishing the desired result, some of them so very original, that Doctor Jack is fairly staggered.

"Hold on, I beg of you! Don't bewilder me. Talk about your Cardinal Richelieu. He couldn't hold a candle to Larry Kennedy," and he really means what he says this time.

"Then you will accept and twy one of these plans?" asks the proud inventor, twisting his diminutive whiskers with the air of a conqueror.

"All of them, Larry, in time, if necessary. But first we will endeavor to leave our friends, the enemy, to-night, with the aid of the conductor. There he comes, now. I'll talk with him a while."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The conductor is, of course, inclined to be non-committal. He has heard much of Doctor Jack's story, and is deeply interested, ready to do all in his power to assist him, and yet at the same time fully aware that his duty will not allow him to swing trains at the whim of a passenger. All Jack desires, at present, is the assurance that there will be no holding the train a minute or two in order to allow belated ones a chance to get aboard. Here the iron rules of the road, which the conductor could not break for him, work in his favor.

"When the time is up we start, if there are a dozen Englishmen wandering about," he says, firmly, and Jack builds upon this.

He also speaks about the special at Denver, and has the official figure to see whether it would count him anything at St. Louis.

Thus the day passes.

With the coming of night, Doctor Jack prepares to carry out his little plan whereby he will possibly shake off the worst foes for a while.

They draw near the town where a short stop will be made. Jack knows just how long. Even now the engine gives a long signal whistle to warn the people of their coming.

"Be very careful," pleads Avis, looking a little anxious, as her husband shows some eagerness to be off.

"Don't be alarmed, dear. I shall keep just ahead of them, and lead them a wild-goose chase. Even if they should try to overhaul me, they are only two, and I am well armed, you know."

She looks proudly at him. Memory carries her back to many a scene where her Jack proved himself a man in every particular. She has seen him master a black bull in the plaza de los toros, at Madrid, when no matador dared enter the ring—has watched him beat back a mob of rascals who waylaid the train by which they passed over the Pyrenees, and been nearby when he saved her brother from the vengeance of a Turkish pasha, meeting the Russian wolf-hounds in the garden of the palace and wresting victory from what promised to be defeat.

All these and many other similar scenes flash before her mental vision. No wonder she has the utmost confidence in this man who twists difficulties that are seemingly insurmountable to his will.

He waits after the train stops, just two minutes, timing himself so as to hit it just right. Lord Rackett and Garcia have alighted to stretch their legs. Larry reports that they are watching through the window, as though they do not mean to take their eyes off the little party.

Doctor Jack arises. He gravely kisses his wife good-by, shakes hands with his two friends, walks to the end of the car, and steps off.

Lord Rackett and Garcia have apparently already taken the alarm, for they are not in sight. Jack strides away. His manner is that of one who travels no more at present.

"What success?" asks Avis, eagerly, as Larry comes back to her side.

"The best, I believe. At any rate, I saw two dark forms gliding after him."

Doctor Jack's wife cannot help from showing anxiety, no matter what unlimited confidence she puts in him.

"What time is it, Larry?"

He consults his chronometer.

"Seven and a half after nine."

"And we leave here?"

"At exactly nine-ten."

There remains two and a half minutes [illegible] to this devoted wife. There are times when we measure the passage of seconds by heart beats—when even a minute may seem an eternity.

Larry walks up and down, trying to smother his own impatience, while Kirke Smith is on the platform keeping an eye about.

At length Larry walks to the end of the car. The time is about up. A few more seconds and the train must start if the conductor is as prompt as he has promised to be.

A hand touches Larry's shoulder, and, turning, he sees Avis, who has been unable to remain in the car, when so much is at stake.

"Surely the time must be up," she says.

"Just."

Even as Larry utters the word, there is a whistle from the engine, a jerk of the cars—they move.

Doctor Jack's wife holds her breath.

If he has made a mistake of three seconds, Jack will not only leave his enemies behind, but be caught in the same trap.

The train moves slowly at first, being a long one, but the momentum increases.

"There he comes!" exclaims Larry.

A figure appears in view at the farther end of the station platform; a figure that delays not a second, but rushes across the lighted space after the train with a speed equal to a young cyclone; a figure that the eyes of the loving wife instantly recognize as Jack.

Will he reach the last car? The train moves faster each second, but Doctor Jack has not yet put forth his best efforts, though rapidly annihilating the space that separates them.

Now he makes a spurt—encouraged by the presence of Avis, whom he sees. Five feet only separate him from the platform, but the train is going at a lively rate.

Another burst of speed; two feet remain. He puts out his hand; a fall now must mean ruin to his hopes; but Jack is light on his feet.

Kirke Smith stands on the steps. He holds on to the rail, bends forward and reaches out his horny hand, which Doctor Jack instantly seizes upon.

Another second and the daring runner has swung himself upon the back platform of the last car. He has won.

Avis throws her arms about her husband.

"Oh, Jack!" she says, with a long breath. "I began to fear you would lose the race. It was a terrible moment of suspense," at which the doctor, though exceedingly short of breath just at the time, is compelled to laugh, as the ludicrous side of the matter appears before him.

"How did you succeed? Were you followed?" asks the Texan, eagerly.

"Two shadowy figures kept after me up to the time when I gave them the slip, and made a bolt for the train. They could not have gotten aboard—simply impossible—I ran as fast as I could, and had a narrow escape, as you have all seen."

"By Jove! look yondah!" exclaims Larry, at this juncture, and all turn their eyes backward over the road bed.

They are now quite a distance from the station. Nearly an eighth of a mile, and making good time that momentarily grows faster.

The track chances to be straight, so that they can readily see the well-lighted platform and all its immediate surroundings.

Even as they look in response to Larry's call, two figures come dashing upon the boards. They are men who thus run, men who have beyond a doubt been left by the train; men who even run up the track some distance, as rattled travelers left behind are apt to do, in the vain hope of overhauling the train that has given them the slip.

Of course, the distance is too great for our friends to make them out, but they are almost positive as to the identity of the men who have been dropped so neatly.

Larry in particular is greatly tickled over the discomfiture of the enemy. He takes off his hat and makes a bow in the direction of the stragglers.

"Farewell — farewell — the best of friends must part!" he says, dramatically, and, of course, the two figures, now growing shadowy in the dim distance, answer not a word.

Doctor Jack regains his breath after a little while. They are speeding along over the open prairie now, the town having been left behind, and as the night air is decidedly chilly, it is deemed proper that they seek for warmth and comfort inside the car.

Jack has already told in a few sentences how he managed to outwit the two men who followed him so closely. It is not his habit to boast, and those who hear what he has to say must draw upon their own imaginations to fill in the story.

Larry walks forward to indulge in a smoke, for the car has been turned around during the day, and the little compartment is no longer at the rear.

A few minutes later they see him hastening toward them. His expression is really ludicrous. At the same time they can see that the dude has received a shock.

He sinks into a seat opposite Doctor Jack and his wife, who have just arranged with the steward for a little supper, and have a table spread between them.

"What is the matter, man? You look as if you had seen a ghost," says Jack.

"By Jove! two of them, dear boy," gasps Larry, rolling his eyes.

The doctor and Avis exchange glances.

"Now, what in the duse can he mean! Come, Larry, out with it. What have you seen?" the former remarks.

"Tell me, can a man be in two places at the same time?" demands the dude.

"Well, hardly. I've known people to try it, but the attempt generally ended in failure. Why do you ask that? Is it possible—"

Larry jerks his thumb over his shoulder.

"I've found 'em snugly deposited in the smoking-room," he says, laconically.

"Them? Do you mean the Britisher and his Chilian ally?"

Larry nods, unable to say a word.

Doctor Jack looks at his wife again and laughs. He takes it very coolly, indeed; one would think it might be a great joke with him.

"How can it be possible, when we saw those men lose the train?" Avis asks.

"...my dear, not one of us could declare their identity at that distance. As to the two men who followed me, I only saw them in the dark. It is evident that instead of entering the chase themselves, these worthies, suspecting a trick perhaps, stuck by the train and sent the two Chilians who have come under their orders after me."

"Then it was all useless?"

"Not so. We have reduced the number of our foes by two. That is something to feel good over. I believe Lord Rackett and Garcia are all we have to watch now, and by my next coup d'etat I hope to get rid of them."

"You have wesolved, then—" begins Larry, but his drawl is so labored that Jack, as is often the case, finishes the sentence for him.

"To have a special awaiting our arrival in Denver, on which we shall outstrip the regular train and leave our foes behind."

"Three cheers for Doctor Jack!" but the other's frown causes Larry to restrain his enthusiasm.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Presently the Englishman is seen to look through the car. Larry declares that he seems greatly surprised when his eyes fall upon Doctor Jack, but he returns again to the seclusion of the smoking apartment, where doubtless various schemes are being brought forward between the colonel and himself, having for their object the detention of the American, perhaps even his death.

Having talked the matter over with the others as they pass the time over the little table, Jack proceeds to make out a message which he desires to send ahead, and which will give him a tight squeeze on the game.

Then he waits for the conductor, with whom he has a long talk in the seclusion of the state-room. Sworn to secrecy concerning the facts, this official folds the message up with some bank bills Jack hands over, and then the affair is as good as arranged.

Jack can lie on his oars.

All that is necessary is to watch the enemy and circumvent any move looking to a sly attack from the rear.

When Denver is reached by this transcontinental train, there will be a surprise in store for some people, no doubt.

The schemes of the two allies may embrace a variety of forms, since one wants the secret packet that seems of such immense value to Doctor Jack, while the other covets his wife.

By this time, however, the bull-dog nature of the British nobleman has been fully aroused. He hates Jack with intense fervor. Every victory of the American stirs up the sluggish bad blood in his veins, until he is now in a condition bordering on frenzy, though outwardly cool, and could see the man against whom his anger is kindled burned at the stake with pleasure.

When two such unscrupulous plotters strain their energies in the endeavor to hatch up mischief, the chances are they will arouse something of a commotion.

An hour later the sleeper drops off from the train which goes on and leaves it on the open prairie. Luckily the accident is discovered by the conductor a few minutes later. He happens to look out of a window and sees lights a mile or so in the rear, where no illumination could be expected, pokes his head out still farther, counts the cars, and finds his train one short of the number with which it started.

So he pulls the cord, stops the train, and they back down the track to secure the lost sleeper. Already those on board have become aware of the situation, and crowd the platform. An investigation shows that it has been no accident. Some strong hand uncoupled the cars after detaching the bell-rope and accomplishing other things that are necessary on account of the vestibule.

No one makes any accusation. True, Colonel Garcia was in the smoking compartment, but he was the first to give the alarm, and declares he saw a rough man, whom he took to be a trainman, doing something outside the door, but paid little heed to the matter until the sleeper slowed up, when, looking along the track, he discovered they were left.

Lord Rackett ventures the august opinion that this is the work of train robbers, who intended going through the sleeper when the remainder of the eastbound train had passed from sight.

Some of the passengers grasp this story eagerly. Strange how people want to be connected with some notoriety, especially when it does not cost anything and involves no dangers.

Doctor Jack and Larry exchange a glance, and even the dude's smile is suggestive. Evidently they know just about how that car chanced to be left behind. The rough man was all in the mind of the indignant Garcia.

Again they move forward.

One of the colonel's first acts is to wash his hands, which fact Larry reports with considerable emphasis.

The conductor is suspicious, and during the remainder of the night keeps a close watch upon the sleeper "Diana." It will not redound to his credit to leave a car filled with first-class passengers standing on the main track.

It is a game of diamond cut diamond, now, and as yet Jack seems to be holding his own, yes, and gaining ground continually.

Another dawn and all well. So the day and night pass and Ogden is left far behind.

The train is on time. That golden lubricator appears to be doing its duty remarkably well. There is nothing like it to surmount difficulties when it comes to railroad travel.

"When do we reach Denver?" asks Larry, who begins to weary of this chase against time.

"In a few hours," returns the doctor, handing over the time-table, for they have left Cheyenne.

They are whirled on their way. The great Rockies have been climbed, beyond which lie the prairie lands of the corn-growing states.

Their enemies seem very quiet, but it is at such times the most danger is to be looked for. Perhaps they have engaged in a little surprise of their own, which may be sprung upon the party of Doctor Jack at the moment when least expected.

Denver opens before them.

"Get in readiness, Avis, but show no more excitement than if we meant to stop here for a meal like the rest of the passengers," and Jack snaps his valise shut.

"How about our trunks?" she asks, woman like, thinking how terrible it might be to land in New York without her wardrobe.

"They will follow—only a few hours later. We don't dare take the risk of transferring them to the special. My dear girl, you surely know money will provide—"

She puts a hand over his lips, which he immediately kisses.

"Say no more, Jack. I can get on if I never see my trunk again. You know best, dear."

"Denver—half an hour for dinner." [illegible] car.

The train rolls into the depot, and stops. Around them is the wizard city of Colorado, where in a decade magnificent blocks of business houses and lovely palaces have sprung into existence.

They do not mean to lose any time, but having gathered what few packages they carry, are ready to leave the sleeper as soon as it comes to a stop.

Larry leers at milord, who, standing in the aisle, looks after them with a peculiar expression on his face, and then makes a motion with his arm to Colonel Garcia.

No doubt he is very much surprised at seeing them with their luggage—at least Larry takes this view of it—for a very brief space of time.

They pass out.

The conductor awaits their coming, for he desires to see them win, and at once says:—

"Follow me, Doctor Jack. I will show you where your special lies."

"Gentlemen, I am sorry to detain you, but truth to tell I have a document here that requires your presence at police headquarters," says a tall man, opening his coat and showing a detective's badge, while two blue-coated officers push into view.

Larry's jaw drops, Doctor Jack frowns, at once recognizing a bold move of the enemy.

"Perhaps you have made a mistake," he says, knowing full well, however, that this is not so.

"You are Doctor Jack Evans, of New York?"

"Yes."

"And these gentlemen, Lawrence Kennedy and Kirke Smith—the latter I knew of old in Texas?"

"Quite right. Let us see your warrant."

All of them glance over the document, but Avis notices milord and the Chilian colonel hurry away, though she thinks little of it at the time, believing they are heading for the restaurant connected with the central station.

"There's no disputing the fact that you have authority to take all of us or only one member of the party to headquarters," says Jack, into whose mind a thought has flashed, by means of which he may bridge the difficulty.

"Well?" drawls the officer, waiting.

"We are in a great hurry. I have hired a special to take us to St. Louis ahead of the regular train. It means much to me to reach New York at a certain hour. There are men on board this train who strain every nerve to halt us—an English lord and a Chilian colonel. I was in the affair at Valparaiso when the sailors of the Baltimore were mobbed, and these men have followed me all the way. You understand the situation, I am sure. Now," and his hand meets that of the officer on the sly, transferring a little roll of greenbacks, "so far as I can see, your document really only calls for the presence of one of our number at headquarters to explain this charge."

"Now that you mention it, Doctor Jack, I believe you are right," returns the officer, as he glances again at the warrant. This time looking through different glasses.

Jack gives Kirke a meaning look. Kirke, who has stood there eager to knock the whole trio of officers over, if need be, so anxious does he feel to be of assistance.

"I will remain," he says, quickly.

"That settles it, then. Follow on the next train," and each, in turn, shake hands with him.

"The law is satisfied. Come, Kirke," remarks the astute detective, locking his arm with that of his old friend. "Good-by, Doctor Jack—I've heard of you before—and good luck follow you."

Jack waits no longer. Already five minutes have been wasted by this episode, and that is a considerable period of time when one travels at the rate of sixty miles an hour. He picks up his valise.

"Come, Avis—Larry!"

The conductor has waited. When the detective first appeared on the scene he was filled with considerable apprehension regarding the outcome of the affair, but now his face fairly beams with satisfaction at witnessing the neat manner in which Doctor Jack has manipulated matters and baffled the intentions of his foes.

They pass around several trains and come upon the special—an engine and Pullman sleeper. Everything seems in readiness for an immediate start.

It takes them just about a minute to enter the car—the conductor exchange a few sentences. Perhaps their old friend is giving the new man some hints that it may pay him to serve the party whose plethoric pocket-book pays the cost of the special.

Now they move, leave the depot, and start down the track like a bird, with jangling bell and an occasional toot from the whistle.

Larry and Jack shake hands. It does look as though they have the best of the bargain at last.

"Hope our fwiends, the enemy, will enjoy their dinner. If they knew the twuth I wather think it would choke them. Gweat thing, the telegraph—wonderful what pwogress railroads make—think of us flying across the continent in five days. Give me Yankee ways every day. I wather guess Denver agwees with milord. He may take a notion to settle down there," laughs Larry, but that is where he counts without his host.

CHAPTER XXX.

Apparently all is plain sailing now, and the world looks very bright ahead. When we have won a well-deserved victory, a sense of satisfaction steals over one that gives a very comfortable feeling.

As before, our friends have the car to themselves, with a conductor and porter, the latter also serving in the capacity of steward, for luncheons may be obtained from a fairly well-stocked buffet.

This feeling of security and exultation last just one hour with Larry. Then his dream of fancied triumph is rudely shattered, and he realizes that there are others who can plot and plan as well as themselves.

They have just finished a lunch. Avis remains seated in another section, while the gentlemen repair to the smoking compartment. Larry will station himself at the open window, where the smoke of his cigarette may pass out and not destroy the flavor of his companion's cigar.

Jack has already settled himself, and Larry is about due. He waited to secure a package of his favorites from his overcoat.

Presently in comes the dude—the other looks at him in surprise. Larry has, since their leaving Denver, assumed a very important and consequential air, as though fortune has made him the benefactor of the community—the fact that this pretty scheme originated in his brain gives him something of a right to strut about and appear taller than he really is.

Now, however, this look has suddenly faded. Larry's glory seems to have departed. One could almost compare him to a dog that comes sneaking home with his tail between his legs. There is a woebegone expression on his peculiar face.

Jack jumps to conclusions.

"Train hustles and swings pretty lively, but I didn't know you were subject to sea sickness, my boy," says the man of iron nerve.

Larry gives him a reproachful look.

"Jack, dear boy, it's something else," he says.

"Let's see if I can guess it, then. D'ye know, Larry, you looked just that way when the black-eyed Susan in Alexandria gave you the mitten. Now, if we were settled in a city, I'd be inclined to think—"

Larry grins now.

"No woman in the case, I assure you, Jack. The Chilian beauty was left in Fwisco, you know."

"Then, what the duse? You couldn't have received a telegram of any kind?"

A shake of the head in the negative.

"Dinner doesn't agree with you?"

"Jove! it was superb!"

"Ah! now I have it, my boy. You have made a terrible discovery." Larry nods eagerly. "You have been too fast, too impulsive, and consequently run out of cigarettes. Have a weed?"

Larry holds up a package of the article that are to his mind a thing of beauty and a joy forever, at which Doctor Jack shrugs his shoulders.

"Then I give it up, Larry."

That means he would like to be enlightened as to the cause of the dude's conduct.

"Look, my dear boy, have you ever seen this article before?"

He holds up a hat—a peculiar hat, with something of the military look about it—a hat which once seen could never be forgotten.

Doctor Jack opens his eyes wider than their habit. He takes the hat in his hand and examines it carefully.

"As sure as I live I remember seeing that hat upon the head of Colonel Garcia, the Chilian. Yes; here is his name on the lining inside. Now, how under the sun could you have worn that hat here and I never noticed it?"

Larry claps it on his head. The chapeau comes down to his ears, and Jack laughs.

"I'd look widiculous, wouldn't I now, with such a head-piece on? Not quite such a fool, dear boy, if I do look it."

"But why did you bring it here?"

"Excuse me, Jack, I deny the soft insinuation; I'm not in the hat business just at pwesent."

"Eh? then who brought it here?" sitting up, with something of sudden interest.

"That's what I want to know, by Jove!"

"Where did you get it?"

"Found it on a seat in the car, or wather hanging on a hook."

Doctor Jack turns his eyes from the military chapeau until they meet Larry's gaze.

He does not seem disturbed in the least. It is not his way to show his feelings, and yet the truth that surges through his brain is of a character that might alarm any one.

"I remember now," he says, slowly, "that when those men passed us Colonel Garcia certainly wore his hat, for he ironically bowed to Avis. Your finding it here proves one thing—those men were not heading for the restaurant."

Larry nods his head wisely.

"That is so," he says.

"They got wind of our plans—knew we had a special here—feared lest their own plans might miscarry, and came here to take adavntage of our forethought. Perhaps they sighted us coming through the depot, and beat such a hasty retreat that our colonel forgot his head-gear."

Again Larry wags his head as though he agrees with his companion.

"The question that arises now is of great importance to us. Did those men in their hasty retreat give up their captured position here, or are they still secreted about the car?"

It is, indeed, a serious thing to decide.

"A queer twick to play on us. Wonder how they bwibed the conductor and porter?" ventures Larry, half to himself.

Doctor Jack sneers as he puts his hand in his pocket, takes out a handful of coins and jingles them together.

"That music will accomplish wonderful things, my boy, astonishes things. Most men have their price. You have only to find out the size of their figure. Remember, I don't say all men, but there is more humbug about this world than appears on the surface. I must say I don't exactly fancy the looks of those who have charge of our car."

"My mind, Jack. The darky is ugly, and the conductor, well, I've seen better men in his line."

"Where could they hide?"

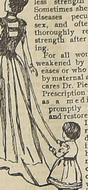
"You know there's a state-room at the other end of the car."

"Is the door shut?"

"Yes, and locked, for I twied to open it when I went that way, meaning to smoke there."

HARD DRIVEN.

The mother slowly times her footsteps to those of her baby driver. Yet she is hard driven because not alone in the brief moments of play, but all day long must she keep pace with baby's wants and needs. Generally the mother who experiences a larger demand on her energies has less and less strength to respond. Sometimes she suffers from diseases peculiar to her sex, and often has never thoroughly recovered her strength after baby's coming.



For all women who are weakened by womanly diseases or who are run-down by maternal and household cares Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is commended as a medicine which promptly cures disease and restores the strength. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It is unexcelled as a tonic and nervine for weak, run-down women.

"If mothers who dread the baby's coming would take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they would find it a great help and benefit," writes Mrs. L. E. Henderson (President Milwaukee Woman's Literary Club), of 623 Grand Ave., Milwaukee, Wis. "After the birth of my first child I did not seem to regain my health, so began to take your medicine, and in two weeks I felt stronger and able to be about, so kept taking it for two months and found at the end of that time I had completely regained my usual health. I also found that it was of benefit to take a few months prior to baby's advent; in fact it is of great benefit in all forms of female weakness."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 5, 1902.

AN APOSTLE OF TEMPERANCE.

REV. DR. POTTS, OF TORONTO, HEARD AT THE ACADEMY.

The Building Packed to the Doors and Many Unable to Gain Admittance.

In very truth the prohibition rally at the Academy of Music Sunday evening was warranted to warm the cockles of the temperance heart. Over 1,500 people managed to squeeze themselves into the building, yet many were turned away. The supply of seats was quickly exhausted and many staid citizens, of grave and reverend mien, were gratefully once each exploring the covered angles of Dumbas & Flavelle Bros.' empty egg cases back of the stage curtain, and hunded there out for present use.

Rev. L. S. Hughson, Baptist pastor, presided at the meeting. On this platform with him, in addition to the speaker of the evening, Rev. Dr. Potts of Toronto, were Rev. Dr. Henderson, Strike spirit roberts and a number of prominent local temperance workers. After the singing of the hymn, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," Rev. Henderson led in prayer.

Chairman Hughson, in his opening remarks, said the significance of the occasion was a cheering proof of the growing sentiment among people in the important question now before the province of Ontario. He wished to give a testimony to the excellence of the Liquor Act of 1902. It was a Temperance Act based on that opinion, having based the views on the opinions of the legislature and elsewhere, but such laws by themselves were not of the best carefully, and was now heartily in favor of Tran, it was a good thing for a man to import liquor in certain quantities for his own use, and for his own use, and in so far it was not a prohibitory law. He expressed the largest measure of trust we have in the Premier of this province. He was particularly impressed with the importance of the machinery for enforcing the law. A penalty ranging from $200 to $1,000 for a first offence was provided for the treatment for a second offence. Now I understand that the liquor influence and was not likely to force little action. The Temperance law had not been enforced, but he considered much that the Premier was had not observed it as a matter of self-preservation. He had was persistently violated and young lads were early reduced to drunkenness. The influence of liquor they must have felt that the whole strongest public opinion against them. That it had been so accepted the very best men, he thought, should.

Dr. Potts was then introduced by the Chairman. He was given a hearty reception and spoke in his usual forceful and eloquent manner. He was no stranger, he said, to a temperance platform, having delivered his first temperance speech when he was 15 years of age, and it had been published in a North of Ireland paper. The reading of the occasioned him more vanity than any regret of his speeches he had since read.

The cause of temperance had been one of evolution. One of the first temperance measures was that on the other side had as a proviso that a man might get drunk on the Fourth of July, and New Year's day, at weddings, But that day had long since passed.

One important thing about the Ferguson Act was that it was not a party political question, and Grit and Tory could get together and register their votes irrespective of party lines in this legislation. It was that the act was not a measure of a third party, but was a straight proposition from the Government in power. The rev. gentleman said that he had no faith in third parties; he regarded them as obstructionists. Many people were not pleased with the act, and said they would not vote for the Premier in this district. He regarded them as temporarily made, and pointed out the best that could be given at the present time. It had been tried and found to be legally perfect by the highest court in the land, and the changing of clause would might prejudice results in cases of litigation and trouble. The time for criticism of the act was passed, the time for action was at hand.

If the cause of temperance was defeated on Monday, the 3rd, the speaker said, he would be hearers that the friends of temperance would simply start afresh and never rest until a prohibitory measure was enacted in the Province. He was surprised at the liquor men referring to the other side of the question. Prohibitists thought there was no "other side" to the liquor traffic. He wished that the women had a right to vote on the question, for they would see that their fathers, brothers, sweethearts and husbands would be saved from the danger that came from the liquor traffic in the present system. He pressed upon his hearers the responsibility that rested on them in dealing with this question. They were called upon to do something more sacred than the exercise of the franchise, and the highest privilege of citizenship, and he urged upon all the necessity of using their influence in a right direction.

VACCINATION OF BABIES.

Dr. Bryce Makes a Recommendation to the Board of Health.

Dr. Bryce, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, has reported to the Board that the old Vaccination Act, passed in 1863 be repealed, as it is failing to do the work, says the Toronto Star of Thursday. Dr. Bryce suggests that the new act provide for an annual report of all children born in a municipality, by municipal clerks or vital statistics officers, who would be appointed public vaccinators, and report in proper free vaccination to all such children at their homes. The act should further provide that any children surviving at seven years of age vaccinated must not be admitted to any school, public or separate, in the Province; it should, of course, retain the compulsory clause of the present general vaccination during smallpox epidemics.

Dr. Bryce pointed out that the feelings of many are so sensitive that vaccination had been carefully and successfully performed at such periods of children's lives when it would cause the least possible inconvenience, and never the dreadful of an epidemic did not create hasten the demand for vaccine and resulting by such officers would always be fresh and pure, some important points in this delicate operation.

THE TEMPERANCE PROBLEM.

The Post has Been Requested to Publish the Following.

The most appalling factor in the drink problem is that of a moral holocaust, for if anything is proven regarding heredity, it is proven that alcoholic poisoning descends through the second and third, yes, the fourth generations, and there we find by an amount of the poison the spiritual and mental growth of the race is impeded; while the physical powers are lessened and weakened and impaired, and hence all years and on we get moral and spiritual inertia in increasing ratio. Surely the drink problem is that ought to appeal to us, it tells the fearful truth, vote to banish the evil, for the sake of our children, lest we unknowingly be the means of race depend upon the proper solution of the drink problem. Will not the electors wake up and really treat this question with the seriousness it both for Christianity and for the moral welfare of our land.

From the "Drink Problem"—"Let me hold firmly to this, that our duty is not for us to seek the truth, but troubling about results that lie beyond the province of immediate obedience to duty, that is for us, and God, and God, God."

What will the working man have to pay for his drink? First, and chiefly, he will have to pay in the next more or less slowly, and half unconsciously, he must pay away his health, his energy, his clearness of mind, his self-respect, his best, her hopes, his honesty, tenderness, gentleness, the happiness of his family, the claims of his God.

Finally the drink crave sets in and he drinks and he smoothes, asking himself and his poor family to the consequences of his drinking, and he end is the grave of the drunkard.

Lovesick Lookages.

Peterboro Review: Mr. William Macfarlane, Lockmaster at Lovesick, Trent Valley Canal, the steamer traffic was break on the locks opened. The number of rafts locked was 1,000 and passed through the locks during the season, 1,000 tons, the passenger traffic shows a large increase.

Years ago, when Mr. Macfarlane took charge of the lock there was only 100 as that the lake trade is getting to the source of Canada's growing time.

Accident at Lindsay st. Crossing.

On Saturday morning about a o'clock a couple of farmers from Bobcaygeon township were returning home from town. The two were in a carriage, and while crossing Lindsay st. their horse took fright and ran through the Grand Trunk yard, dodging for liberty, throwing the occupants out. The horse was brought to a stand-till after it had gone some little distance. The buggy was badly wrecked but the men escaped injury. This is another incident which goes to prove that gates at that crossing are a necessity, and if it is a little more costly for the G.T.R. to keep them closed the people will come and then the company will be called upon to pay damages.

CRAMPIAN CAMP. S. O. S.

Enjoyable "At Home" Entertainment Last Evening.

About 250 of our citizens attended the annual "at home" of Crampian Camp, No. 40, Sons of Scotland, last Monday in their rooms in the Blackwell block. Mr. Jas. Ferguson, Chief of the local Camp, officiated as chairman. A pleasing program of Scottish songs and recitations was rendered. Mr. E. Campbell and Mr. E. Sackville rendered a duett entitled "Upper Tay and Lower Flow," in almost perfect voice, pleasing audience so much that they responded to an encore. Mr. J. Donald contributed an interesting recitation, and were encored, the latter choosing reading that was very amusing. The Misses Pike sang a sweet duett accompanied by Miss Jessie McLean, in Highland costumes was exceedingly well done, Mrs. Pike sang "Annie Laurie" in a very pleasing manner, and Miss Lizzie Pike recited "Tam O' Shanter," which was well received. Mr. Ferguson sang "Bonnie Dundee" and "Bonnie Lochlomond." Short addresses were delivered by Rev. T. W. Macmillan and Mr. McSwayn, touching on the Scottish character and the Sons of Scotland. Photographic selections from Scotland were brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

CONGREGATIONAL RE UNION.

A Pleasant Time Spent in St. Pauls' Schoolroom Last Evening.

St. Pauls' Congregational Sunday school was well filled last Monday, the occasion being the annual re-union of that school and congregation. There were a number of strangers present who are members of the church elsewhere, and there were many also of the old folks. The early part of the evening was devoted to social chat and making the strangers acquainted with the older parishioners. After this a very pleasant tea was served, instrumental music was rendered. Rev. Mr. Sproat gave a bible prayer, and then called on Miss Jennie Pike for instrumental, which was well received.

Mr. Bryans, one of the church wardens, gave a short address on behalf of the congregation and Fairies Wright for the reception of strangers in their appeal. He said $70.00 was contributed Sunday last towards the debt, an amount much larger than usual. The mortgage on the church is now down to $8800, and Sunday's collection will further relieve it.

Mr. Marsh gave a vocal selection, which was well rendered. Mr. Pelch, who is a very popular entertainer, gave a very pleasing selection, responded to an encore by giving a reading, a very amusing one. Short addresses by Revs. Creighton, J. Belleville and Starkey, of Fenelon Falls, and Perkins, town, brought the program to a close. Refreshments were then served by the ladies, after which the crowd dispersed.

BITUMINOUS MACADAM PAVEMENT

Toronto's City Engineer Thinks Highly of London's New Paving Material.

The Toronto Evening News of Thursday refers at length to the paving material inspected some weeks ago at London by Mayor Hall and Town Engineer Rowan, and from a sample of which was our exhibition in our town, and now in Gregory's drug store window:

The City Engineer is such impressed with the new material for a pavement that is being laid on some of the street so London, Ont. It is known as the bituminous macadam method, and the company using it is the Trinidad Asphalt Co., of Toronto City. One pavement constructed by the company has been down for a year and another about a mile long had gone down. Mr. Frank Gordon, London's City Engineer, was very pleased with the result of the parlar.

The new pavement is constructed of a patented material, called bituminous macadam. The stone used is rolled with several layers of coarse and fine stone, to a depth of six inches, and the company guarantees it will outlive three ordinary pavements, and last for thirty years. The pavement is not affected by frost, and is free of dust and like the best of macadam, is impervious to water. It is quiet, it not very noisy, and standard. The cost is about $2.00 a yard, and that when the roadway is torn up. Mr. Gordon said that it is far ahead of all the advantages of tar macadam, and the Toronto engineer said it is splendid for a grade, the fine stone surface being a good deal like a good footing.

One thing that particularly impressed the city's representative was that the material was made from well, which it measured all the material and the exactness of an apothecary's shop.

The cost of the pavement is about $2.00 a square yard, which is the same as it is now built. The City Engineer will visit London and make a trial on one of the city streets.

There is a Lesson in This.

A Toronto exchange tells the following story of a young man who recently lost in Toronto that was for years owned by a childless couple, they loaded it for the best farm in front frontage, and rented it for enough to pay interest and taxes. As the years went by the farm became valuably in value, but the old couple would not sell, and worked laboriously as they had done before. Gradually they became a wealthy farmer, but they lived in the same house, and worked as before. Finally the value of their vacant corner lot became so high that it was worth more than the farm, and they were already old, and they could not enjoy the money. In fact, Yet late in life, they refused to sell the farm, and left it to their nephew, who, they thought, would be a strong-till after it had gone some little distance. The buggy was badly wrecked but the men escaped injury. This is another incident which goes to prove that gates at that crossing are a necessity, and if it is a little more costly for the G.T.R. to keep them closed the people will come and then the company will be called upon to pay damages.

DR. JOSEPH PARKER DEAD.

Minister of the City Temple of London Has Passed Away.

London, Nov. 29.—Dr. Joseph Parker, minister of the City Temple, who had been seriously ill for some time past, died yesterday afternoon.

The eminent divine had been ill only two weeks at his home, 4 Lyndhurst Gardens, Hampstead, N. W. At first some hopes for his recovery were entertained, but a few days ago dropsy set in and all chance of his ending was lost.

For more than thirty years Dr. Parker had held the pulpit of the City Temple. The vigor and eloquence of his sermons made him honored and far-famed, and he had never hesitated in his sermons to criticise the highest in the land. At times his censure had been directed even at the reigning sovereign.

During the preliminaries for the coronation that was postponed by King Edward's illness Dr. Parker created considerable by his condemnation of the extravagance and pomp that characterized the preparations. On other occasions his powerful voice had been raised in denunciations of national errors or sins.

The divine, who was 72 years old, was a native of Hexham, Eng. Previous to his pastorate at the City Temple he had been at Banbury, Oxford, and at Cavendish Chapel, Manchester, and stood high in the London and National Congregational Unions.

Among his published works are "Ecce Deus," "The Paraclete," "The Ministry of Jesus," "Ad Clerum," "The Preacher's Life," "None Like Him," "Christian Profession in a Pagan Mirror," and many others.

SIX THOUSAND LAND GRANTS.

First Batch to the Veterans Under the 1900 Land Grant.

Toronto, Nov. 29.—There were sent out from the Crown Lands Department yesterday afternoon over six hundred certificates to veterans entitled to land grants under the act passed for that purpose in the session of 1900. According to the certificate is a circular giving full information as to the method of procedure for the selection of lots, as well as a statement showing the townships in which locations can be found. The number of the Crown Lands agent, under whose direction each of these townships is in readiness to serve. The area from which locations can be made, will be even larger than that at first intended, as stated by, by Order-in-Council, unclaimed Crown Lands, and Clergy lands that are now open for settlement, and which may be found available for settlement from.

The six thousand certificates sent out yesterday do not comprise all those who will be entitled to land, as a good many cases in connection with which there is some question as to whether they come within the provisions of the act have yet to be settled.

Then now applications are still coming in, averaging about 50 per day or 20 a day being received. The number of applications that will be made cannot be made expires on Dec. 31.

THE BREMNER SHOOTING.

Prisoner Found Guilty of Shooting Mutant —Will Be Sentenced Friday.

Toronto, Nov. 29.—Police Magistrate Peter Ellis took up yesterday afternoon the case of Harry Bremner, alias High Explosives, alias High Johnson, alias Mike Griffin, charged with shooting on November 21 shot Charles Mutant with intent to cause him grievous bodily harm, and conducted the prosecution. J. G. Godfrey appeared for the defence. The prisoner admitted that he shot at Harry Bremner, and his address was 250 Church street, Toronto.

He was also charged with shooting at John Shaw with intent to do grievous bodily harm, on the same charge he elected to be tried summarily, and pleaded not guilty.

The evidence given was simply the story which appeared in the papers at the time of the shooting, with the exception of that of the prisoner himself. He admitted that he did not shot Mutant, nor had he shot at Shaw.

The magistrate, after hearing some argument, recorded a verdict of guilty, and remanded the prisoner until Friday next for sentence.

Accident on T.H. & B.R.

Hamilton, Nov. 29.—An eastbound freight train on the T. H. & B. R. met with an accident early yesterday morning near Waterdown. WANTS HOER GOLD BARS.

Great Britain After Dr. Leyds and Kruger For $2,500,000.

Berlin, Dec. 1.—The British Government is demanding the return of gold bars, making inquiries concerning a shipment of Boer gold to the value of $650,000, which it is supposed have been brought to this country from South Africa on the steamer Herzog last night. The bars are destined for Professor Delitzsch, friend of Dr. Leyds, and, as it is presumed, had been taken from the Northern Transvaal.

Great Britain will endeavor to legally attach the gold if it can be located on the ground that she is entitled to the sum, which is the indemnity because she has assumed responsibility for the welfare of the country, including the bonds issued prior to the war.

Gen Botha's reply to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain, that the late Government had not acted towards the strictly true, as far as he knew, but he would investigate Mr. Chamberlain's letter Gen. Botha learned, according to the information he received from Pretoria, that Mr. Kruger and Dr. Leyds have in their possession $2,500,000.

Gen. Botha requested them to turn over the gold for the benefit of the Boer people, but Dr. Leyds refused, stating that the money was to be used in upholding the Boer national cause in the future. Gen Botha has notified Dr. Leyds that unless the gold is given up legal proceedings will be taken against him.

Kruger Wants to Go Back.

London, Dec. 1.—General Schalkburger and Messrs. Wessels and Wermans, the former Boer delegates, called on Mr. Kruger. The latter gave to the bearer of a letter from Mr. Chamberlain, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain asking that Mr. Kruger be allowed to return to South Africa. Mr. Chamberlain said that he had been refused permits to proceed to the Transvaal Colony, but they hoped the prohibition will be rescinded after their arrival in Cape Colony.

Thinning Out Foreigners.

London, Dec. 1.—The Government has thrown further difficulties in the way of intending emigrants to South Africa. The colonial office announces that after Jan. 1 no foreigners will be allowed to the Transvaal or to the Orange River Colony will be admitted to England or otherwise accepted as British subjects. Intending passengers are advised to ascertain beforehand by writing whether they are likely to be permitted.

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 1. The steamer Majestic, bound down from Duluth for a certainty that the wreck previously reported on the rocks above Michipicoten is the Hannockburn. The tug Sarnia left for the scene of the Company's fleet has been sent to her aid.

Work on the railway is being pushed rapidly, and the road will be completed by being done all along the line and about 1,000 men are on the pay roll of the contractors.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

We believe it will only require a hint to our subscribers, letting them know that we are in immediate need of money, to have their ready response. We are now owing out a number of accounts for subscription, most of which are for small amounts, but as the greater part of our income is made up of such amounts, when a number withhold payment we are subject to very serious inconvenience.

We have something good for subscribers paying in advance for next year, but as our supply is necessarily limited on account of its cost it will be to your best to those paying in advance.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

At last night's meeting of Council Ald. McDiarmid made a grave accusation affecting the honor and integrity of a servant of the town—Commissioner J. M. Chalmers—which demands and will receive careful investigation before the County Judge. Mr. McDiarmid explained to Council that he moved in the matter with regret, but certain knowledge having come to him he would be untrue to his oath of service if he suppressed his information, and he would therefore ask that the charges be subjected to the fullest enquiry.

Mr. Chalmers is charged with malfeasance, breach of trust and dishonesty in relation to his duties and obligations to the municipality, with being improperly interested in certain contracts for granolithic sidewalks let by the town, with the improper use of property and material of the town in other works, etc., etc., any one of which would in itself constitute a grave accusation. The enquiry will be sweeping in its nature, if carried out on the lines of the resolution, and we hope Mr. Chalmers may emerge from the ordeal with his reputation unscratched. If so he will owe Ald. McDiarmid a debt of gratitude for having led up to his vindication.

Carelessness Endangers Life.

Messrs. Joe Landry and Ernie Grassard, employees in the G.T.R. yards, got a scare the other day that made their hair stand on end. They were underneath a car, lying across the track, fitting some nuts onto bolts and making other repairs, when, despite the fact that warning flags were displayed on the car, the shunter came down and moved this car along with several others. The two men jumped from underneath in time, but if they had remained too seconds longer another fatality would have occurred. This is an incident which ought to prove that some of the employees are a little careless in observing the G.T.R. rules. Since then Landry has quit the G.T.R., and taken a position with Mr. W. J. Corron, Mr. Hurley's successor.

RAILWAY FATALITY

C. T. R. FIREMAN KILLED AT VICTORIA JUNCTION.

The Unfortunate Man was Underneath His Engine Extinting a Paint Fire in the Fire Box When the Engineer Pulled Ahead.

A most distressingly sad accident happened about 5.30 a.m. Saturday at Victoria Junction, on the outskirts of the town, when a man named Jos. Barnes, of this town, formerly of North Toronto Junction, lost his life. The unfortunate man was a fireman in the employ of the G.T.R. Early this morning he was called to go on a double-header train bound for Midland. This train pulled out at 5.23 in charge of Conductor R. Greenbury, Mr. J. Storey being engineer on the first engine, No. 114, and Mr. J. Oakdile, the engineer on the second, No. 487. At Victoria Junction a stop was made to allow the conductor to book the time of his arrival at that point. While waiting Barnes, who was fireing for Engineer Storey, informed the latter that the poker had got caught in the grate of the fire-box and it would be necessary for him to go under the engine to shove it back. It appears that Storey told Barnes to go and tell the engineer of the second train that he was going under the engine, and that he failed to do so. While Barnes was underneath the engine he (the) moved and the poor fellow was run over the large wheels passing over his head, one leg and one arm, amputating the latter two and killing him almost instantly. Deceased was only about twenty two years of age and had been in the service of the G.T.R. for about five months coming to Lindsay from Allandale. Previous to this Barnes was a fireman on the C.P.R. running from Toronto. He parents reside in North Toronto Junction. His father is a member of the G.T.R., and is a very popular official. The crew of conductor Greenbury's train, in addition to the engineers named, where Fireman Geo. Cowie, Brakeman Geo. Harrison and G. Graham, and deceased.

Coroner Burrows summoned a jury at 2 o'clock, but on account of several of the witnesses being out of town, the inquiry was adjourned till 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The Verdict.

The finding of the jury was "That the late Jos. Barnes came to his death by accident on the morning of Nov. 29th, while he was engaged as a fireman on a double-header train going north from Lindsay." It does not find any fault with the train crew and exonerates them from any blame, but the jury were of the opinion "that Barnes came to his death through the double-header system, and that the C.T.R. should discontinue the double-header system, as there appears to be more accidents happening and loss of human life from the said system than there is from any other cause known to the jurymen, consequently we do largely condemn the running of double-headers as strong as we can." To this intelligent verdict was affixed the signature of Thos Connolly, foreman.

How to Get Rich:

Take a quantity of silica costing one-fourth the price of oil; mix it with oil, and sell the compound to the public at the price of pure oil; offer "prizes" with the compound to make it sell. It is such a compound the public get when they buy common soaps. In Sunlight Soap—Octagon Bar—the public buy a pure and well-made soap. Sunlight Soap reduces expense by prolonging the life of the articles washed with it, which is much more profitable to the public than common soaps with "prizes." 204

THE CATTLE DISEASE

Government's Instructions to Collectors of Customs.

A MILLION TO STAMP IT OUT

How the Canadian Order Was Viewed—Cabinet Meeting Called at Request of Minister of Agriculture to Deal With Various Interests That Have Cropped Up—Disease Is Widespread.

Ottawa, Dec. 2—The action taken by the Department of Customs at the instance of the Minister of Agriculture prohibiting the importation of cattle into Canada from the six New England states because they are infected with the foot and mouth disease, is explained in a circular by the Commissioner of Customs to collectors at the four ports and customs stations ready to follow.

"You are instructed that the importation of cattle, sheep and swine from the six New England States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut is prohibited on account of disease. Shipments of cattle, sheep or swine originating or passing through any of these six New England States since November 30, 1902, are therefore not to be delivered into Canadian ports.

"This order, it will be observed, prohibits the importation of cattle through by the C.P.R. From the Northern ports of St. John, N.B., inasmuch as for a very short distance the cattle pass through the State of Maine. Stockmen will be at first disposed to think but withdrew their protest when it was explained to them that it was not an exception even in a route so obviously secure against infection, and confusion and distrust in cattle circles in England, with results possibly disastrous to the Canadian cattle trade.

Another relaxation in regard to the order of the Department of Agriculture announced that the steamer vessels bound to Canadian ports was not to be affected. Agents of steamships sailing from Boston and Portland to complete cargoes by taking cattle at St. John, N.B., were advised of the Government yesterday, but action had already been taken upon it, ing a reply to Hon. Sidney Fisher's challenge of Saturday, notifying the British Board of Agriculture of the action taken by the Government at Ottawa to prevent communication of the disease to Canadian cattle.

As the report of the Minister of Agriculture a Cabinet council will be held this afternoon at which the questions affecting the C.P.R. and other transportation companies will be referred to, will be dealt with. Meanwhile the Minister of Agriculture, enforcement of the customs order will be left to give the Intercolonial Railway the business of transporting cattle from Montreal to St. John or Halifax, as the ports of Boston and Portland are closed as points of importation for live stock.

Will Cost $1,000,000.

Chicago, Dec. 2—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, who left here for home to attend the International Live Stock Exhibition, said regarding the outbreak of cattle disease in Massachusetts:

"My latest report from the infected district is that the disease is at a standstill. The most report stands the number of man I shall send to New England. Two hundred men will go. Before many days shall pass, I hope, there will be several hundred veterinary surgeons in the field. Nothing is left undone that can be instructed to inspect every cow, horse, sheep, etc. I believe we shall need three or four hundred men to root out the disease. Congress will be asked for an appropriation to cure the disease permanently. I intend to ask for at least $1,000,000. Secretary Wilson left for Washington last night.

Reports Not Reassuring.

Boston, Dec. 2—The Cattle Bureau of the Agricultural Department began yesterday a systematic and extensive inspection of the cattle reported as having the foot and mouth disease, the prevalence of which in New England has caused an embargo on traffic in cattle, sheep and hogs. Reports from the agents came in which were not considered reassuring. Dr. Pearson, the agent representatives found fifty cases in Berkshire County. Reports of infection came from Worcester, Middlesex, Hampshire and East Bridgewater.

A herd of Holstein-Friesians, in Hopkinton, was found to be infected.

Spoke in Canada's Behalf.

Chicago, Dec. 2—Secretary James Wilson delivered the closing address, as it was last night at the new Live Stock Exchange Building of the stockyards. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture, spoke in behalf of the stock raisers of Canada.

Pioneer Lumberman Dead.

Ottawa, Dec. 2—William Mackey, one of the pioneers of the lumber trade in the Ottawa Valley, died here early yesterday morning. He was a millionaire. His money is said to be largely invested in the lumber trade and in bank deposits. He took little or no interest in public affairs. He leaves three sons and a daughter. He deceased was 85 years of age.

BANNOCKBURN GONE.

The Tug Boyston Could Find No Trace of Her—No Longer Hope That Crew of 20 Is Alive.

Buffalo, Dec. 2—A Special to The Express from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., says: There is no longer any hope for the safety of the propeller Bannockburn and her crew of twenty men. The death knell to the hopes of the owners and relatives of the crew was sounded yesterday, when a despatch was received from the captain of the tug Boyston stating that he had searched the entire lake where the missing vessel was believed to have stranded. No trace of the boat was discovered. It now seems certain that the wreckage found by the propeller Bannockburn in the middle of Lake Superior marked the grave of the vessel and crew in the waters of Lake Superior reach their greatest depth at that point, it is probable that none of the bodies will ever be recovered, as the lake never gives up its dead. What awaits beyond the disappearance of the big steel boat beneath the waves will never be known, but a broken rudder, a break in the machinery or a loosened seam might have resulted in this, the greatest loss of the season of navigation on the Great Lakes.

Officials Still Hope.

Kingston, Dec. 2—The anxiety regarding the whereabouts of the steamer Bannockburn is still intense. The officials are still hopeful.

St. Catharines Anxious.

St. Catharines, Dec. 2—The fate of the missing steamer Bannockburn is the subject of very great anxiety here, interest than it was last week, from the fact that Capt. Alexander Dawson, the well-known marine engineer, learned for the first time that his son, Joseph Dawson, a young man, 21 years of age, was in all probability a fellow sufferer in the fatal wreck.

The continued absence of authentic news from the missing craft causes great depression at Port Dalhousie.

LOST WITH HER CREW.

The Charles Hebard Wrecked and Sunk in Lake Superior.

Sault Ste. Marie, Dec. 2—The steamer Hebard, bound down from West Superior for Lake Erie ports under command of Capt. George Ryan, is reported ashore at Copper Point, Lake Superior, by the tug Tragst of the Algoma Steamship Line, this port.

The Hebard went ashore Sunday night during a gale and a snowstorm. She had three schooners, lumber laden, in tow, but all broke loose. Two of them are anchored in Lake Superior, in the vicinity of the wrecked steam barge. The other one is supposed to be out on the lake.

The Hebard carried a crew of twenty-two men and one woman, all of whom are supposed to be lost.

The crews of the anchored schooners are all safe.

Steamer Goes Ashore.

Ottawa, Dec. 2—The Department of Marine announces that the steamer M. J. Foley went ashore at Pouchie Cape, near Yarmouth. The captain and crew were saved.

SUICIDE AT OAKVILLE.

Banker Thomas Howarth Shot Himself in His Office Monday Afternoon.

Oakville, Dec. 2—Thomas Howarth of the banking firm of Andrew & Howarth, shot himself between 12.30 and 1 o'clock yesterday and died two hours later. The shooting occurred at the bank; a daughter of Mrs. Maude Howarth, being the only witness.

It is a clear case of suicide. Mr. Howarth appeared to have been greatly worried over business difficulties, and for some days he had been in a very nervous condition.

Deceased was in his 52nd year. He leaves a widow and three sons, Rowland Howarth, of the Ontario Bank, Toronto; Arthur Howarth, of the banking firm of Andrew & Howarth, and Miss Maude Howarth.

Badly Hurt in Hamilton.

Hamilton, Dec. 2—The corner of Main and Hughson streets was the scene of a serious accident yesterday afternoon. While driving a team of horses, Samuel Goodale, who lives on East Barton street, was thrown from his wagon and in turning to look at a dog which was following at his heels came into collision with a buggy driven by Mr. S. M. Cunningham of the Kuntz Dewing Company. The unfortunate man was thrown right under the horses feet, and the horses becoming frightened brought down one of his fractured ribs, and a bad bruise on the young man. Goodale received terrible scalp injuries, and his face was badly cut. He is in a critical condition.

A Young Man Wanted.

Montreal, Dec. 2—A well-known young man has gone wrong. A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Joseph Arthur Goulden, who changed $1,200 worth of five dollar bills at the Bank of Montreal for United States currency and left Montreal for parts unknown. Goulden was entrusted agent at the Canadian Pacific station at St. Lambert.

Carter Pleads Guilty.

Kingston, Dec. 2—At the Police Court yesterday morning, Carter, the swindler, was charged before Magistrate Farrell, and charged with obtaining money by false pretences, cheque. He pleaded guilty, and was remanded for sentence in order that inquiries may be made regarding his past record.

Horse Knocked Up at Tweed.

Tweed, Dec. 2—High Constable Duffin of Belleville arrived here last evening, bringing with him Jas. Oliver, who is accused of attempting to murder Albert Sandwell. The prisoner was placed in the lockup for the night, and the preliminary hearing will be held this morning.

Toronto, Nov. 28—Bets were freely made to-day at 5 to 4 that Ed Carry would defeat Billy Ryan at the Crescent Club's final show of the season, which will be held. Both men have trained here and are said to be in perfect condition.

HE ADMITS "TIPPING."

Mr. Sutherland, M. P. P., at the South Oxford Election Trial.

YOUNGS CHANGES FIRST STORY

Now Denies That He Was Present on the Date Named—Says He Was Promised $25 to Stick to His First Story—The Personal Charge Against Mr. Sutherland Investigated—The Argument To-Day.

Woodstock, Dec. 2—The South Oxford election trial re-opened yesterday afternoon with one witness, Abraham Youngs, who was on the stand at the earlier session a month and a half ago, denying the correctness of the statement he had then given. He testified then that he was present at the Queen's Hotel bars in Tillsonburg when Donald Sutherland, now M.P.P., was alleged to have given Richard Lloyd a dollar. On the stand yesterday he denied that he was present.

Messrs. Peck and Lloyd, he swore, had come to him and persuaded him that he was in the barn, which, on thinking it over, he had begun to think conclusion that he was not. George Sutherland had seen Lloyd at Wood's stock and told him that if he stuck to his story there would be two tens and five in a week or thereabouts.

The witness was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Mr. Watson, who afterwards called George H. Ross, who swore that he saw Abraham Youngs in the barn on the date in question.

William Anderson testified that he had also seen him there. Richard Lloyd was also called in rebuttal.

A McNabb foreman on the M.C.R., which railway Young worked, swore that the latter had not been absent from his duties any day in May. George Brown, a fellow employe of Youngs, vouched for this.

Edward McKechnie, insurance agent of Tillsonburg, told how, on passing the hotel barn, he had been approached by Lloyd that Donald Sutherland had given him fifty cents. But, he had added, Mr. Sutherland's horse had been in the stable and had been cleaned, both at night, and in the morning. He had asked Lloyd if Mr. Sutherland had said anything about voting, and had received a negative answer.

William Ferguson, Conservative scrutineer, had given Lloyd at a polling booth and afterwards had told him that he was sorry he had received no money at the election.

Edward Law swore that Lloyd had told him that he had voted for the Liberal candidate because the Conservatives had been aware.

When served with a subpoena, Lloyd swore he did not know what his evidence was wanted for.

Harry Spanbugh deposed that Lloyd had told him Sutherland had not given him a tip.

Mr. Sutherland's Evidence.

Donald Sutherland, the respondent, swore that on the day after the meeting he asked Lloyd which side his rig. He could not recall anything that was said at the time. He did not say: "Here is a dollar, vote for me, and it will be all right." He never asked Lloyd for his vote or paid him anything for his vote. It was quite likely he gave Lloyd a tip. He did not remember seeing Abraham Youngs or Pritchard in the barn. He had several times been at the Queen's Hotel. He could not remember whether he had given Lloyd tips in April, 1902, and on the 20th of May. He could not remember what was said the day after the meeting, but had said what he thought he would have remembered it. He gave Lloyd money, but could not remember when. It was quite possible that there were two men in the door of the barn during his talk with Lloyd. He would not contradict paying Lloyd 50 cents, but he would not pay him a dollar, as that would be an unreasonable amount. He had given tips of ten cents, and might have given tips of five cents. He had given tips of 25 cents, but could not remember when. He had no recollection of paying Lloyd a tip in April, 1902. The evidence in the charge was conclusive. He was willing a brief statement of counsel will be heard this morning.

Sources from London.

Montreal, Nov. 28—The Star cables from London says: The heavy fall of Grand Trunk is attributed to provincial liquidation, which is taken to mean unloading on the part of shareholders who doubt the wisdom of the extension to the Pacific. Canadian Pacific's friends here say the Grand Trunk's extension is not necessarily to throw the two roads into hostility. It is confidently expected that a new agreement will be reached, adopting conciliatory points.

CASTRO KNUCKLES UNDER.

Will Pay the Claims of Germany and Great Britain.

Berlin, Dec. 2—President Castro of Venezuela handed, probably on Thursday last, to the German Minister at Caracas, a written acceptance of part of Germany's claims, sufficiently comprehensive to delay the presentation of a joint demonstration by Germany and Great Britain, if not rendering it altogether unnecessary. It is also understood that Great Britain's demands will be satisfied. Foreign Secretary Von Richtofen, and the British Foreign Secretary, Lord Lansdowne, are now in correspondence over the Venezuelan change of front.

President Castro tried by every means to keep Great Britain and Germany apart in discussing the settlements, intimating on occasions that one thing and then another. Germany's demands were into a general agreement with Great Britain to exact a settlement, jointly, she will not make a separate agreement. Consequently the two powers may yet conclude to "settle" differences. President Castro's qualified offers of peaceful submission to Venezuela.

The German cruisers Amazone, Ariadne and Niobe continue fitting out at Kiel for prolonged absence.

SHOT AT HIS PUPILS.

Gulf Constable Arrests William Pepper After Exciting Chase.

Galt, Nov. 29—Two burglary suspects were sighted on Samuelson street, in the outskirts of the city, about 6 o'clock yesterday morning. On being challenged by Policeman Grayson they immediately took to their heels, going in the direction of Hewitson's Carriage Works. Constable Thomas Caldwell sprinted after him. Caldwell was ordered to halt, outran one of the men, who turned and fired two shots at Caldwell. Caldwell grappled with the highwayman and overpowered him after a short struggle.

In the meantime his companion, who is said to be more dangerous than the well-known "Foxy Smith," and who has given the Canadian Pacific officials and as many alias, got away, as usual. The prisoner, who gave his name as William Pepper, aged 18, confessed to being a native of Stratford, was charged before the police magistrate yesterday afternoon with discharging a revolver in a public place, and was remanded until this morning.

THE OPENING OF ST. PAUL'S

17TH ANNIVERSARY WAS OBSERVED LAST SUNDAY.

Interesting Services Morning, Afternoon and Evening—Large Gatherings—Congregational Re-union This Evening in the Schoolroom.

Sunday was the 17th anniversary of the opening of St. Paul's church. Rev. R. MacNamara, Rector of St. James' church, Preston rode down from Preston and was the preacher at both services, which were largely attended. At the morning service Mr. MacNamara, who is a very pleasing speaker, gave an interesting discourse, taking his text from the 9th chapter of St. Luke, 59th and 60th verses, "And he said unto another, follow me. But he said, Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father. Jesus said unto him, let the dead bury their dead, but go and preach the kingdom of God." The rev gentleman spoke of the duties of Christ in dealing with men. His words "Follow me," were very striking and impressed his congregation. Christ expressed thought and sound judgment. He wanted the Samaritans to follow him but he knew it meant their fighting his battles, the entry into a life of self-sacrifice, and entering a new work. There are lots of men who would follow Christ, but don't. They say their business, or their home, or their family, or their young men are required for the ministry. Young men are needed more than ever for that profession, many of them are lost to the church because they think they can be doctors but they can be lawyers. Parents seem to think their sons have not the ability to be ministers, but would be good enough if they had the ability. Christ knew that there are some were not qualified for other professions. Moses or St. Paul were not qualified for their work, but God made them. In conclusion Rev. Mr. MacNamara said it gave him great pleasure to revisit St. Paul's congregation after a long absence. He congratulated the congregation on the progress made during the last three years, and was glad that the number that were prayerless had been reduced—he hoped that the good work would go on. Mr. Bassell sang the solo in the anthem, which was taken from the 23rd Psalm while the offertory was being taken up—she rendered, "Lord, hear thy very."

The Evening Service.

In the evening Rev. MacNamara took his text from 18th Psalms, 6th verse, "He sent from on high, he fetched me, he took me out of the waters." He said children are neglected at home, but not so they would crow up as Christians. They should be taught by their parents to love God. In many cases they are neglected at home, but sent to Sunday School for the Church to assume responsibility. He spoke of the Ark of the Covenant, and the high priest, and the dedicated King David had before it was finally placed in Mount Sion. It would have been a calamity if the Ark of Covenant with the ten commandments written on the tablets had not been found there. It is a still greater calamity, for those of the present day, if the godly of the present day leave lives. Rev. Mr. Marsh said like Mr. Peterson, he had served in the services. At the conclusion of the service Mr. Bassell sang "Beneath a Sheltering Cheeth in every pleasing manner. The collection taken up at the morning and afternoon services, amounted to $20 and was contributed by the Parish Workers and $33 by the Sunday School. It was said that ten or twelve years ago the interest was paid on a mortgage of $800 now none of the present time. After Sunday's collection the interest was only a little less. He was glad it was being paid, and he hoped the time would soon come when the church would be free of debt. The congregational re-union of the congregation will take place in the schoolroom and a program will be rendered and addresses delivered by some of the church who are stranger to town are cordially invited.

THE RUMSELLER'S BOAST.

By Rev. C. A. Braddock.

Defiant I stand, with the law for my shield,
And with license in hand, as a weapon to wield,
I'll carve out the temperance cranks in the land,
I contend for my rights, defiant I stand.

By vote of the council I'm licensed to sell,
And the people, by voting, constituted as such;
They have sold me the right and have nothing to say,
While the law may demanded it I cheerfully pay.

The widow and orphan may sadly complain
That they have been robbed, that their loss was my gain;
Even a lad I have made of some of them die,
My business must pay, for my license is high.

I confess that the trade brings sorrow and woe,
As those who have licensed it very well know;
But people consented it, and plainly declare,
They'll shield me by law, and my guilt they will share.

Alas! That the rumseller's boast is too true,
Alas! That the guiltless of wrong are so few
Our blame of rumsellers is all a pretence,
While we put in their hands the shield of defence.

—Ram's Horn.

SEVERED A MAIN ARTERY.

Serious Mishap to a Lindsay Lady Saturday Evening.

Mrs. Geo. Forster, Lindsay, met with a painful accident at about 6 o'clock Saturday evening. When about to enter the back door of her house she slipped on some ice, and in falling put her hand through a pane of glass in a window close to the door, inflicting a deep wound across the wrist. The main artery and three ligaments were severed and it is no wonder that she would have bled to death. Mr. Foster was out at the time of the accident, but when he was informed of the mishap, ran to Dr. Gillespie's, where he found a man who happened around the corner, which lessened the quick flow of blood. Dr. Gillespie and Dr. Dee Shier, White and Blanchard were summoned, and Mrs. Foster is very ill after the accident, but is a little better to-day.

The First Impression Counts.

Fine printing creates a favorable impression because it is fine printing, and because there is no more graceful, sincere way of convincing the reader that you mean him in earnest. There is no more delicate bit of flattery than a handsome book, catalogue, or circular, or college fall of effect. But on the other hand, the thrifty (or the cheaply printed) booklet, it not only lacks this sort of flattery, but it conveys the impression that the advertiser considers the reader, and his money, indeed, and hastily work to take in a maximum of profit for the minimum of expense, is an evidence of artistic training, and a mastery of the fine points of type, circulated by our business men and others are turned out in our job department.

—Caretaker Scott Mills has been at work for several days getting the rink surfaces levelled in readiness for the curling season.

—The Immigration Department has arranged that there will be special excursions from Toronto to Winnipeg accompanying the Ontario Immigrant curlers who are expected to leave Toronto early in December. A good many of the team are farmers, and it would be a grand opportunity for them to visit particulars in regard to the country's resources. The curlers will spend about a fortnight in the Canadian Northwest, and another fortnight in Manitoba.

Railroad Taxation in Michigan

Heretofore the railways of Michigan have paid taxes on a basis far in percentage on their gross earnings. Under a new law which has just come into operation they will pay taxes upon their actual value. A commission has made a report of the value of all railroads in the state, and this report is now under consideration by the State Board of Tax Commissioners at Lansing. It is announced that the value of railroads in Michigan will be placed by the Commissioners at $200,000,000. The average rate of taxation in State is $15 per $1,000, and the assessment will be made on the property individual, the railway taxes next year will be based on the value of the year 1901 the taxes paid by the railroads were $1,500,000 and it is promised to be a substantial increase under the new law.

Advertising Pointers.

—Every hour spent in bewailing your losses is at sixty minutes worse than wasted. When trade is dull then is the time for the wise man to be most active and most busy. His advertisements, best insertion for trade in all the world, will be more more cunning than ever.

—That it pays to deal with those who advertise is a fact becoming more and more understood by the purchasing public. The advertiser solicits your trade, he quotes the goods at right prices, and invariably is offering bargains in the line you happen to want. The man who does not advertise, ninety-nine times out of ninety hundred, lacks enterprise. He would like your trade and money, but not advantageous to offer you such as the live, up-to-date business man is able to do.

—Publicity is the open sesame to success in any line of business. It pays to advertise. It may be. When a man becomes a fiend, and a lunatic, he can't help but follow the sun of his influence has set. This fiend is the man who has something to sell, and is a bailiff for place. Competition is on every hand, and those who do not use strenuous efforts survive but a short time. Time was when dealers continued their efforts to the employment of criers, or "barkers," before their doors, but the newspapers and other periodicals have made impossible the wicked publicity. The man who has something to sell and fails to appreciate this fact is a back number.

CUT S. KOORY'S THROAT

Calili Abraham Murders a Compatriot at Chesterville.

BOTH THE MEN WERE ASSYRIANS

Abraham Captured With Blood on His Clothes—Story of a Young Nephew of the Murdered Man, Who Witnessed the Deed—The Prisoner Hated and Feared Koory a Good Citizen.

Chesterville, Dec. 1.—Salem Koory, an Assyrian, aged 30, lived in this village with a gaping wound, into which several fingers could be placed, on the left side of the throat. Calili Abraham, a compatriot, is in the lock-up, charged with murder, and there was blood on his clothes, and his compatriot's knife, red and blood stain at the lock up. The motive for the crime has not been ascertained, but it may have been due to a sudden outburst of insanity on the part of the prisoner, who is on the part of intelligence. The scene of the tragedy was a neighbor's house, and a relative, who provided about twenty or thirty pedlers of the same nationality as Koory, sell with articles to peddle about the country. The building was a frame structure of wood. It faces on Main street on the south side of the Elliott House. It was in front of the counter to the right on entering from the street that Koory received the death wound, about 11.30 Saturday night. There were persons present at the time was Koory, Abraham and a nephew of Koory's, aged of the former. On the flat upstairs were Koory's mother and two hundred of the same.

The murdered man's nephew is a bright little lad, who understands, by cannot speak a word of English. His story, as interpreted by his father, is that the lad was sitting down on a chair in front of the counter when the prisoner with Abraham walked behind him. He placed one hand on the lad's shoulder and with the other drew a razor across his throat. Then he ran out of the shop. The uncle put his hand to his neck and said, That man killed me, and then fell into his arms.

Koory had been in Canada seven years, and had taken out naturalization papers. He had only lived in Chesterville for the past three months. He left large orders for dry goods with a Montreal firm, and was prompt in his payments.

Nobody within the boiler room survived to tell the story of the accident, and it may never be known what caused the explosion. "Such a Noise!"

The mother says to herself sometimes, "I can hardly endure it." Then a chill creeps over her as she thinks of the many silent moments she spends alone when children are taken away, and she is glad her children are full of life and body and lusty of lungs.

When a child does not enjoy noisy sports and games there is something wrong, and that something should be found to be a lack of nutrition adequate to the needs of the child. When a child is pale and "weak," digestion is imperfect, and so the nourishment of the body is inadequate.

In such cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery works wonders. It changes puny, fretful children into robust, healthy, happy children. The process by which this change is accomplished is strictly logical. The food we make into blood, is only half digested by most people. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol and is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all narcotic drugs.

A Wonderful Thing.

"I have been troubled with spitting in the morning for several years. Now, Mr. W. D. Benson, of Manchester, Ontario, writes me that I have taken a wonderful thing Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I feel like a new man. I feel as well as I ever did in my life. I have not had a cough with indigestion when I have been using your 'Discovery.' I am 72 years of age. I have lived to see my children grown up and married, and I do so good. He could eat only a little food, and was troubled with sleeplessness. He could make him sick. He could not sit up all day and he could not lie down at night for fear he would cough and choke. He could not walk a mile without stopping and looking if ever one day I could get a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Discovery recommended for indigestion. We bought some of Hoods by a grocer, but I had no faith in Hoods. I got a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Pierce's Pellets. We gave him two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and one vial of the pellets as can be and one vial of the pellets. He has not been sick since. He says he has not been sick a day since and he has been three years since he took Dr. Pierce's medicine."

A Thankful Mother.

Mrs. Mollie Jesset, of Cody, Comanche Co., Texas, writes: "I have been using your Golden Medical Discovery" and Pellets. I have taken two bottles of the Discovery and one vial of the pellets. My little boy was taken with La Grippe, and it settled on his lungs. He was very sick. His tonsils are larged, and when he was two years old we had his throat lanced. We had to do it to save his life. The doctor said if he had not been lanced he would have died. He was in the wind he would be sick and suffocate. Everything we could think of and consulted every physician we saw, but he grew worse. We had to lance his throat nearly six years old (in October, 1902) he was taken with a cough and we thought it was the croup. We gave him the Discovery and the other three were dead, and it seemed to us that if he could live through that night he would go to sleep crying and begging God to take him home. We had to lance his throat and he was well and hearty. We have not had a cold since. We believe that this was the very medicine we needed, and I really believe that if the world buy some of Dr. Pierce's medicine and give it to their children, they would be happy. Mrs. Benson recommended to me the "Golden Medical Discovery" on Friday and she said she would send me a bottle on Saturday. We gave him your medicine three times a day and he improved so fast that we gave him the medicine only twice a day. We gave him the medicine as long as it lasted, and he improved so fast that we thought we would give him a little more time. We gave him two bottles of the "Golden Medical Discovery" and one bottle of the "Pellets." We gave him two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and one vial of the pellets. He has not been sick since.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 28.—A special to The Express from Detroit, Mich., says:

News has just reached this port that the steamer Sylvanus J. Macy was sunk off Port Burwell on the north shore of Lake Erie, in the future southeastern. Sunday morning the day night. It is believed that her crew of 15 men perished.

The steamer had left Buffalo the day before for Detroit, in charge, Mabel Wilson, loaded with coal. The weather was heavy and thick on Sunday, and the Macy had a hard time coaping up on the north shore of the Canadian side of the lake.

Late tow line of the barge was cast off by the crew of the Macy. That was the first that Wilson knew that the Macy was in trouble. Shortly got on the schooner and she headed for Port Burwell. The Macy was gone for shelter and making very heavy weather. As the tugs came in they watched the steamer through the mist and saw her suddenly disappear. She had plunged under the waters.

The suddenness with which the end came precluded the possibility of the crew getting away in the boats. Even in if they had, it is doubtful that boats could have lived in the sea that was running. The fact that no word has been reported from Canadian ports shows that none got ashore safely.

The Mabel Wilson arrived at Amherstburg yesterday afternoon with tidings of the loss of the Macy also reported by the captain of the Mabel Wilson. She passed through five miles of wreckage off Port Burwell. There were parts of the cabin, boats, life preservers and doors.

WITH BOW BENEATH WATER.

Crew Rescued When Death Was Within a Few Feet.

Liverpool, Nov. 28.—The British steamer Brynbhurn, Captain Edwards, from Newcastle, Eng., for Manchester, has arrived here bringing the crew of the Allan line steamship Lucy A. Davis, Captain McKeown, from Montreal, Nov. 14, for Boston, which spring a leak and was abandoned in a weather-beaten condition off Cape Hatteras. The Brynbhurn rescued all the schooner's hands when they were beneath the water. The men have lost all their belongings. The Lucy A. Davis was sighted by the steamer Ulsinia, which arrived here on Nov. 20 from Genoa, Nov. 20, on Nov. 18, in latitude 42.22, longitude 60.07 gon. The Sicilia reported that the schooner was then waterlogged and abandoned and constituted a dangerous obstruction to navigation.

Met Terrible Weather.

Ferrol, Spain, Nov. 28.—The British steamer Chickiado, Captain Sandrson, bound to Hadiana from Fernandina, Fla., via Norfolk, and 19 days out from the latter port, put in at this place yesterday in badly damaged condition. She met with terrel terrific weather on the passage. The vessel had her bridge and boats carried away, and all movable parts of the deck were swept off by the heavy seas.

Steamer Runs Aground.

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 28.—The steamer Aletha, in a big snowstorm, broke a shaft and ran aground off Adolphustown at midnight. She was released yesterday morning by the Calvin Wrecking Company of Kingston and taken to Deseronto.

Not After Canadian Northern.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—Hon. M. Rey, attorney for the Northern Pacific Railway, in the headquarters at Minneapolis, is at the Queen's, accompanying the report that the Hill railroad interests are attempting to secure a controlling of the Canadian Northern. Mr. Rey said: "There is nothing in this report. I know the Northern Pacific has some very close traffic relations with the Canadian Pacific, but I am sure this is as far as it goes. I know that James J. Hill lines appreciate the importance of getting a share of the volume of grain traffic originating in Southern Manitoba and the Canadian Northern not as to controlling the Canadian Northern or trying to, I am sure the Hill company have not figured on such a proposition. The efforts of American corporations to get a slice of the public transportation in Canada have not been sufficiently successful in the past to encourage them in the belief that they will ever be permitted to do so. We find that the Canadians have a way of financing their own lines and reaping the profits of the deals at home."

THE VOLUNTEER RIGS.

Charged for in Advance. Made Livery Hire High in Lennox.

THURSDAY'S EVIDENCE AT TRIAL

Horse Owners Deliberately Overcharge Conservative Candidate Carscallen in Order to Discredit Their Party for Free Rigs on the Day of Election—Several Charges of Treating Fail.

Napanee, Nov. 28.—A goodly number of charges were investigated in the Lennox election trial yesterday, and it is reported that a conclusion will be reached to-day. Judgment in the William-Parkinson charge in the Lennox case was reserved.

The case against Livery case judgment was also reserved. Two livery men swore that they had systematically overcharged the Conservative candidate for rigs, to enough themselves for supplying free rigs on polling day. About half a dozen charges were dismissed, one eight, including charge of treating, were dropped.

In the William-Parkinson charge T. H. Baker, who drove Wilson and Parkinson to the poll, swore that he did not see any money pass between Wilson and Parkinson in the buggy, although he was with them all night. Witnesses were called.

Two witnesses, R. H. Potter and G. H. Williams, swore that they had systematically charged Mr. Carscallen more than he was charged for during the weeks preceding the election, in order to recover compensation for supplying horses free on election day. Victoria Township, Nov. 28.—Hallam's $65.

Richard Fraser, who was Conservative financial agent, both in Lennox and Addington; G. F. Rutan, Liberal agent, and Mr. Pense of the solicitors for respondent, swore that the Conservative Land Purchase Association, but had no knowledge of the expenditure of the money in counts. He knew that Mr. Carscallen was to get the $500 from Torrance, but he had not seen the $200 until the protest was on.

Judge Rose, Mr. Pense and Mr. Rutan swore that they had received, Judge Dorset saying it was rather a delicate question.

Thomas Smith, a young man, deed that the boys had paid $1 to procure a rig on election day, or that he had received any money. Witness was proceeding to question the witness as to who had seen him and the evidence, when Judge Dorset stopped him sharply, saying that he was not trying the corrupt expenditure.

"I think, if your Lordship the circumstance as they are known to counsel," said Mr. Pense, "that it was on a falsing expedition. A great many difficulties have been put in the way of getting evidence."

Judge Dorset said on the charge that John Smith had been paid $1 to procure a rig was received. Smith was hired by Lapp to drive a rig on election day, but was kept busy as a scrutineer. Lapp, Conservative agent and Mr. Morley Wilson's office at the Conservative Theatre, Lapp also swore that he did not see the $200 until the protest was on.

In the afternoon R. T. Jones swore that he was paid for carrying messages by the Conservative Committee rooms on election day.

Charge that Alex Carscallen, a brother of the respondent, had lent $5 to Lewis Hall corroptly was dismissed.

Cordinal Grimshaw swore that he had not paid Lapp anything for his vote. Lapp promised to get him something. Several other election witnesses asked him for payment, but Lapp said he would get it for them yet. Lapp contradicted Grimshaw on evidence, and the charge was dismissed.

A charge that Alex. Hewitt had been paid $5 for his vote was dismissed.

Wm. Reynolds of Adolphustown, swore that he had worked in Marlbora during the harvest of 1901, until nearly the election. When he went to vote his vote was challenged. On the ground that he had been living in the Province during the preceding months. Davis said it was the first time he had taken the oath and voted. He took the oath on his own responsibility. Lapp stated that Davis was scrutineer for Mr. Carscallen. Clapp, as Liberal scrutineer, objected to Reynolds' vote, and Davis said "Don't try to stop the man, he has a good vote." The charge was dismissed.

Judge Dorset said that on election day in Fleming's hotel, Napanee, Hallam was called to vote, W. J. Wilson put down $5 in payment for his lunch and some drinks. Mr. Nelson, Liberal agent, called the bill, McNeil got it, and afterwards gave Hallam $5.

The witness had some rather hard questions to answer. Witness had addressed repeatedly as "my learned friend" and "my good man." When he called Mr. Watson "my learned friend" even the Judges laughed.

Mr. J. Wilson produced the box and explained the occurrence to the Conservative committee room. He had been scrutineer, and handed the $5 to Fleming, who was waiting for his lunch. McNeil grabbed the money and said Mr. Hallam. McNeil was working in Fleming's hotel, and the witness and witness got from Fleming the change and McNeil ran out of the hotel. Mr. Watson did not argue the charge, but said he was sorry.

Eight charges, including one of treating by the respondent, were dropped.

WILL THERE BE A TRIAL?

The Dates For Hearing the Petitions in West York and Addington.

WANT DAMAGES FOR BOYCOTT.

A Suit of Peculiar Interest to Grain Men Entered at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 28.—A suitable was sprung in local grain circles yesterday when Alfred Andrews, acting on behalf of Thomas H. McLennan, and William McLennan, of the firm of McLennan Bros., the firm of Riley, Parker & McVicker, and Joseph P. Graves, all prominent in the grain business of Manitoba, instituted an action for damages against twenty-two grain firms and firms engaged in the grain trade, and comprising practically the number the leading members of the Winnipeg Grain and Produce Exchange.

The defendants named in the plaintiffs' statement of claim are: Thomas H. McMillan, Thomas Sharpe, J. D. Martin Co., Limited, Lindsay and Ferrier, S. Spink, James Carruthers & Co., E. O'Reilly, F. Phillips, Smith & Clark, E. Thompson & Sons, John Lewis, George H. Crown, W. W. Willan, McLean Bros., Robert Muir, Eagle Dairy, Northern Elevator Co., the Dominion Elevator Co., Capelle, Limited, Thos. Sharpe and Alex. Hargraft.

The plaintiffs allege that since Oct. 1, the defendants have conspired and agreed to boycott the plaintiffs, and to refuse to have any dealing with either the plaintiffs or any firms or individuals who have dealings with them, and, that owing to such conspiracy they have suffered great losses, the direct cause of the boycott. The plaintiffs asked that damages to the amount of $25,000 be granted to each of the two firms, McLennan Bros. and Riley, Parker & McVicker and a like amount to Joseph Graves. Andrews also asked that an injunction be issued by the court restraining the defendants from continuing the boycott or continuing conspire to injure the trade of the plaintiffs.

WHOLE IRISH MUTILATION.

Tim Healy Loses Grip a Possible Cabinet Minister.

London, Nov. 28.—An authority on Irish affairs gives the case thus: "The whole Irish situation is now the melting pot. Mr. O'Brien's movements received a check from the interposition of Archbishop Walsh, when he denounced Mr. O'Brien's proposal for a boycotting, which Chief Baron Walls has just pronounced to be a public courts. He also demanded that, when called on, the Irish members should refuse to participate in or support the education bill, which gives the church schools the same standings in its schools, which are now to be state aided.

"Mr. Redmond, the official leader of the Nationalists, stands between Mr. O'Brien's movement and Tim Healy's activity, but to succeed Mr. Redmond must be to a second Mr. Dillon, and he is not this. The whole weight of the Irish Bishops, give to the side of Mr. Healy, who represents more the Irish Catholicism than any other leader, with whom is the Nationalism and more ability. It is probable that Mr. Healy, due to the first break up the Nationalist party. He stands the strongest, and is regaining the leadership of the most industrial section."

Revolt in Santo Domingo.

San Domingo, Nov. 28.—Friday, Nov. 28.—The political situation has been complicated in Santo Domingo by revolutionary movements. Revolts have broken out in the northern part of the Republic. The Dominican Government has adopted severe measures to suppress the revolt, and many arrests have already been made. Gen. Wos Gil and J. J. Pichardo, a former Minister, are prisoners.

Peter Is Satisfied.

London, Nov. 28.—Peter Verigein, the venerable Head of the Russian Doukhobors, who has left Canada, released from Siberia, in an address to the Tolstoisis, has expressed to his co-religionists in Manitoba. He said that the Canadian Government had acted with all possible good-will, leniency and consideration.

One Suit Located.

Berlin, Nov. 28.—The authorities have been at work since the Cross-mann-Hallman case was tried, and two suits of clothes stolen. One was found in the hands of a man in Guelph, and a man named Horn-bach, arrested in Guelph on another charge, is alleged to be implicated.

SUSPENDED THROUGH DISORDER.

German Deputies Give Some of an Unprecedented Character.

Berlin, Nov. 29.—There were storm scenes in the Reichstag yesterday in the Reichstag. After a quiet, calm debate, Dr. Bachem, Centre Party, took the tribune and delivered a speech, filled with more strenuous parliamentary measures. Some of the Socialist members rushed forward as if intending to attack the speaker. Dr. Lieutenant Von Ballestrom put on his hat and left the chair, suspending the sitting. The sitting was resumed later. It is an unprecedented occurrence for the President to suspend a sitting owing to disorder.

The proposals on the tariff bill is according to the Germania, generally accepted as correct, and is as follows: Minimum duty on barley is raised to $1. The minimum duty on cattle and meat is abandoned under pressure of the Agrarian party, and certain duties on manufactures reduced. The Socialist and the members of the Centre Party, applying the surpluses derived from the duties on foodstuffs to the insurance fund for widows and orphans, and the abolition of the urban octroi duties were agreed to. Apart from these the most noteworthy point is that the increases in duties decided on by the Tariff Committee shall be the basis of the next general tariff.

AN IMPORTANT ORDER

British Authorities Close Ports to United States Cattle.

TO STAMP OUT CATTLE DISEASE

Vigorous Methods Adopted in the New England States—Losses Will Be Heavy, But the Sacrifice Must Be Made—The U.S. Demanded This Radical Action — Canada's Action.

London, Nov. 28.—The Board of Agriculture has closed the ports of the United Kingdom against the importation of cattle from Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. The order takes effect Dec. 5. Cargoes arriving in the meantime will be the subject of special investigation.

The announcement that the United States Department of Agriculture had given notice of the establishment of a quarantine of cattle and sheep, etc., in the New England States, and prohibition of the exportation of such animals from Boston until further notice, caused excitement in Liverpool.

The Mersey Dock Board derives a large revenue from the slaughter of Boston cattle at Birkenhead. Manager Lathrages of the board says the restrictions will have far reaching consequences, and that possibly the cargoes of cattle now on their way to England from Boston will be quarantined.

The exclusion of American cattle has caused a feeling almost amounting to consternation in the shipping and cattle trade. Facts are expressed that the intelligence may be expected to have a serious effect on United States ports which would result in a great rise in the price of meat, as only a few steamers have large refrigerator space for meat and cattle. The Board of Agriculture is considering the utmost precautions. The steamer Ivanhoe arrived here with 1,000 cattle from Boston yesterday with a cargo of cattle, which, it was said, was ordered to discharge. The animals were all scrutinized by the board, and no disease was found among them, but they will be re-examined after an interval of 48 hours.

U.S. CABINET BUSY

Secretary Wilson Believes Disease Has Been Eradicated—Quarantine Raised.

Washington, Nov. 29.—At the Cabinet meeting yesterday Secretary Wilson reported the measures which had been taken to suppress the epidemic of foot and mouth disease among cattle in New England. From such information as he has obtained, he believes that the disease has existed for some time, but that it only recently has been contagious. Every effort will be made to stamp it out. The Secretary of Agriculture, Wilson, says it is thought, will prove effective to prevent the spread of the disease to other states. Dr. Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry, will be sent to New England at once.

Quarantine in New England.

Boston, Nov. 29.—The cattle bureau of the State Board of Agriculture has received about 100 inquiries from cattle dealers, fearing the presence of the foot and mouth contagious, which has caused Commissioner of Agriculture to prohibit the exportation of cattle from Massachusetts and to establish a quarantine of cattle, sheep and swine in New England. The action of the State Board, and Secretary Wilson in closing the port of Boston to cattle shipments, is a matter of great importance to transportation companies and to the cattle trade. The serious nature of the infection and the difficulty of preventing it, the step is considered the only one. Concerning the highly contagious character of the disease, Dr. Austin Peters, chairman of the State Board of Agriculture, says:

"Cattle passing over the same road traversed by infected cattle may contract the disease. Only the most stringent quarantine will prevent a spread of the disease. Cattle, sheep and swine, if allowed to continue in transit, which, under ordinary circumstances, aggregates 500 to 700 head of cattle a day. The cattle trade has strived and hoped that the halt in business at this point will prevent the spread of the disease, and materially reduce the prevalence of it.

Disinfect the Cars.

Ottawa, Nov. 29—The serious situation in the Boston cattle market by the outbreak of the foot and mouth disease, and the order of the Agriculture Department, Washington, prohibiting the importation of cattle, sheep and hogs from Boston has been taken note of by the Agricultural Department here.

Dr. Rutherford, chief veterinary inspector for the Dominion, when asked last night what was being done in the matter, said that in the absence of the Minister he was unable to go so far as he would like, but in the meantime, pending Mr. Sifton's return to the capital, instructions had been issued by the Department that all stock cars entering Canada from the United States be cleansed and disinfected at the border.

THE OPENING OF ST. PAUL'S.

17TH ANNIVERSARY WAS OBSERVED LAST SUNDAY.

Interesting Services Morning, After noon and Evening—Large Congregations—Description of Jubilee Tea Evening in the Schoolroom.

Sunday was the 17th anniversary of the opening of St. Paul's church. Rev. R. MacNamara, Rector of St. James' church, Peterboro, Falls and a former curate of St. Paul's, was the preacher at both services, which were largely attended. At the morning service Mr. MacNamara, who is a very pleasing speaker, gave an interesting discourse, taking his text from the 20th chapter of St. Luke, 20th and 60th verses, "And he sent unto another, follow on. But he sent unto them also first to go and bury my father. Jesus said unto him, let the dead bury their dead, but go thou and preach the kingdom of God." The rev. gentleman spoke of the manner of Jesus Christ in dealing with men. His words "Follow me," were very striking and important to all christians. Christ exercised thought and sound judgment. He wanted the Samaritans to follow him to drive the devil out of their fighting battles, the great their fighting dissensions, and carry gold of Christ. There are lots of men who sound the trumpet, but don't. They are taking up their or their family, are required for time, some are required for live ministry, but there are too many offering for that work. Why because they think they lack ability, yet they will go to the professors or lawyers. Parents seem to think their sons have not the ability to be ministers, but would be offended if they said so. Lots of their sons are not qualified for other professions. Some of the sons are not qualified for their work, but God made them. In conclusion Rev. Mr. MacNamara said it gave him great pleasure to revisit St. Paul's congregation after a long absence. He congratulated the congregation on the progress made during the last three years, and was glad that the church debt was being reduced. he hoped that the good work would go on. The Russell song was sung in the anthem, which was taken from Psalms, and while the offertory was being taken up she rendered, "Lord, hear their cry."

The Evening Service.

In the evening Rev. MacNamara took his text from 102nd Psalms, 6th verse, "Lo, we heard of it at Ephrath, we found it in the fields of the wood." He said children should be properly trained at home, so they would grow up and be useful. They should be taught by their parents to love God. In many cases they are neglected at home, but sent to Sunday School for the teacher to assume the responsibility. He spoke of the Ark of the Covenant, spoke of the Ark of the Covenant, and the high priest, and the difficulties King David had before it was finally placed on Mount Sion. He said there was a sabbatify if the Ark of the Covenant, with the ten commandments written on the tablet, had not been placed there, Sun. 1st A still greater sabbatify for those at the present time who are not being properly cared for.

Rev. Mr. Marsh and Rev. Mr. Lewis took part in the services, at the conclusion of the service Miss Russell sang a very pleasing anthem, after which the offertory was taken up, morning and afternoon services. Of this amount, $20 was contributed by the church Workers and $33 by the Sunday School. Mr. Marsh said that for many years ago the interest was between $300 and $350 per year, but at the present time. After Sunday's collection the interest would be little less. He was glad it was being reduced, and he hoped the time would come when the church would be free of debt.

Mr. Lewis announced on behalf of the congregation will take place in the evening, when a program will be rendered and addresses made. Everyone of the church and a stranger to town are cordially invited.

THE RUMSELLER'S BOAST.

By Rev. C. A. Ruddock.

Defiant I stand, with the law for my band,
And with license in hand, as a weapon to wield,
I care not for the temperance cranks in the land,
I contend for my rights, defiant I stand.

By vote of the council I'm licensed to sell,
And the people, by voting, consented as well,
They have sold me the right and have nothing to say,
While the price they demanded I cheerfully pay.

The widow and orphan may sadly complain
That they have been robbed, that their loss was my gain;
How sin I help it, if some of them die,
My business must pay, for my license I pay.

I confess that the crade brings sorrow and woe,
As some have licensed it very well know,
But people demand it, and plainly declare,
They'll yield me by law, and my guilt they share.

Alas! That the guiltless of wrong are so few,
Our blame of rumsellers is all a pretense,
While we put in their hands the shield of defence.

SEVERED A MAIN ARTERY.

Serious Mishap to a Lindsay Lady Saturday Evening.

Mrs. Geo. Foster, Lindsay, met with a painful accident about 7 o'clock Saturday evening. When about to enter the back door of her house she slipped on some ice, and in falling cut her hand through a pane of glass in a window close to the door, inflicting a nasty wound across the wrist. The main artery and three ligaments were severed, and if it had not been for prompt medical assistance she would have bled to death. Mr. Foster was out at the time of the accident, but Mrs. Foster got to Doctor Ryan's house or Dr. Gillespie's, where Mrs. Gillespie was visiting, and the doctor which launched the quick flow of blood, tied the artery and Drs. Ryan, White and Blanchard were summoned. The accident, but is in little better to-day.

The First Impression Counts.

Fine printing creates a favorable impression because it is impressive and artistic, and because it is one more graceful, sincere way of convincing the reader that you know what you are talking about. Poor printing is the reverse, more delicate bit of flattery than a handsome bouquet, but equally effective. But on the other hand, low priced job work is usually plainly shoddy. It not only lacks this subtle flattery, but is likely to get discounts from the advertiser considers the reader a mighty poor specimen if he can be fooled by such trickery in a courteous manner. The best printing is usually the artistic printing, and a majority of people, or certainly the majority of buyers, are business men and others are turned out in our job department.

Railroad Taxation in Michigan

Heretofore the railways of Michigan have paid taxes in the form of a percentage of their gross earnings. Under a new law which has just come into operation they will pay taxes upon their actual value. A commission has made a report of the value of all railroads in the State, and this report is now under consideration by the State Board of Tax Commissioners. It is stated that the aggregate value of the railroads in Michigan is $200,000,000. The assessors have placed it at $100,000,000. The report of the State is $150,000 or $1,000, and this assessment should be increased by an amount sufficient to make the railway taxes next year will be $3,000,000 instead of the year 1901 the amount paid by the railroads were $1,359,119, so we have a prospect of a substantial increase under the new law.

Advertising Pointers.

—Every hour spent in bewailing over "poor" business is a hour spent in worse than wasted. When trade is dull then is the time for the merchant to be his own salesman. Advertise. Big advertisements, best hustlers for trade in all the world, should be the more conspicuous during dull times.

—That it pays to deal with those who advertise is a fact becoming more and more interested by the purchasing public. The advertiser solicits your trade. He has goods in stock at right prices, and certainly is offering bargains in the size of trade he wants. Those who advertise not advertise, ninety-nine times out of ten are hoping to drive the trade, and would like your trade and money, but have not enough faith in their business as the live, up-to-date business man always has.

—Success is the open sesame to success in any sort of trade, business or profession. If a man allows himself to become a hermit, shutting himself out from the world, he will soon find his influence has set. This truth is applicable with equal force to the man who has something to sell. Idle talk will not dispose of your goods. Advertising is on every hand, and those who do not use strenuous efforts survive but a short time. Time was when dealers continued their efforts to the employment of criers, or "barkers," before their doors, but the newspapers and other periodicals have made possible the widest publicity. The man who has something to sell and fails to appreciate this fact is a back number.

CUTS KOORY'S THROAT

Calli Abraham Murders a Compatriot at Chesterville.

BOTH THE MEN WERE ASSYRIANS

Abraham Captured With Blood on His Clothes—Story of a Young Nephew of the Murdered Man, Who Witnessed the Deed—The Prisoner Baited and Hooted—Koory a Good Citizen.

Chesterville, Dec. 1.—Salem Koory, an Assyrian, aged 35, lies dead in this village with a gaping wound, inflicted by his own hand, across his throat, on the left side of his neck, and his companion, Calli Abraham, a compatriot, is in the lock-up, charged with murder. The tragedy was witnessed by one of his children, and his compatriots hastened and hooted him at the lock up. The motive for the crime has not been ascertained, but it may have been due to a sudden outburst of insanity on the part of the prisoner, who is of a low order of intelligence. The scene of the tragedy was a supply store conducted by Koory, who provided about twenty or thirty peddlers of the same nationality with wares which articles to peddle about the country. The building was a frame structure, and consisted of two rooms. It faces on Main street on the south side of Queen Street, and is in the rear front of the counter to the right on entering from the street. Koory's life ebbed away in the time was 11.30 Saturday morning. Mrs. Koory was absent at the time was Koory, Abraham and an eight-year-old nephew of Koory's, who, in flat upstairs were Koory's mother and a couple of other women.

The murdered man's nephew is a bright little fellow, who unfortunately cannot speak a word of English. His story, as interpreted is as follows: Koory and Abraham were sitting on a chair in front of the counter reading a newspaper when Abraham stole behind him. He placed one hand on my uncle's head and with the other drew a razor across his throat. Then he ran out of the store. My uncle put his hand to his neck and said, That man has killed me, run after him, quick!"

Koory had been in Canada seven years, and had taken out naturalization papers. He had only lived in Chesterville for six months, however. He left large orders for the goods with a Montreal firm, and was prompt in his payments.

The wind arose shortly after midnight and went on to the farm of Mr. Jones, who was his arm was caught between the cog wheels and he was unable to extricate himself.

The barn being some distance from the house, all efforts to call the family or anyone else hear were unsuccessful. He was found about 11 between 7 and 8 o'clock yesterday morning, when his son Frederick came in sight of the barn. He went to assist with the chores.

Deceased had suffered seven hours of terrible torture and suspense, pinioned by his arm in the machinery. Every revolution of the windmill caused the most intense pain. He retained consciousness, however, and was able to call for help when he heard his son arrive. The arm was not badly mutilated, but the severe shock occasioned by, every revolution to the wheel in the cog gale that prevailed was too much for the system and he lapsed into unconsciousness about noon yesterday and passed away at 3 o'clock.

Nobody knew the boiler room survived to tell the story of the accident, and yesterday while searching for the cause of the explosion. A careful investigation yesterday, however, convinced the experts the explosion was the carelessness on the part of the employes, whose own life also was sacrificed. Five minutes after the explosion nothing of the building remained but a pile of twisted iron, bricks and mortar. The loss to Schiff & Co. will amount to $50,000.

"Such a Noise!"

The mother says to herself sometimes, when her little child, with its fretful cries, when children are taken away, and she is glad her little darling is at rest.

When a child does not enjoy noisy scenes and amusements, it is something wrong, and that something will often be found to be the want of adequate to the needs of youth and growth. The stomach is the foundation of perfect, and so the nourishment of the body is foundation.

In such cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery works wonders. Pale, sickly, fretful children into healthy, happy girls and boys. The process by which this change is accomplished is strictly along the lines marked by nature, and the health and strength come from food when it has been digested and taken into system and assimilated. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures dyspepsia, indigestion and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and so enables the body to secure the benefit of the nutrition provided in food. The Discovery" cures without alcohol and is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics.

During her cruise the ship's officers annexed Suwarrow, [illegible] and Choiseul Islands for Great Britain. At Malieta Islands five villages of the natives were shelled to punish the islanders for having killed a Fijian woman because she embraced Christianity. With a view to impressing the natives with the seriousness of the crime committed by them, and of warning them against a recurrence of such [illegible], the Sparrow visited five places in the island of Malieta, namely Au[illegible], [illegible]io, Uras, Kwi and Port Diamond and at each place the villages were shelled and partially destroyed.

DECOY LETTER CAUGHT ROMANO.

Accomplice of Counterfeiter Gentile Arrested at Niagara Falls.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—Andrea Romano, a supposed accomplice of Joseph Gentile, who was sent to Kingston Penitentiary last week for 10 years for making counterfeit money has been arrested in Niagara Falls, New York. Romano, it is said, has been circulating silver coins turned out by Gentile. It was noticed that he had stopped his business of peddling, and remained at home. Detectives sent a decoy letter to him, and Romano was seen to get the letter. He answered it, and the reply was intercepted. It contained enough evidence against Romano to warrant his arrest. Romano, it is said, bought counterfeit halves and quarters from Gentile in lots of $100, paying $25 for them. Romano is wanted in New York. He is now in jail at Buffalo.

MISSING FOR A WEEK

Bannockburn Last Sighted by Algonquin on Friday.

MACY LOST WITH HER CREW OF 15

Steamer Suddenly Went Down on Sunday Off Port Burwell—Bound Up With a Load of Coal—Her Tow, the Mabel Wilson, Arrives at Amherstburg With News of the Disaster.

Chicago, Nov. 28. — Marine underwriters were inclined yesterday to give the Canadian steamer Bannockburn up for lost on Lake Superior. It was reported to them that the steamer was passed last Friday by the steamer Algonquin 50 miles southeast of Passage Island and northeast of Keewenaw Point. That would bring the Bannockburn well out into Lake Superior and right into the track of vessels. Since that time nothing has been heard of her. It is supposed the steamer stranded on Caribou Island.

Kingston, Nov. 28.—Tugs were sent out from Sault Ste. Marie yesterday morning to search Lake Superior for the Montreal Transport Company's steamer Bannockburn, which is overdue for some days. The company's officers here think the boat has been detained by a snowstorm.

SUNK OFF PORT BURWELL.

Str. Sylvanus J. Macy Lost With Her Crew of 15.

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 28.—A special to The Express from Detroit, Mich., says:

News has just reached this port that the steamer Sylvanus J. Macy was sunk off Port Burwell, on the north shore of Lake Erie, in the furious southwester that raged on Sunday night. It is believed that her crew of 15 men perished.

The steamer had left Buffalo the day before with her consort, the barge, Mabel Wilson, loaded with coal. The weather was heavy and thick on Sunday, and the Macy had a hard time creeping up on the north shore. Off Burwell she sprung a leak.

The tow line of the barge was cast off by the crew of the Macy. That was the first that Wilson knew that the Macy was in trouble. Sail was got on the schooner and she headed up the lake. The Macy was heading for shelter and making very heavy weather. As the crew of the Wilson watched the steamer through the gloom they saw her suddenly disappear. She had plunged under the waters.

The suddenness with which the end came precluded the possibility of the crew getting away in the boats. Even if they had, it is doubtful that boats could have lived in the sea that was running. The fact that no word has been reported from Canadian ports shows that none were saved.

The Mabel Wilson arrived at Amherstburg yesterday afternoon with tidings of the disaster. It was also reported by the captain of the Albright that he passed through five miles of wreckage off Port Burwell. There were parts of the cabin, boats, life preservers and doors.

WITH BOW BENEATH WATER.

Crew Rescued When Death Was Within a Few Feet.

Liverpool, Nov. 28.—The British steamer Brinkburn, Captain Edmunds, New Orleans, Oct. 30, for Manchester, has arrived here bringing the crew of the American three-masted schooner Lucy A. Davis, Captain McKeown, Brunswick, Oct. 28, for Boston, which sprung a leak and was abandoned in a waterlogged condition off Cape Hatteras Nov. 11. The Brinkburn rescued all the schooner's hands when her bows were beneath the water. The men have lost all their belongings. The Lucy A. Davis was sighted by the steamer Sicilia, which arrived at New York from Genoa, Nov. 20, on Nov. 18, in latitude 42.22, longitude not given. The Sicilia reported that the schooner was then waterlogged and abandoned and constituted a very dangerous obstruction to navigation.

Met Terrific Weather.

Ferrol, Spain, Nov. 28.—The British steamer Chicklade, Captain Sanderson, bound to Hamburg, from Fernandina, Fla., via Norfolk, and 19 days out from the latter port, put in at this place yesterday in a badly damaged condition, having encountered terrific weather on the passage. The vessel had her bridge and boats carried away, and all moveables on deck were swept off by the heavy seas.

Steamer Runs Aground.

Kingston, Nov. 28.—The steamer Aletha, in a big snowstorm, broke a wheel and ran aground off Adolphustown at midnight. She was released yesterday morning by the Calvin Wrecking Company's tug Frontenac, and taken to Deseronto.

Not After Canadian Northern.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—Basal M. Rey, attorney for the Northern Pacific Railway, with headquarters at Minneapolis, is at the Queen's. Discussing the report that the Hill railroad interests are attempting to secure a controlling of the Canadian Northern, Mr. Rey said: "There can't be anything in this report. I know the Northern Pacific has some very close traffic relations with the Canadian Pacific, but, I am sure this is as far as that extends. Of course the Hill lines appreciate the importance of getting a share of the volume of grain traffic originating in Southern Manitoba and the adjacent sections, but as to controlling the Canadian Northern or trying to, I am sure the Hill company have not figured on such a proposition. The efforts of American corporations to get a slice of the public transportation in Canada have not been sufficiently successful in the past to encourage them in the belief that they will ever be permitted to do so. We find that the Canadians have a way of financing their own lines and keeping the profits of the deals at home."

THE VOLUNTEER RIGS.

Charged for in Advance Made Livery Hire High in Lennox.

THURSDAY'S EVIDENCE AT TRIAL

Horse Owners Deliberately Overcharge Conservative Candidate Carscallen in Order to Recoup Themselves For Free Rigs on the Day of Election — Several Charges of Treating Fail.

Napanee, Nov. 28.—A goodly number of charges were investigated in the Lennox election trial yesterday, and it is expected that a conclusion will be reached to-day. Judgment in the Wilson-Parkinson charge in the Lennox case was reserved.

In an interesting livery case judgment was also reserved. Two livery men swore that they had systematically overcharged the respondent for rigs, to recoup themselves for supplying rigs on election day. About half a dozen charges were dismissed, and eight, including personal charges of treating, were dropped.

In the Wilson-Parkinson charge P. H. Baker, who drove Wilson and Parkinson to the poll, swore that he did not see any money pass between Wilson and Parkinson in the buggy, although he admitted that it might have occurred.

Two liverymen, R. H. Potter and G. H. Williams, swore that they had systematically charged Mr. Carscallen more than their usual tariff during the weeks preceding the election, in order to recoup themselves for supplying horses free on election day. Potter's account was $37 and Williams' $65.

Richard Fraser, who was Conservative financial agent, both in Lennox and Addington; G. F. Ruttan, Mayor of Napanee, and one of the solicitors for respondent, swore that he was Secretary of the Conservative Association, but had no knowledge of any overcharge in the livery accounts. He knew that Mr. Carscallen was to get the $500 from Toronto, but had not known of the $200 until the protest was on.

Judgment was reserved, Judge Osler saying it was rather a delicate point.

Thomas Smith, a young man, denied that he had been paid $1 for driving a rig on election day, or that he had received any money. Mr. Watson was proceeding to question the witness as to who had seen him about his evidence, but Judge Osler stopped him sharply, saying that he must not go on a fishing expedition.

"I think, if your Lordship knew the circumstances as they are known to counsel, you would not think I was on a fishing expedition. A great many difficulties have been put in the way of getting evidence."

Judgment on the charge that John Smith had been paid $1 to procure votes was reserved. Smith was hired by Lapan to drive a rig on election day, but was kept busy as a messenger between the polling places and Mr. Morley Wilson's office at the committee room. Judge Osler appeared to think that the charge was not an offence.

In the afternoon R. T. Jones swore that he was paid for carrying messages to the Conservative Committee rooms on election day.

A charge that John Carscallen, a brother of the respondent, had lent $5 to Lewis Hall corruptly was dismissed.

Ferdinand Grimshaw swore that he asked Ed. Long for something for his vote. Long promised to get him something, and after the election witness asked him for payment, but Long said he could not get it for him yet. Long contradicted Grimshaw's evidence, and the charge was dismissed.

A charge that Alex. Hewitt had bribed Paul McCauley was dismissed.

Wm. Reynolds of Adolphustown swore that he had been in Manitoba during the harvest of 1901, until some time in November. When he went to vote his vote was challenged, on the ground that he had been living out of the Province during the preceding months. Davis said it was all right. Witness took the oath and voted. He took the oath on his own judgment. Harry Clapp stated that Davis was scrutineer for Mr. Carscallen. Clapp, as Liberal scrutineer, objected to Reynolds' vote, and Davis said: "Don't try to scare the boy; he has a good vote." The charge was dismissed.

Thomas McNeil swore that on election day in Fleming's hotel, Napanee, some time after he voted, W. J. Wilson put down $5 in payment for his lunch and some drinks. McNeil and Fleming grabbed the bill. McNeil got it, and afterwards gave Fleming $3.

The witness had some rather hard passages with Mr. Watson, whom he addressed repeatedly as "my learned friend" and "my good man." When he called Mr. Watson "my learned friend" even the Judges laughed.

Mr. W. J. Wilson entered the box and explained the occurrence to the satisfaction of the court. He had been scrutineer, and handed the $5 to Fleming in payment for his lunch. McNeil grabbed the money and ran off with it. McNeil was working in Fleming's hotel, and the same night witness got from Fleming the change that was due to him out of the $5. Mr. Watson did not argue the charge, allowing it to drop.

Eight charges, including one of treating by the respondent, were dropped.

WILL THERE BE A TRIAL?

The Dates For Hearing the Petitions in West York and Addington.

Toronto, Nov. 28.—The politicians appear to have not yet decided what is to be done with the West York and Addington Dominion election petitions, but efforts are being made to come to some arrangement and have both petitions dismissed.

The West York petition against Archibald Campbell comes up for trial in the common pleas chamber to-day. The Judges will be, probably, Chancellor Boyd and Mr. Justice MacMahon. No particulars have been filed in this so far, and if it is not dismissed an adjournment will be asked for.

The trial of the Addington protest against Melzer Avery is down for Saturday at Napanee. No particulars have been filed in this either.

In the North York Provincial protest Mr. James Baird has been appointed solicitor for the petitioners in the place of Bristol, Bayley & Armour.

WANT DAMAGES FOR BOYCOTT.

A Suit of Peculiar Interest to Grain Men Entered at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 28.—A sensation was sprung in local grain circles yesterday when Alfred Andrews, acting on behalf of Farquhar B. McLennan, and William McLennan, of the firm of McLennan Bros.; the firm of Riley, Parker & McVickar, and Joseph P. Graves, all prominent in the grain business of Manitoba, instituted an action for damages against twenty-two individuals and firms engaged in the grain trade, and comprising among their number the leading members of the Winnipeg Grain and Produce Exchange.

The defendants named in the plaintiffs' statement of claim are: Thomas H. Metcalfe, K. B. Stoddart, the R. D. Martin Co., Limited; Lindsay and Parrish, S. Spink, James Carruthers & Co., E. O'Reilly, F. Phillips, Samuel P. Clark, E. Thompson & Sons, John Love, George R. Crowe, W. W. Willan, McBean Bros., Robert Muir, Hugh Baird, the Northern Elevator Co., the Dominion Elevator Co., Capell Tilt, H. S. Patterson and Alex. Hargraft.

The plaintiffs allege that since Oct. 1, the defendants have conspired and agreed to boycott the plaintiffs, and to refuse to have any dealing with either the plaintiffs or any firms or individuals who do business with them, and, that owing to such conspiracy the plaintiffs suffered large losses, the direct cause of the boycott. The plaintiffs asked that damages to the extent of $5,000 be granted to each of the two firms, McLennan Bros. and Riley, Parker & McVickar and a like amount to Joseph Pearson Graves. They also ask that an injunction be issued by the court restraining the defendants from continuing the boycott or continuing to conspire to injure the trade of the plaintiffs.

WHOLE IRISH SITUATION.

Tim Healy Looms Up as a Possible Cementer of Factions.

London, Nov. 28.—An authority on Irish affairs puts the case thus: "The whole Irish situation is in the melting pot. Mr. O'Brien's movements received a check by the interposition of Archbishop Walsh, when he denounced Mr. O'Brien's approval of boycotting, which Chief Baron Walls has just penalized in the Dublin courts. He also demanded that, when called on, the Irish members should return to Parliament to support the education bill, which gives the church control of religious teachings in its schools, which are now to be state aided.

"Mr. Redmond, the official leader of the Nationalists, stands between Mr. O'Brien's movement and Mr. Healy's enmity, but to succeed Mr. Redmond needs to be a second Parnell, and he is not this. The whole weight of the church has been given to the side of Mr. Healy, who combines more staunch Catholicism than any other leader, with not less Nationalism and more ability. It is probable the outcome will be to further break up the Nationalist party. He stands the best chance of at least gaining the leadership of the most influential section."

Revolt in Santo Domingo.

San Domingo, Santo Domingo, Nov. 28.—The political situation has been complicated in Santo Domingo by revolutionary disturbances, which have broken out in the northern part of the Republic. The Government has adopted severe measures to suppress the movement. Many arrests have already been made. Gen. Wos Gil and J. D. Pichardo, a former Minister, are prisoners here.

Peter Is Satisfied.

London, Nov. 28.—Peter Verigein, the venerable head of the Russian Doukhobors, who has just been released from Siberia, in an address to the Tolsteian Society, referred to his co-religionists in Manitoba. He said that the Canadian Government had acted with all possible good-will, leniency and consideration.

One Suit Located.

Berlin, Nov. 28.—The authorities have been at work since the Cressman-Hallman store was burglarized and two suits of clothes stolen. One of the suits has been located in Guelph, and a man named Hornbusch, arrested in Guelph on another charge, is alleged to be implicated.

SUSPENDED THROUGH DISORDER.

German Reichstag the Scene of an Unprecedented Occurrence.

Berlin, Nov. 29.—There were stormy times again yesterday in the Reichstag. After a quiet afternoon Dr. Bachem, Centre Party, took the tribune and threatened the Socialists with more strenuous parliamentary measures, whereupon the Socialist members rushed forward as if intending to storm the tribune, and President Von Ballestrom put on his hat and left the chair, suspending the sitting. The session was resumed later. It is an unprecedented occurrence for the Reichstag to suspend a sitting owing to disorder.

The compromise on the tariff bill is, according to the Germania, generally accepted as correct, and is as follows: Minimum duty on malting barley is raised to $1. The minimum duty on cattle and meat is abandoned under conditions to be hereafter announced, and certain duties on manufactures reduced. The motion of the members of the Centre Party, applying the surplusses derived from the duties on foodstuffs to the insurance fund for widows and orphans, and the abolition of the urban Octroi duties were agreed to. Apart from these the most noteworthy point is that the increases in duties decided on by the Tariff Committee shall be the basis of the next general tariff.

AN IMPORTANT ORDER

British Authorities Close Ports to United States Cattle.

TO STAMP OUT CATTLE DISEASE

Vigorous Methods Adopted in the New England States—Losses Will Be Heavy, But the Safety of the Herds in the U.S. Demanded This Radical Action — Canada's Action.

London, Nov. 29.—The Board of Agriculture has closed the ports of the United Kingdom against the importation of animals from Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. The order takes effect Dec. 5. Cargoes arriving in the meanwhile will be the subject of special investigation.

The announcement that the United States Department of Agriculture had given notice of the establishment of a quarantine of cattle and sheep, etc., in the New England States, and prohibition of the exportation of such animals from Boston until further orders, caused excitment in Liverpool.

The Mersey Dock Board derives a large revenue from the slaughter of Boston cattle at Birkenhead. Manager Lairages of the board says the restrictions will have far reaching consequences, and that possibly the cargoes of cattle now on their way to Liverpool from Boston will be quarantined.

The exclusion of American cattle has caused a feeling almost amounting to consternation in the shipping and meat trades. Fears are expressed that the interdiction may be extended to imports from other United States ports which would result in a great rise in the price of meats, as only a few steamers have large refrigerator space for dead meat. The Board of Agriculture is exercising the utmost precautions. The steamer Sachem, which arrived in the Mersey from Boston yesterday with a cargo of cattle and sheep, was not allowed to discharge. The animals were all scrutiniz?d by experts, and no disease was found among them, but they will all be re-examined after an interval of 48 hours.

U.S. CABINET BUSY

Secretary Wilson Believes Disease Has Been Concealed For Some Time.

Washington, Nov. 29.—At the Cabinet meeting yesterday Secretary Wilson discussed the measures he has taken to suppress the epidemic of foot and mouth disease among live stock in New England. From such information as he has obtained, he believes that the disease has existed in that section for some time, but has been concealed. Every effort will be made to stamp it out. The quarantine measures taken Thursday, it is thought, will prove effective to prevent the spread of the disease to other states. Dr. Salmon, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, will be sent to New England at once.

Quarantine in New England.

Boston, Nov. 29. — The cattle bureau of the State Board of Agriculture has received about 100 individual reports up to date of the presence of the foot and mouth contagion which has caused the Secretary of Agriculture to prohibit the exportation of cattle from Boston, and to establish a quarantine of cattle, sheep and swine in New England.

It is admitted that the action of Secretary Wilson in closing the port of Boston to cattle shipments is a matter of great importance to transportation companies, but in view of the serious nature of the infection and the difficulty in exterminating it, the step is considered the only safe one. Concerning the highly contagious character of the disease, Dr. Austin Peters, chairman of the State Cattle Bureau, says:

"Cattle passing over the same road traversed by infected animals will contract the disease. Only the most stringent quarantine will prevent a scourge hitherto unknown in this country."

The closing of the Brighton stock yards, the principal ones in New England, by the State Board of Agriculture, will cause an interruption to traffic, which, under ordinary circumstances, aggregates 500 to 700 head of cattle a day. The cattle bureau have strong hopes that the halt in business at this point will enable them to trace out the disease and materially reduce the prevalence of it.

Disinfect the Cars.

Ottawa, Nov. 29.—The serious situation in the Eastern States, caused by the outbreak of the foot and mouth disease, and the order of the Agriculture Department, Washington, prohibiting the exportation of cattle, sheep and hogs from Boston, has been taken note of by the Agricultural Department here.

Dr. Rutherford, chief veterinary inspector for the Dominion, when asked last night what was being done in the matter, said that in the absence of the Minister he was unable to go as far as he would like, but in the meantime, pending Mr. Fisher's return to the capital, instructions had been issued by the department that all stock cars entering Canada from the States shall be cleansed and disinfected at the border.

Bertha Gets a Factory.

Essen, Prussia, Nov. 29.—The late Herr Krupp's will leaves the factory to his eldest daughter, Bertha, to be administered by his widow until the daughter attains her majority. Besides the $750,000 given for the benefit of the employes, Frau Krupp, in behalf of Fraulein Bertha, has given $250,000, to be devoted to the improvement of Essen.

The Weekly Post.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 5, 1902.

BREEZY LOCAL BREVITIES.

GATHERED BY POST REPORTERS.

What is Happening in Town and the Country About Us.

—Herr Krupp died suddenly, like bites who got in the way of his guns.

—By the time that a man gets old enough to talk well he has learned the value of not talking at all.

—Some rich specimens of copper ore have been discovered by a prospector in the vicinity of Inverness.

—The advertisements in the Christmas magazines are rapidly becoming more interesting than the reading matter.

—Montreal Herald: The aldermen who favor wooden sidewalks betray the fact that their heads are of the same material.

—Mr. A. Holmes, a farmer residing near Beaverton, lost a valuable horse on Saturday by leakage. The animal was taken some three year old colt—had only been sick a couple of days. We understand Mr. Holmes valued the horse at $150.

—Mr. P. B. Mellhargey, local stock buyer, shipped two carloads of live stock to the Toronto markets lately, one comprising sheep and the other cattle. Mr. Dennis Scully, of Janeyville, also consigned a load of sheep and lambs to the same place.

—Peterboro's Chief of Police is planning to rise early three weeks morning in order to enforce the cleaning of pavements by the merchants or their assistants at a seasonable hour. Chief Nevison should get his alarm clock in order also.

—After receiving all information possible at Friday's meeting, the Dominion Cattle Guard Commission continue in business at Peterboro and left for Ottawa next morning. Mr. Geo. Johnson, of Mariposa, represented Victoria County Council at the session.

—The people of Midland are contemplating the purchase and operating of the electric light plant of Midland. The question as to the result the corporation should buy the company has been left to a board of arbitrators, comprising Judge Ardagh, of Orillia, Judge McGrimmon, of Whitby, and Mr. Upswell, barrister, Barrie, who met in Midland on Friday to decide. Mr. Upsteers, town, appeared on behalf of the electric company.

—Parry Sound Star: Mr. John McKechnie, of the Robinson settlement in Conger township, shot his first deer this season, and it is a curious fact, it was a doe with twins, the first reported. One born in a spike, and the other a button about an inch long, and another peculiarity is that the horse are "in the velvet." Should the above reach the eye of Inspector Crawley, of the game and fish department, who is a "stiff" believer of wide regulation, he will conclude that Conger township might be a good spot to spend a couple of quiet weeks, and that if he failed to come across a pair of mountain lions he might be reasonably sure of discovering a very fresh family of native specimens "New." Nothing less than 40 above proof could have inspired the above lurid hunting yarn.

MOTHERLY ADVICE.

To Mothers Who Have Cross or Sickly Babies.

Cross or crying babies are either sick or in pain, and make everyone in the house miserable. Healthy babies are always happy babies, and all little ones can be kept healthy and happy by the occasional giving of Mother Graves' Worm Tablets. If your little one is cross, give him a Tablet and see how quickly it will work a change for the better. Mrs. W. H. Austin, Farmington, N.S., says: "Baby's Own Tablets are just what every mother should give her little ones are cutting their teeth. When my little one cries, I give him a tablet and it does him good. Mothers who use the Tablet will have no other. Baby's Own Tablets are sold under a positive guarantee to contain no Morphine or any poisonous drug, and they are the best medicine for the minor ailments of little ones. Sold by druggists or sent by mail post paid at 25 cents a box, by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., or Schenectady, N.Y.

Church Notes s.

—New St. James' church, erected this year at Fenelon Falls, will be opened for worship next Sunday. Special services will be conducted by the Rector, Rev. R. MacNamara, and a collection taken. Our citizens will remember that the corner stone was laid by His Honor Judge Harding last summer under Masonic auspices.

—The services at Queen-st. Methodist church on Sunday were helpful and impressive. Large congregations were present both morning, afternoon and night. At the evening service scores were unable to get in. The music was unexcelled, and the service was exceptionally interesting and inspiring. Mr. Stubbs also gave an interesting program Monday evening.

—At high mass at St. Mary's church Sunday the capacity of the large edifice was taxed to accommodate the large congregation that assembled to witness the blessing by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, of Peterboro, of a magnificent memorial window erected to the memory of the late Mr. Laurent by His Lordship Bishop McEvay, of London, who was unable to be present.

A School Gymnast Injured

Gertie Cunningham, a little over nine old son of Mr. Fremont Crandell, of the east ward, was the victim of an accident at the Public Schools on Monday 11.30 last Monday. He was one of a number of students who were at the school gymnasium with their muscles, and while swinging on two rings, hanging by his feet, with the intention of falling off from the floor and endeavoring to catch the trapeze, he fell, hitting on his head. He was taken home and seemed to be rendered insensible for a time. Dr. Herriman was summoned and the lad was taken home in a cab. He has been in a nervous condition since the brain, but the doctor entertains hopes of a speedy recovery.

MRS. YOUNG'S CASE.

A STRANGE CASE THAT BAFFLED DOCTORS.

None of Her Friends Believed She Could Recover and Her Case Has Excited Great Interest.

From The Courier, Trenton, Ont.

The case of Mrs. Robert Young, of Stanley street, Trenton, is one that has caused a great deal of talk among those who are acquainted with her. Mrs. Young is now in her seventy-eighth year, and is quite vigorous for a woman of that age. Three years ago she took a cold which aggravated her into an illness. "Her lower limbs and body swelled to such an extent that she could scarcely move them. Her stomach became so distended that she could not take solid food, and her heart fluttered so violently that she could not lie in bed, and for two years had to be blistered up days and nights. The chills which were superimposed upon the original cause of the trouble became chronic, and blistered her two or three times a week, and after a chill her skin would turn a dark brown color. Her friends did not believe she could recover, but nevertheless did all they could for her. They dressed and fed her, bathed her, and the strong, strong medicine they used for her was "Well you know we are all growing old, and our friends and neighbors were thus given her, but with no effect. Mr. Young's friend, Mr. Toovey had begun so bad that he was unable to do his work, from a distance to nurse her. She brought with her some Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Mr. Toovey had begun to take them in the course of a few weeks and there is no doubt that they were helping her, and the change in her appearance was plain, and now, after using them for some months, it is hard to recognize the sickly, pale face of a year ago. Her cheeks, which were hollow, have filled out, and she is restored to its normal condition, and her heart fluttering has ceased, and it necessary to believe her up in bed now as she sometimes did. It is a wonder that the case has excited much comment, and a reporter of the Courier, who has personally visited Mrs. Young, found for the facts related above. Some months since cures as this grave Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are medicine offered the public to-day, and if there were any doubt, it would promptly give them a trial. All druggists sell them, or they may be can be obtained by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Railway Notes.

—The erecting of a new station at Kimmount will be begun at once. We understand that when Supt. Tilley visited Lindsay on Friday he intimated that the station would be ready for use by the 1st of January.

—The business done on the L. B. & O. R. R. is constantly increasing, the rolling stock is all being utilized, and loads of trade followed the extension of the Central Ontario R. R. to Bancroft, village. A Bancroft citizen recently remarked, "The line is not first-class, and concessions for freight, finding are good and plenty, but we all feel, that Mr. Howland will remedy them as soon as he can. On the other hand, we are all glad and happy, one, we realize that without the road we would be in a very bad way."

Purchased a Fine Farm.

Mr. Nicholas Brady, of lot 9, con. 4, South Ops, our efficient fishery overseer, a few days ago completed the purchase of north half lot 10, con. 5, formerly owned by the late Jas. Killen, and said to be one of the best farms in the township. It is said that the buildings on the property could not be replaced for $5000. The two blocks of land practically adjoin each other, being only about 60 rods apart.

Hockey Notes

—Charlie Coleman, formerly of Port Hope, and a well-known hockey player, is very ill with typhoid fever in Winnipeg.

—Port Hope Guide: The prospects for a fast team here this season were never better. There is plenty of local material available, they are all lovers of the game, and, with a new covered rink on which they can play 365 per cent. better, there is no reason why they should not be fast.

Died in St. Michael's Hospital.

Toronto World: Kenneth Ferguson, a carpenter from Little Britain, died in St. Michael's Hospital Nov. 26th from cancer of the lip. Ferguson was operated upon about two months ago for a cancer on the cheek, cause, it was thought, by being struck on the face by a piece of wood. The operation was apparently successful, but after a few days he apparently grew worse, and his death occurred. He was 58 years of age, and leaves a wife and grown-up family. His remains were taken to Little Britain.

Baptiste Lake Railway Bridge.

We understand that the L. B. & O. R. R. management has decided to fill in the huge trestle bridge across Baptiste Lake—a structure nearly three-quarters of a mile long—this fall and winter. It is estimated that the work will require about 70,000 yards of gravel. A steam shovel was sent up from Montreal last week to excavate sand and gravel pits, and a new unloader, or gravel plough, has been procured from the States. The bridge was built some fifteen or seven years ago, and it is feared that it is far from safe in its present condition, and it is proposed to fill the ice shoves every spring. Filling will be made on each side to hold the filling in place.

A Great Publication.

The Living Age is an American venerable and only weekly eclectic.

The standard weekly is the oldest, as it is the best, concentration of choice periodical literature printed in this country. It holds a unique position in the magazine world—a monthly that comes every week—a single magazine that contains the cream of all.

Those who desire a thorough comprehension of all that is admirable and noteworthy in the literary world will be spared the trouble of wading through the sea of reviews and magazines published abroad; for they will find the essence of all compacted and concentrated there.

The Living Age is for the reason, particularly well adapted to the needs of the busy individual whose leisure for extended reading is greatly restricted. To those who are means are limited, it must meet with especial favor, for it offers them what could not otherwise be obtained except by a large outlay. Intelligent readers who want to save time and money will find it invaluable.

The premium for 1903, which appears in another column, is well worth attention in selecting one's reading matter for the new year. Note their liberal offer to new subscribers.

PARALYZED COMMERCE.

Stokers' Strike at Marseilles is Practically Complete Now.

Marseilles, Dec. 1.—The strike at this port which began yesterday last week by the stokers to obtain an increase of wages, is now practically complete as regards the steamers here. As ships arrive the hands desert and the harbor is now so crowded with empty vessels that it is difficult to find room for new comers.

The strike has practically paralyzed commerce along the coast, as it is spreading to other ports. Six hundred stokers have left Genoa and at Marseilles for transportation to Algiers.

New Manitoba Railway.

Winnipeg, Dec. 1.—The Manitoba Gazette this week notice is given that application will be made at the next session of the Legislature for an act to incorporate a company with power to construct, maintain and operate a railway and a telegraph line from Portage la Prairie and running in a southerly direction to a point at or near Basinet Station on the Morris Branch of the C.N.R., and also for a line commencing at Portage la Prairie and running westerly to Brandon.

Kronprinz Wilhelm Safely to Blame.

London, Dec. 1.—In the Admiralty Court Saturday afternoon the judge handed down a decision to the effect that the North German Lloyd steamship Kronprinz Wilhelm was solely to blame for the collision off Beachy Head last month with the steamship Bretwalder Ingraham, through which the latter was sunk. The judge also held that the Kronprinz Wilhelm was proceeding at her usual speed, at speed in a dense fog at the time of the collision.

New Revolt in Morocco.

Tangier, Morocco, Dec. 1.—The Zemhour tribesmen have attacked the Sultan of Morocco, who was marching at the head of an army of 20,000 men to suppress the rebellious Kabyles, commanded by a pretender who was recently reported to have submitted. The Sultan's forces dispersed the tribesmen, but the attack delayed the march against the Kabyles.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 5, 1902.

IT WAS A BOMB SHELL.

also do away with the dangerous grade crossing northeast of the proposed elevator of the five would town. He would suggest that the entire question be taken up by a large and representative committee in order that all phases of the railway situation might be discussed with General Manager McIntigan, who as their mouthpiece would realize the justice of the twenty claims that Lindsay asked to be kept alive in the interests of the town and community because anything that hampered the trade of the former would injure the latter. Which he really signed at was a railway commission in Ontario which would cost every honest man to protect the lives of our citizens and force us each town to trade.

Ald. O'Reilly said that he agreed with some of Ald McDiarmid's views but the blackmail complained was precisely the same as if a corporation of business concerned at Mayor Rogers factory in Toronto asked the town large his building hire more men and to erect a new artic himself to cope with the increased trade that came in his way. That was just what the G.T.R. Co. should do. He had a promise to unknown—he had been informed that the company had built in sidings across the foot of Albert-st. where there had been none, without difficulty for a month time, without asking the permission of Council, which the company should not do followed—the streets belonged to the people not to the G.T.R. Co. He had already defined the time in which the company's request that the company should be closed and handed over to the company—he was firmly opposed to the granting of the demand, and thought the management should buy the land needed. The town had been used itself poor to aid the lines to merge in the G. T. R., yet everything the town had got in return was the result of hard work. After years of begging the company had added 20 feet to the freight shed which the extension should have been 60 feet to accommodate the business quantity offering. Every department of the Ont. service was neglected. On the other hand the railway is running the south part of the town and interfering with our natural trade. He had spoken to twenty-three of the local engineers, and while he could not give names for a reason that must be obvious, he could assure Council that all pronounced the idea that the company would side-track Lindsay. He would not be any more concessions to the injury of town interests.

Ald. Jackson approved of Ald. McDiarmid's suggestions relative to a commission. So far the Council had proceeded in strict accordance with the law. The commission would consider the situation in all its bearings with General Manager McLigan, and in all probability much good would result. It would be wise to quarrel with the only railway we have.

On motion Messrs. T. Cornelly, D. Robinson, Adam Switzer and other south ward property owners were heard. Every speaker dwelt on the injury done to the value of their properties and the personal inconvenience resulting from the almost continual blockade of Lindsay-st. and the other crossings. They also warned the Council that they were prepared to go to any length to resist the closing of the streets and the erection of bridges.

Ald. McDiarmid—"For the blocking of the crossings for a longer period than the law allows the citizens injured have a remedy in the courts. As for closing the streets, I don't think one member of the Council or any tenant of dollars so, or of giving a strip off Durham-st. without the parties interested being assured the fullest compensation—not a cent more."

Ald. O'Reilly was not willing that the town should be cow-ed, even a first reading, and moved in amendment that the further reading be put off with twelve months hence. The company should not be encouraged to hope for the concession, because it would not be granted. The town could afford to take that stand because the concession would not seriously affect the town's standing as a commercial centre.

Ald. Hore—"Let us be careful in asserting that we can throw the company overboard. I sympathize with the citizens because of the increased taxes they are subjected to, and I think that giving the by-law a first reading will be acting in the direction of a settlement of the trouble. Ald. Robson offered as an amendment to Ald. O'Reilly's amendment.

Ald. Barrows—"Before I am in favor of giving the by-law a first reading is that we will then be in a position to discuss the matter with the G.T.R. management. Mr McGuiland is a fair man, and I feel sure he will look at the matter in the right light."

A vote was then taken and the amendment was defeated. The by-law was then read and referred to the Board of Works, to be taken up in committee.

On motion the 10.30 adjournment of the was suspended.

These By-laws Were Passed.

On motion of Ald. Jackson, seconded by Ald. O'Reilly, Council went into committee of the whole on the second reading of a by-law to regulate the looking of the municipal functions and number dealing with the expenditures of committees (for which no appropriation had been made. In the case of the former by-law the polling booths and the returning officers are the same as last year with the exception of A. J. Sonnes in No. 2, south ward, who is replaced by Ald. Hore. The by-laws were given a final reading.

The By-law Was Held Up.

Moved by Ald. O'Reilly, seconded by Ald. Jackson, that By-law No. 2 authorizing the Mayor to sign a contract with Geo. Coombs, for the construction of granitoid walks, be read a first time.

Ald. McDiarmid—"No, your Worship—I have to attack that by-law. I feel bound to say to Council that on the grounds I will mention. From information I have had given me, and which bears every evidence of truth I objected to the signing of the contract on the ground that there was been collusion and wrong-doing in connection therewith, and with other contracts. I took these statements with a full knowledge of the seriousness of the charge, and I undertake with this matter I have the following resolution to offer.

Whereas it has been alleged that James M. Chalmers Town Commissioner of the town of Lindsay has been guilty of malfeasance, breach of trust and other misconduct in relation to his duties and obligations to the municipality, in that he has neglected his duty and improperly given information to certain parties and withheld proper information from others, and in that he has misconducted himself in reference to the tenders and contracts for works under his control during the present year 1902, and that he has been and is improperly interested in certain contracts for granolithic walks let by the town, and that proper care is not taken to safeguard the petition in the letting of contracts for town works, and that he has neglected his whole time and attention to the service of the town, but has been interested in certain contracts with other parties and has improperly used the property and material of the town in other works, and has not kept proper and correct accounts thereof; and it is advisable that an early inquiry should be instituted and other inquiries made as hereinafter mentioned.

Therefore, the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Town of Lindsay hereby request the Judge of the County Court of the County of Victoria to enquire into and investigate all the said matters in pursuance of Section 534 of the Municipal Act, and also to enquire into and concerning any matter connected with the good government of the municipality and the conduct of the public business thereof in relation to the letting and carrying out of contracts for granolithic works of the town, and to have the evidence of the said investigation taken in shorthand, and to report the evidence and the finding thereof to the Council, and that the Town Solicitor be and is hereby authorized to attend upon the said investigation and to conduct the same on behalf of the Council.

Continuing, Ald McDiarmid said he had the evidence to prove the charge and would produce it at the proper time. That evidence had been passed upon by several citizen lawyers, who stated that the proofs warranted the charge of malfeasance, dishonesty and collusion. For the reasons given he asked that the by-law be held over until the charged shall have been investigated by the County Judge on oath. He realized that his reputation as a member of Council was staked on the issue, but his oath of office demanded that he should act on the information that had reached him. That alone, and not political animus or any other motive that might be attributed, impelled him to press for an investigation.

Ald. Barrows—"I am quite ready to second the resolution. I have been aware for some months that the town was being defrauded and I support the motion with a good deal of pleasure."

Ald. McDiarmid—"And I present it with a great deal of sorrow."

Ald. Hore—"I signed the letting of the tender because I did not think the Council should do the work that will take all next summer to do. I spoke against it on the ground of wrong-doing."

Ald. Jackson—"While I pressed for the letting of the contract I will not prepare for the signing of the contract under the circumstances. The charges made by Ald. McDiarmid are serious ones and as a mass-bearer of responsibility I feel it would be injurious to both Ald. McDiarmid and Commissioner Chalmers the investigation should be granted."

Ald. O'Reilly held that Council had acted properly and in a business-like way in letting the contract. As for the charges, they should of course be closely investigated. The discovery that a by-law had passed to give the Mayor authority to sign a contract was a new thing, and he would like to know why the same procedure had not been followed in all cases. If a by-law was necessary now it followed that all the contracts entered into during the last twelve or thirteen years were illegal and left the town exposed to loss. It would be well to make a thorough sweep of the investigation and have this matter settled into bed. He would now understand why in the case of the Colborne-st. sewer last year, Contractor Bryce could keep a stiff upper lip—Mr. Hugh O'Neary, Contractor, had informed him that the town's cause and know he had the Council at his back.

Mayor Ingle—"Failure to sign the contract for the town would not matter if the contractor had commenced work."

Ald. Robson—"I can't vote intelligently on mere allegations."

Ald. O'Reilly—"I think Ald. McDiarmid should give us an outline of his charges."

Ald. McDiarmid—"In the presence of reporters and public it would be indiscreet to do so. Of course I could rely on my colleagues."

Ald. O'Reilly—"I think that if any member of the Council knew any thing about these charges, he should have mentioned the matter before."

Ald McDiarmid—"This is the first meeting since the charges and the proofs were known to me."

A vote was then taken and the resolution re an investigation was adopted.

Board Heads Meeting.

Moved by Ald. Jackson, seconded by Ald. McDiarmid, that the chairman of the Board of Works be authorized to ask Mr. A. W. Campbell, Provincial Good Roads Commissioner, to fix the earliest date on which he will be ready for him to visit Lindsay, and that a public meeting be arranged for the date selected.—Carried.

Miscellaneous Motions.

Aldermen Barrows and O'Reilly—that A. Gohsen's taxes be reduced to $10.—Lost.

Aldermen Robson and Hore—that a gas lamp be placed at the corner of Henry and Adelaide-sts.—Police and Lighting committee.

Aldermen Hore and Robson—that the Town Solicitor be instructed to ascertain the present financial standing of Collector Nicolle's bonds—Carried.

Aldermen Hore and Robson—that Jas. Wallwater be appointed caretaker of the town clock at a yearly salary of $20.—Carried.

Gas Inspection.

Ald. McDiarmid—"I have a telegram from President Burgess of the Gas Co., stating that he will arrive Tuesday evening with a Government inspector to conduct a test of the street lamps."

Mayor Ingle—"That is a bad night; we're all going to the Local Municipal's above."

Council then adjourned, to meet again Dec. 15th to consider the financial statement.

JUDGE DEAN ON TEMPERANCE

HIS HONOR'S OPENING ADDRESS AT THE COUNTY COURT.

Why the Scott Act Failed—Grand Work of Temperance Organizations—In Favor of Bar Rooms but Would Abolish Treating.

At the opening of the County Court and General Sessions of the Peace last Tuesday, His Honor Judge Dean in his address made the following references to the Referendum vote and temperance matters:

His Honor began by referring to the excitement and feeling aroused by the Referendum vote taken about the Liquor Act of 1902, making it a suitable subject with which he and the Grand Jury could deal. In some countries, he said, especially in Switzerland, many laws were initiated and carried directly by the people. A certain percentage of the voters—usually about 5 to 10 per cent—could present to the Legislature any measure that they desired, which was then referred to a Referendum vote of the whole people, and became law if the people said "Yea". We, in Ontario, had a Parliamentary system better suited to our ideas, and in a general way the Referendum was not used here, but there were certain subjects to which it was particularly adapted, and the Referendum Act of 1902 was one of the point. It was true that the act was a revolutionary measure, and it was responsible for securing the enforcement of the act to have a large number of the people on the country in favor of it. His Honor went on to point out the great Temperance work the Scott Act had done, and how it was responsible for a marvellous reduction in the terrible prevalence of drinking and drunkenness in Ontario where 60 years ago, when distilleries were numerous, any whisky sold at 30c a gallon. The progress in practical temperance and public sobriety since that time has been marvellous and was due largely to the unwearied efforts of the temperance people and the temperance association to which all honor was due. The attitude of the churches on this question was a matter of congratulation, for in the terms of only one church took a total abstinence stand, now practically the ministers of all churches did so, and it was now a very small proportion of ministers and continually decreasing, who could be induced by the temperance advocates to join the old days.

Why the Scott Act Failed.

Turning next to the question why the Scott Act, although so widely adopted had been a failure and had been generally repealed, His Honor said, he had his hearers might be surprised if he made the bald statement that the Scott Act failed for want of money, notwithstanding that was the cause. You could enforce a liquor act just as the Scott Act if you went the right way about it. To illustrate his meaning, he told the story of some farts which had come under his own observation in one of the smaller western cities of the U. S. some years ago. It was a place that had been in two years from a mere vacant lot to a city of about 25,000 inhabitants. There was the recent building of a railway and the business of the place was flourishing. He was there in June. At the end of the previous years there were 2 places in the city where liquor was sold and it was generally conceded that had been licensed at the beginning of the year, and the friends of temperance exerted themselves to elect men who would support the liquor license law which was proposed. The town council did adopt it. Then an organization of Women Crusaders was formed for the purpose of enforcing the license law. It was a sort of stock company for the purpose of raising the money necessary to secure the enforcement of the law. The Crusaders Leagues notified all the men selling liquor to close up within six weeks, but no attention was paid to that; then the leagues brought the liquor sellers before the Magistrates, when it was found that convictions could not be obtained owing to want of proof. The prosecutions were dropped and nothing more done for five or six weeks. The liquor sellers thought they were alright, but one day a constitutie came in armed with a summons against every tavern keeper in the town, all returnable upon the same day at different hours before Magistrates in different parts of the county. The liquor sellers clubbed together and had with all the evidence of witnesses, expecting an easy victory.

The Witnesses Were Conscientious.

When they got there the lawyer for the Carson League called his first witness. A well-dressed, respectable looking man stepped forward, took from his pocket a Morocco-covered note book, and said, Yes, on such a date I sold liquor to such a person and I can tell you who was present; I gave so and so the liquor, and other particulars. Then another man was called who confirmed the story of the first witness. Then the liquor sellers remembered that two men had spent a week or two in the town talking rather big about investing in real estate, and all that kind of thing. Then when the cases of the second third-class taverns were taken up the 10 geezers were recognized as men who had been there about buying cattle and hogs, and that sort of thing. The result was that that night there was over $1,000 in fines recorded against each man who had been illegally selling liquor in that city. The next morning a deputation from the Carson League waited upon these men and said, "Now, we are a wealthy concern; we don't want to make any money out of this. If you will pay one fine sufficient to meet the expenses of prosecuting this testimony—one fifty dollar fine each—we will hold back the remaining $9.50 each, and if you never sell any more liquor here we will never enforce the other fines". But of the whole number only two stood out against this proposition the rest threw up their hands, stopped selling liquor, and looked upon the man as a personal enemy who asked them for, liquor, because selling it meant to them ruin. The two obstinate ones were sold out and the fines enforced against them and at last they were sent to the County jail; and a short time afterwards the Carson League was checkling over the fact that these two fellows had escaped from jail and therefore dared not stay in the state.

Now, why was not something of this kind done to enforce the Scott Act? One reason was that the law was changed so that half the penalty recovered did not go to the informer as formerly. This took away much money which could have been utilized for the securing of convictions. Then, for the work of prompt and effective organized action backed by ample funds, the opportunity was lost, the act failed and the inevitable reaction came. The two witnesses who figured in the foregoing story of the Western City were Chicago detectives who understood their business thoroughly and it cost money to employ them. Money was not enough out a large section of the country, but the work which had been done, and done well, immediately after the adoption of the Scott Act, showed what the result would probably have been different to what it actually was.

The Duty of the Day.

Now the question was, is Bill Hope-worth's idea to be done now?" The difficulty that troubles me more than anything else about a prohibition law is that people long that there is a license you know where to look for it, and when you abolish the law, otherwise you would have to hunt for it, and Mr. Smith, Mr. Black, smith shops, shoemaker shops, and all the places which men resort to order to find out what is going on, would be pulled that carries cool oil will have a goodly proportion of whisky among its cool oil cans, and even bible agents, peddling large family bibles, will be taken for the liquor for the delight of thirsty customers, as has actually been done in the past. What I want to know is this: I would amend the liquor law by making it illegal to treat and unlawful to be treated, and unlawful to sell to anybody who was treating. There are three lines that would meet the case, and if more there was treating going on. I have talked of this question and I have not finds da man yet who dissents from the view that treating is the strongest influence causing young men to form the habit of drinking. Prize fighters used to point out how the treating habit causes a man to take more liquor than he would otherwise he would not even have taken one, and he would not go far to the bar-room, I would prohibit treating. I will tell you why. If he treating were allowed, then a man who would not go to the bar-room, would go to bar-room, get it and come out again. Let the bar-room be a public place, without screens, and let anyone who wants liquor stand up like a man in the public view and take his medicine. It would not force him to go to the bar-room, but would not seek there for half a day with two other men, or otherwise illegally, and it should all be in open daylight.

Made Bar-room Public.

The barroom should be a public street, where everybody passing could see who was drinking at the bar; and, if there were more than one man standing at the bar at one time, the onus should be upon the bar-keeper. Or the bar-keeper, if a class of treating were brought, it should be on him to prove that he did not treat treating but that each man was paying for his own liquor. That would be a law which would be in force what I am talking about, and am perfectly satisfied, although I don't know whether the plan would be adopted by the temperance people, some of whom are apt to take an extreme view, and to regard as friends of drink those who do not go to the same length as they themselves. When I was young, I was in the heat of moral earnestness upon any great question they will not listen to reason and that has been one of the weak points of the temperance campaign. His Honor went on to say that he believed that if any considerable body of people had settled a question, such a measure as he had outlined, the politicians would have to follow it, pass it, and it would have received hearty support on both sides of the house, it would not have been a matter of public opinion, and there would have been no necessity for any Referendum. Would it not be a great thing to have every man who is going to remain a drunkard by the treating system. He urged that some such plan as this should be carefully considered at the present juncture, and he should ask every Temperance elegant testimony to the good fight which had been fought, and the great work that had been done by the temperance people.

Of Course.

MINISTERS DEPART.

After British and German Notes Were Handed in at Caracas.

ULTIMATUMS TO VENEZUELANS.

British and German Legations Are Now Closed, and the Accredited Representatives of Those Nations Have Taken Refuge on Their Respective Warships—Claims to Be Satisfied—The Situation.

London, Dec. 9.—Premier Balfour announced in the House of Commons yesterday that an ultimatum had been sent to Venezuela, and that, in the event of a satisfactory reply not being received, the British and German Governments will take measures to enforce their claims against Mistress Sonntry.

When questioned on the Venezuelan situation by Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, Premier Balfour said:

"For the past TWO years we have had grave cause for complaint on various occasions of unjustifiable interference by the Venezuelan Government with the liberty and property of British subjects. The efforts have been spared by the British Government to obtain an amicable settlement of these cases, but in none of them satisfactory explanations have been forthcoming. Latterly, the representations of the British Minister have been practically unnoticed.

"There are cases in which British subjects and companies have large claims. We have been acting in conjunction with the German Government, which also has large claims against Venezuela. A final communication has been made to the Venezuelan Government by the British Minister and the German Charge d'Affaires. If no satisfactory reply is received the Governments have decided to take such measures as may be necessary to enforce their claims."

Replying to a supplementary question, Mr. Balfour said he understood the communication to Venezuela was neither blunt nor identical.

Presented at Caracas.

Berlin, Dec. 9.—The German-British ultimatum to Venezuela was presented at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Caracas.

The ultimatums are identical in spirit but not in form. Each envoy demands the respective claims of the two countries, and is, consequently, different.

A statement will be made to-day in the Reichstag. The Diagarch already has been informed that the Foreign Office is unwilling to disclose the text of Germany's ultimatum, as such a step would be against all precedents and because it also would be discourteous to Venezuela to publish the text before giving that country an opportunity to reply.

Neither is an intimation given as to what forcible action will follow, on the ground that this would be disclosing military secrets.

The navigation officials confirm the reports that the German flagship Vineta arrived at Laguayra, Nov. 30; that the Falke reached there Dec. 1, and that the Gazelle and Panther arrived on that point at the end of last week. Each of these warships is equipped with landing material and field guns.

Ministers Withdrawn.

Caracas, Dec. 9.—The British minister, W. H. D. Haggard, and the German Charge d'Affaires, Von Pilgrim-Baltazzi, left Caracas at 8 o'clock yesterday afternoon for La Guayra, where Minister Haggard went on board the British cruiser Retribution and Herr Von Pilgrim-Baltazzi boarded the German cruiser Vineta. Both the British and the German legations have been closed.

Yesterday afternoon the British Minister and the German Charge d'Affaires deposited at the private residence of the Foreign Minister, Lopez Baralt, separate demands, the British demand being for the settlement of claims and other matters arising out of the late revolutions, and the German demand being for the payment of the interest on the German loan and other claims. The demands are without any specification as to the time given for an answer, but they are in the form of an ultimatum.

At 3 o'clock Mr. Haggard, his secretary, Grant (lent out the Diplomatic of the Legation, Godfrey, left Caracas in company with the German Charge d'Affaires, Von Pilgrim-Baltazzi, for La Guayra. On the arrival of the latter at the latter port at 6 o'clock, thirty officers met the diplomats at the station. Mr. Haggard and the other members of the British Legation went on board the British cruiser Retribution, while the German Charge d'Affaires boarded the German cruiser Vinita. The Ministers left Caracas without previously notifying the Venezuelan Government, probably in order to avoid any hostile demonstration.

The Venezuelan press publishes an open letter from President Castro on the imbroglio with Great Britain and Germany. In this communication President Castro says: "Foreign caballegrams relate that certain foreign nations, especially Great Britain and Germany, have allied themselves together to carry out acts of violence and aggression against Venezuela, and their manner of obtaining the recognition of the payment of interest on the public debt was to be associated as a consequence of the revolution that I lately crushed. Notwithstanding the official character of this news, I refuse to believe it, because it is inconceivable that nations which entertain cordial and friendly relations with Venezuela should prefer to resort to force rather than follow the diplomatic path, especially when the accusations concerns may within the jurisdiction of our laws, which are based on the principle of justice, which, together with the other attributes of authority, I have just redeemed. Had Venezuela refused to fulfil her fiscal engagements and had justice and friendship exhausted their resources against such an attempt only then could such extreme acts be expected, but this will never happen."

Regarding the Venezuelan claims further on, that his Government has not increased the debt of Venezuela, and that he paid all claims that were ordered during the revolution, including the German and other railroad freight charges occasioned by the transportation of troops, and he adds, he said, should prove the honesty of his administration.

President Castro concluded by recommending the Venezuelan press to observe the dignity and calm demanded by such an important matter.

The actual situation is incomprehensible here, the prevailing opinion being no one appeared to know anything about the Anglo-German proceedings against Venezuela. The Minister said that he considered a menace on the part of foreign nations inadmissible and that any threat would be only a "bulleon d'essai" (a feler), while as for England, said the Minister, she has no grounds for aggression.

The Latest From London.

London, Dec. 9.—Great Britain and Germany have presented ultimatums to Venezuela, which will be followed up by the seizure of the customs under a satisfactory settlement is forthcoming within a short period.

The ultimatums have a time limit, but exact no reply, so far as is known here. The Foreign Office states with regard to the time limit: "It is a reasonable one in which Venezuela can satisfy the injured governments. Both sides are practically agreed, not, although the amounts of the claims differ, the notes merely reiterate the continued disregard by the Venezuelan Government of all our representations, specify our claims and demand immediate action on the part of President Castro's Government in accordance therewith."

The British Government's case is practically identical with the statement published in the Morning Post from London, in which it was first announced the present action was contemplated. Should the British ultimatum meet with a favorable reception, British Minister Haggard has already been instructed to go aboard the warship, or if that is impracticable to go into the neighboring British colony.

The Foreign Office, however, does not appear to anticipate any contingency for the moment, nor indeed does it look forward to any pressing development within the next few days.

Premier Balfour's announcement in the House of Commons yesterday is regarded as merely the formal announcation to the situation, which has been becoming more and more acute in the past three months. The Associated Press correspondent understands a complicating circumstance has arisen in the inability of the Foreign Office to communicate with Minister Haggard. The officials here believe that he is still in Caracas, but owing to the reported break of the cable they are quite ignorant as to what steps he is taking, or what the Venezuelan Government intends to do. The Foreign Office is hourly awaiting instructions from Caracas, but up to a late hour last night none had arrived. While the Government is rather worried at their inability to get an answer from Minister Haggard they are in no way seriously alarmed, especially as inquiries have revealed the fact that the Venezuelan representatives are in a similar situation.

The Foreign Office says: There is not the slightest desire to coerce Venezuela, and if any course can be been made to our repeated protests and demands no such action as has taken would have been proceeded with. It was the persistent and insulting disregard to all representations made by Germany and us to move. It is now too late in the day for anything but purely diplomatic arrangements to be accepted as satisfactory for our injuries. When the facts have been stated there is scarcely time to deal with bankers and a financial settlement should have been begun long ago, and would have been welcomed by both Germany and ourselves. However, any bona fide proposition will receive careful attention. Reconstruction in commercial affairs is always better than liquidation, and if the reconstruction of the Venezuelan finances can be accomplished to the satisfaction of our diplomatic claims and individual claims, both Germany and Great Britain will have achieved their ends.

France Will Hold Aloof.

Paris, Dec. 9.—Several newspapers here are urging the French Government to send warships to participate in the naval demonstration against Venezuela, pointing out the extent of the French interests in that country. But it is said at the Foreign Office, the Government will adhere to its purpose to hold aloof from the movement, as the protocol signed by France and Venezuela assures a satisfactory settlement of the French claims.

BRITAIN AND VENEZUELA.

Unusual Activity at the Foreign Office in London Saturday.

London, Dec. 8.—There was unusual activity at the Foreign Office here Saturday afternoon and it was quite late before the doors were closed. This was partly because of an important conference with the Italian Ambassador in regard to the attitude of his Government toward the Anglo-German campaign in Somaliland, but chiefly on account of the interchange of despatches between Lord Lansdowne and Sir Francis Lascelles, the British Ambassador at Berlin, in regard to joint action in the Venezuela question.

It may be said without reserve that England and Germany are at present acting in complete co-operation in this question. If there is reason to believe that the latter is pressing for more aggressive than Lord Lansdowne advocates, it is a belief based on general grounds, and not on or founded on any evidence of lack of harmony.

It was learned from authoritative sources that no ultimatum was delivered to Venezuela yesterday. Instructions which will be sent to the British naval commander off La Guayra, it is expected will result in a definite issue by the middle of this week. There are good grounds for thinking Venezuela may yet meet the claims of Great Britain will be settled without the rather strong sensibilities of British subjects and rivalas where having to make more or less forcible demonstration. It will also probably be indicated at the time that paid all requisite for the settlement of the trouble are going on here.

Italy Is in This, Too.

Rome, Dec. 8.—Two station cruisers have been ordered to be put in commission for immediate active service. Further orders are thought to be going to Venezuela.

Cruiser Gather.

Caracas, Dec. 8.—The second-class cruiser Retribution, from Bermuda, Venezuela, the German cruiser Gazelle, from Willemstad, have anchored at La Guayra. The Spanish warship Nautilus has also arrived at La Guayra.

NOTED CARTOONIST DEAD.

Nast, Consul General, Passes Away After Three Days' Illness.

Guayaquil, Dec. 7.—Consul-General Nast died yesterday at noon after three days' illness. He was interred at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The funeral was attended by the Government, the diplomatic corps, the American colony and by many friends. The coffin was wrapped in the Stars and Stripes. The Bishop officiated, recited a prayer in the cemetery. The death of Mr. Nast is deeply regretted by the natives, who held him in high esteem.

Thomas Nast was nominated Consul-general at Guayaquil, May 1, 1901, and left New York for his post, July 1. He arrived at Guayaquil after the notes were presented to the Consul. Nast was born in Landau, Bavaria, Sept. 27, 1840, and came with his parents to the United States when quite young. He developed into the artistic ability which made him famous as a caricaturist and cartoonist. For years he was a leading artist for British and American publications, and in 1861 was with Garibaldi in Italy. Afterwards he for Harper's Weekly as political cartoonist.

THREE KILLED AT ONCE.

Two Young Women and a Young Man Struck by Express.

Grimsby, Dec. 9.—Miss Maud Hughes, aged about 23; Miss Gertrude Harter, aged about 19, and Mr. Ernest Hughes, aged about 25, all belonging to Grimsby, were killed on Saturday evening at Grimsby Station Sunday night by the Toronto to Buffalo express, which left at 8.35 p.m. The three young people were in company on their way walking home from Grimsby, and when they reached the track were stopped by a freight train standing on the track, which had just passed as the express came down the track at a rate of speed approaching, were struck and their bodies carried some distance west.

Killed in St. Catharines.

St. Catharines, Dec. 8.—A shocking fatality occurred on the Niagara, St. Catharines and Toronto Railway at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. James Murphy was walking westward on the track when he was overtaken and struck by a freight car which was being pushed forward by the company's electric engine. The car struck him in the back, throwing him to the ground with terrific force. The man was dragged a distance of 50 feet before the engine could be stopped, and when it was the body was worked backwards to the end of the car. When taken out the remains were literally scattered to the ends of a man. He leaves a wife. He was 55 years of age.

Allan Branch Strikes.

St. Louis, Dec. 4.—Allan Ralph, the well-known New York correspondent and writer, was taken ill at the Southern Hotel from the effects of a severe violent hemorrhage. His physician states that a repetition of the attack would prove fatal. Mr. Ralph, who is assistant manager of the eastern headquarters of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in New York Tuesday, and that night a number of friends tendered him a dinner at the St. Louis Club in celebration of the event. After the dinner he was attacked with a violent hemorrhage, which came without preliminary warning, and he immediately sank into unconsciousness. He remained in a semi-stupor all night, but rallied somewhat yesterday.

SOUTH OXFORD TRIAL EXPERIMENAL UNION.

Donald Sutherland Confirmed in His Seat.

THE HIRING OF RIGS TRIVIAL.

Not Sufficient to Have Affected the Result—Charges on Which Judges Disagreed—Go on the Case of Judge Wilson—To Be Reported For Corruption—The Full Particulars of Charges Made and Proven.

Toronto, Dec. 9.—Donald Sutherland will hold his seat in South Oxford, at any rate pending the decision of the Court of Appeal, the judgment which will be argued charges of bribery upon which the charges of the trial court, Justices Street and Britton, were unable to agree. The latter rendered separate judgments yesterday morning, confirming Mr. Sutherland in his seat.

The particulars in this protest contained 114 distinct charges of corrupt practices, of which some 24 were tried during the trial, which occupied seven days, and the others were abandoned, the Judges being unable to agree as to two of the charges, one of which was a personal charge against the respondent of having corruptly paid to one Lloyd the hostler at a hotel, the sum of $1, and the other of which was the charge of bribery by an agent. The only charge they held to have been proven was that of the hire of a horse that John W. Patterson, whose agency was established to their satisfaction, had hired horses and conveyances from two livery stable keepers in Ingersoll, for the purpose of conveying votes to and from the polls on election day.

Mr. Justice Street then read the certificate they the court proposes to grant as the result of the trial. It stated the number of charges that had been dismissed, that the two counts the court had disagreed, and that two charges of bribery had been proved. These corrupt practices, however, had been proved to have been committed without the knowledge or consent of the respondent, "and we certify that the said corrupt practices were not of such a nature as to lead us to believe that the result cannot reasonably supposed to have been affected by such corrupt practices. We therefore, that they do not affect the election."

It was also stated by Mr. Justice Street that Mr. Ross and Mr. Patterson would be reported for corrupt practices. The Court, he said, had not sent in till the usual eight days have elapsed, so as to permit of an appeal.

Then the matter will be threshed out, but it there are any hitches in the changes their nature will not be known until the Finance Minister brings down his budget.

Opening Sessions of the Union Very Successful—Two More to Be Held—Meanwhile the Winter Fair in Guelph Is Being Made Perfect—Some of the Addresses—Memorable Week Promised.

Guelph, Dec. 9.—The first of the invasion of the week's great agricultural events has reached Guelph, and the weather, when people are supposed to remain indoors, is marked by the activity on the streets of strangers.

The Experimental Union began its 44th annual meeting yesterday, with a very large and interested attendance. The afternoon meeting was held in the new Macdonald Hall at the Agricultural College, a building just completed, which greatly enhances the fine group of structures out there. The last night's meeting was held in the gymnasium, which was crowded to the doors. The opening sessions have been very successful. To-day the union will hold two more sessions. By the morning the Winter Fair is being made perfect, and in the evening the first meeting will be held. The week promises to be a memorable one in crowds and attractive features to the farmers of Ontario.

After the President's welcome, Mr. C. A. Zavitz, the secretary, presented his annual report, from which the Union had certainly good grounds for congratulation. "Agriculture in Education," by Mr. W. J. Brown, Toronto; "Co-operative Experiment," by Mr. Crosby, of Ontario; "Farm as a Money Maker," by Mr. T. H. Hassard, of Markham; "Farm Production of Firm Manure," by Mr. J. H. Grisdale, of Ottawa, were the subjects treated by the gentlemen named during the afternoon. In the evening an address by Mr. Sandman, the Hon. John Dryden; "The Evolution of the Cow," by Prof. Robertson; lecture by Dr. Fernow, Director of the Bureau of Forestry, Ottawa, N.Y.; "Domestic Education," by Miss Beatrice Livingstone of Ottawa Normal School, and a lecture worth from President Mills, O.A.C., were given.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 12, 1902.

RIOT AT MERRITTON.

Ontario Village in Niagara Peninsula Has an Exciting Time.

G.T.R. EMPLOYES WERE WATERED

They Tore Up the Bridge on Main Street and the Village Firemen Turned the Hose on Them—Railway Men Cut Hose, But Eventually the Firemen Won the Day—Traffic Stopped.

St. Catharines, Dec. 5.—Rather a serious riot occurred at Merritton yesterday. The G.T.R. had planned to erect a new bridge over the main line on the main street of the village, and had a new executive almost completed to place in position. Yesterday the contractors set out a portion of the old bridge to make room for the new bridge.

This procedure was not according to the expectations of the Merritton authorities. The railway men were told to desist till the formal agreement between the company and the village could be signed. The road employes paid no attention to the request, and the village fire brigade was called out. A stream of water was turned on the men, who at once objected, and cut the hose.

Two other lines were laid. A large crowd gathered, and a riot followed. Final things ended with the police, and the workmen retreated, leaving the partially erected trestle.

In the meantime street traffic was totally stopped. The Street Railway communication was continued by a transfer system.

A crossing of teams was rigged near the old station, but yesterday afternoon the highway was also removed by the railway employes.

Excitement ran high, and the matter is now in a state of statu quo. The main tracks of the G.T.R. is blocked by construction, the traffic is being continued over the sidings. No one of authority representing the railway was present, but at 3 o'clock Solicitor Crowe for the village and Reeve Wilson conferred with the foreman in charge of the work and agreed to allow the work of clearing the wreckage from the tracks to go on.

GRAND MASTER MORRISSEY.

Says There Is No Concerted Action of Railroads For Higher Wages.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 5.—Grand Master F. H. Morrissey of the brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who returned here yesterday from Chicago, where he was in conference with prominent representatives of his organization and the Order of Railway Conductors, gave upon request a signed statement, which made in part:

The reports emanating from Chicago that 170,000 men are ready for the established railway labor organizations were forming a federation or combination for the purpose of enforcing a concerted demand for increased wages on the railway companies in the territory west of Chicago, are not authentic, and no such movement is in contemplation. Conferences of representatives of some of the classes of railway labor have recently been held in Chicago, but have had no relation to the formation of a plan for a united movement.

"It is true, as has been before officially stated, that the conductors and trainmen have been presenting requests for increased wages to their employers in the territory within a short time, but the procedure will be regular and orderly, and in accordance with the established rules and customs of the Order of Railway Conductors and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Lives Lost in Fire Trap.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Fourteen men met death by suffocation yesterday morning in a fire which occurred in the Lincoln Hotel, 176 Madison street. Thirteen of those who lost their lives were stifled while lying in their beds. One was taken from the building before life was extinct, but died in the ambulance on the way to the hospital. The building was a veritable trap and lower floors have been used for hotel purposes. The victims were visitors to the Live Stock Exhibition. There were no Canadians among them.

Saved by Life Line.

New York, Dec. 5.—In saving the crew of the barque Alice Reed, yesterday, lines were repeatedly shot over the forward part of the vessel, but the terrified sailors could not secure them. Life savers from the Amagansett Station finally got a line to a portion of the wreck to which seven of the crew were clinging, and safely brought them ashore one at a time. Three of the crew of ten were washed overboard, but they got ashore, though exhausted.

Cossacks Fight Strikers.

London Dec. 4.—A special despatch from St. Petersburg yesterday announces that serious conflicts occurred between Cossacks and strikers on the Kursk-Kiev-Odessa Railroad at about forty-seven miles from Moskol. Shots were exchanged, a few men were killed and thirty were wounded on both sides. Upward of one hundred strikers were arrested.

THE CATTLE EMBARGO

Britain Will Not Accept Shipments from Portland or Boston.

AUTHORITATIVE ANNOUNCEMENT

An Official Note on the Subject of the Rumor That There Would Be a Relaxation of the Order Against Cattle Exportation—Nothing Is Conceded—Boston Steamship Agents Are Discouraged.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—The British Board of Agriculture has consented to an such relaxation of the embargo against cattle export from the State of Maine as was declared in a Boston despatch yesterday that it has conceded.

The report was that a cattleman from London declared that the authorities had consented to the shipment of cattle for the English market from the harbor of Portland, Maine. The statement was warmly credited here in view of the emphatic refusal of the Board of Agriculture to so much as allow Canadian cattle to land on boarded cars through the portion of the State of Maine traversed by the C.P.R. short line between Montreal and St. John.

However, to set all doubts at rest, Hon. Sydney Fisher called the British Commissioner in London yesterday to ascertain from Lord Strathcona's reply, received late yesterday afternoon, that the report was not a word of truth in the report, inasmuch as the board had not authorized any relaxation of its rules. Strathcona telegraphed Boston or the passage of cattle through one of the British New England States. He was asked if this was regarded as settling the matter, and replied that it must be so regarded.

Boston Steamship Agents Discouraged.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 5.—Boston steamship agents were all discouraged yesterday on learning that the strongest and most earnest effort to have the embargo by our British lines upon New England cattle modified to ship through the port of Portland, Me., had failed apparently. Never since the attempt by the Grand Trunk Railway, through Canadian channels, to provide for shipments from Portland had failed. Little business remained having positively refused to relax the prohibition of shipments through Maine, and that also of the loading of cattle at Portland, Maine, for steamers clearing from New England ports, also to the proceedings which had been begun to have cattle shipped to Montreal, thence by the Canadian Pacific Railway through to Mattawaukeag, Me., and thence to Portland, Me., by the Maine Central.

TO SIDETRACK CANADA.

Canada May Yet Be Made an Exporter of Dead Meat Only.

London, Dec. 5.—British supplies will be greatly affected by the Canadian export cattle trade is stopped, for during the first ten months of this year no fewer than 75,077 Canadian cattle were imported. The British Government is most disinclined to give Canada any advice upon the question, whether or not the importation of cattle by the Canadian Pacific short line to St. John through Maine. British official opinion is that Canada should look after its own risk, being protectionist friends at home. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Board of Agriculture says, should not be sorry to see Canadian ports closed and the business of the country made an exporter of dead meat only.

JOKE CAUSED DEATH.

Boy Blown Up With a Pneumatic Air Pump Dies.

New York, Dec. 4.—Harry Hull, an employe of a wholesale grocery house in Jersey City, N. J., died in a hospital there to-day as the result of a practical joke played on him by five of his fellow employes, who were arrested yesterday with having caused his death. It is alleged that they blew up the boy with a pneumatic air pump, having a pressure of 90 pounds to the square inch, and then stole the boy's stomach became greatly distended and severe bowel suffering he died.

When the men accused of having caused Hull's death were arraigned in court in Jersey City yesterday they were rushed at one of them, named Doe, knocked him down and broke his neck him. The father was restrained by the court officers, and the prisoners were held without bail on a charge of manslaughter.

Requiem Mass in Rome.

Rome, Dec. 5.—A requiem mass was celebrated yesterday in the chapel of the Canadian College in honor of the repose of the soul of Superior Louis Colin, who died in Montreal, Sept. 18, aged 64 years. Archbishop Bruchesi officiated at the Pontifical Mass.

Chamberlain at Port Said.

Port Said, Egypt, Dec. 5.—The Canadian Contingent, Hope, having on board Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and party, bound for South Africa, arrived here yesterday. The vessel had been delayed by storms in the Mediterranean. Mr. Chamberlain landed and went to Cairo.

Died Aged 1

Shelburne, Dec. 4.—Mrs. Edward Perrin, one of the early pioneers and without doubt the oldest person in this section, died yesterday morning at her residence in Melmur, a short distance from here. Had she lived until March next she would have been 103 years old. Her mind was active faculties and was quite active and healthy up to a couple of weeks ago. She leaves five sons and two daughters.

Ottawa Gives $884.

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—W. C. Edwards, M.P., pleaded at the meeting in the Russell Theatre last night, which was addressed by Edward Blake and Justice Duff of Belfast, in the interest of Irish Home Rule. Mr. Edwards declared himself an ardent Home Ruler. The collection taken distributed $884 to the Hope Rule Fund.

REFERENDUM RESULT

PROHIBITION MAJORITY 50,000

By the Returns Already In, Though They Are Incomplete, the Enforcement of the Liquor Act of 1902 Has Not Been Sustained at the Polls—Cities Generally Voted For Prohibition—The Returns.

Toronto, Dec. 5.—Yesterday the people of the Provinces of Ontario voted on the question, Are you in favor of bringing into force the Liquor Act of 1902? The returns are followed up to 3 o'clock this morning were very incomplete owing to the bad state of the roads in the country districts. But sufficient figures were at hand to show that the vote is not large enough to bring the Liquor Act into force. Those favoring the act had to poll 212,376 votes.

The latest returns by the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company show:

For the Act	106,192
Against the Act	56,192
Majority	50,000

For the Act	106,192
Against the Act	55,669
Majority	39,924

Total vote, 170,862.

But these returns are not included in these figures. Some are not reported or reported only majorities. In fact only a few constituencies have sent in completed returns. Much is impossible last night to get full returns.

The figures given by the Canadian Pacific Telegraph Co. differ immaterially from the above. They are:

For the Act	101,033
Against the Act	60,469
Majority	40,564

Total vote, 161,502.

Hence from the G.N.W. figures it is clear that the friends of the Liquor Act have fallen short of its adoption by over 107,500, having brought to the polls fewer than half that number of voters.

The vote does not compare well with the vote polled in the first plebiscite in Ontario in 1894, for then there was 192,389 for the plebiscite, prohibition are also shown to have lost heart, for they fell by the wayside to the number of 45,000. Perhaps they considered it useless to vote.

The total vote cast yesterday was 170,862. The total vote cast at the last general election was 466,000, the vote polled throughout the country with the exception of Toronto was small. Bad roads are blamed for the falling off in country districts.

Below are given the returns as they were received up to 3 o'clock this morning:

TAPS FROM THE WIRES.

The Guelph Street Railway has passed into the hands of a new company.

Alfred E. Buck of Georgia, U. S. Minister to Japan, died Thursday at Yokohama of a fever contracted in hunting trip and suddenly ended. The cause was not at first apoplexy.

The Birmingham Post says that it is generally believed in German financial circles that the war in South Africa will be attended by heavy failures in Germany and Austria, the result of pulling a can of boiling water over Chamberlain's head has scalded the back, lungs and kidneys.

The Minister of Justice had the case of Hopkins, sentenced for the murder of St. John, N.B., before him Thursday morning, and it is said has decided to recommend to Council that the law be allowed to take its course.

A large vein has been found at George Burse, a Westminster township farmer, who left his home on the 6th concession last Friday and came to London. Since then nothing has been seen or heard of him. The team he drove returned home.

Thomas Bailey, a 17-year-old Toronto girl, fell into the Don River from the Bloor Street bridge, about 2 o'clock Thursday morning. Her cries were heard by D. A. Cheer, of 71 Bloomfield, who could not swim with considerable difficulty. She was rescued and taken home safely.

A man who gave the name of S. Hayes was found lying in bed Thursday morning at the Commercial and Exchange Hotel, with the gas turned on full, every indication of suicide existed. Coroner Greig was called, and the case was reported to the Detective establishment, where it awaits further disclosures.

GREAT CHANGES PROMISED.

Russian May Have a Woman Ruler and a Constitutional Government.

Vienna, Dec. 5.—Die Ziet yesterday asserts that Russian friends to alter the succession to the throne so that the Czar's eldest daughter and their heirs to succeed him.

The Czar, the paper says, proposes to convene a constitutional Diet to plan by promulgating simultaneously a constitutional government.

A Second Cable Needed.

London, Dec. 5.—At a special meeting of the London Chamber of Commerce yesterday, Thomas Brassey presiding, Mr. Charles Bright read a paper on "Imperial Telegraphic Communication." He said that owing to the breaking of one section of the Pacific cable it was found to be very slow-working, and to meet the traffic, owing to congestion, it was necessary, in spite of a break-down, it would require two cables. Mr. Bright suggested a link with the American Pacific cable.

NEW YORK CONGRESS.

Washington, Dec. 2.—The second session of the 57th Congress convened yesterday. Representative Cannon introduced a bill appropriating $50,000 to defray the expenses of the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission, appointed by the President. The bill provides that the members may receive compensation for their services in the limit of the appropriation as the President may deem proper, and provision is made so that the commission may continue its investigations, the closing of which takes effect upon the employe of the Government.

The Secretary of the Treasury today transmitted to Congress the estimates of the appropriations required for the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904. The total appropriations are estimated at $582,189,112, which is $21,638,576 less than the estimates for 1903, and $33,050,013 less than the appropriations for the current year.

Confederate Nurse Dead.

Florence, Dec. 6.—Mrs. Ellen Orbeson, widow of John Harris, formerly United States Consul at Venice, and a distinguished Confederate nurse, died here yesterday. She was 86 years of age.

TO SPONGE OUT TITLES.

French Bill That May Mean Loss to Many Americans.

Paris, Dec. 5.—The bitterness engendered by the unseating of Count Boni de Castellane, Anna Gould's husband, from the Chamber of Deputies, has culminated in a bill that is likely to forever do away with the right of nobility in France. A bill providing for abolition of all French titles of nobility was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday by Deputy Fournier, and the Houses of Parliament will be asked to consider and referred it to a committee.

The French titles carry with them no privileges under the republic, but they are authorized by the laws of France and are recognized in foreign courts when matters of precedence come to the fore. The proposed law would do away with the titles entirely in France.

A great many American women are affected by the new legislation. If the bill goes through they will be plain mesdames, just as if they had married a tailor, and the millions paid for titled husbands will have been wasted.

The proponents of the bill urge as a reason for its passage that a continuance of the titles granted kings and emperors is an absurdity in a republic. The bill is likely to become the law of the republic.

Russia Answered by Britain.

London, Dec. 5.—Replying to a question yesterday in the House of Commons on the subject of Russia's alleged violation of the Paris treaty of 1856 by the transportation of war goods to the Black Sea, Mr. Balfour said: Russia has notified Great Britain that she is likely to become the law of the republic.

DR. JACK'S WIFE

By ST. GEORGE RATHBORNE

Author of "Dr. Jack," "Captain Tom," "Miss Caprice," Etc. Etc.

"Knee settles it. When you see the porter ask him to open it. That the lady died, perhaps, like to see it as a boon. Mr. Wa-hbs the car, and must be entitled to the effects of it."

"There he passes now. I'll try."

Larry recognized the cigarette between his teeth, and pounces upon the porter, who has just entered his little pantry and kitchen.

Presently he returns, with a look of fierce import on his face. "There is blood here on 'I shall know.' Surely a storm hovers in the distance."

"It's another all-day," he says.

"In what way?"

"Porter is very sorry—key to the state-room is lost, and he has no means of opening the door."

"The black rascal. It would serve him right, if we turned him from the car."

At this Larry presses a hand on his abdomen.

"Pray don't Jack, dear boy. I admit he is a twister but think of the trouble he gets in. We have a good many hours to spend in this car—refreshin' I say of you, if there is any turning overboard, let it be those chaps in the ladies' boudoir, make unfortunate by the loss of the benefits of our special train."

"Larry, you are right. Let the darky go. We must make sure of our guard, and then lay a plan to distance them."

So, while they sit and smoke they talk over many plans, and decide on a plan of campaign for an object the confusion of the enemy.

"Now and then one of them takes a glance into the car, to see that Avis is comfortable. She seems to be reading a novel and at peace, but some of them so much like the pursuers, that we make trouble are in the same car as herself, and, perhaps, has been whispered her back of the drawn curtains screaming the place-name whichever means the car and the state room.

"When Jack later on communicates the startling intelligence to her, she is vitally disturbed. The presence of her husband reassures her. He has ridden over all difficulties thus far, and they are half-way across the continent, so it is fair to presume that he will be able to keep up the good work. Her confidence in Jack is sublime, and he is compelled to put forth the best of his powers in order to merit such faith.

Larry leaves him a detective, but he can show some energy in this line when circumstances compel him to adopt it.

Before a great while he joins Doctor Jack and Avis. He has to tell convinces the doctor that their suspicions are correct.

Larry declares he got a whiff of tobacco smoke at an open window just back of the state-room, which proves the latter place to have gentlemen occupants.

Then, again, by pointing his car close to the partition separating it from the ladies' car, he can believe he hears through the murmur of voices, and even caught a Chilian oath, he thinks, uttered when Colonel Garcia discovered the abominable blunder he made in leaving his military hat somewhere in the car. By the way, Larry has hung it where he can find it, so as to allay suspicions.

A while later he sees the porter take the hat, but it remains in his coat, and walk in the direction of the state-room, which fact prove conclusively that he has been in communication with the occupants.

Larry plots and plans a little way out of the window, and watches to see what happens.

He see enough to prove it all true, for the porter, passing through the mail, hurry hat in, and another opening connected with the state-room.

There is no longer any doubt, and they can settle upon the course to be pursued.

Jack is indignant that he has hired this grain at heavy expense, and no one is whom he dares to trust right to raise on the.

So when he sees the conductor again, he follows him to the smoking compartment.

"A few words with you, my friend," he says.

The man in blue uniform looks uneasy, but takes a seat as Jack motions him to do so, and he has analyzed his features—the conductor is not exactly what Larry pictured, but he knows Jack does not wholly fancy him.

"You intimated that I charter this train—that my money pay for the service of every man employed on it?" says Jack.

"Certainly, sir," comes the ready reply.

"Ah! then tell me why you dare to carry other passengers, and why you flagrantly disagreeable to me—on this very car?"

CHAPTER XXXI.

It would be difficult, indeed, to do justice to the expression that marks Doctor Jack's face when he makes this demand. Men more valiant than the Pullman conductor have fell it before, and cringed. He speaks in a low tone, but there is something in his voice, with the glance from his eye, that emphasizes the words.

The man turns red in the face. He cannot look Jack in the eye for a minute.

"I am sorry, sir, but I have nothing to do with my orders. I go, as you right, my friend, I am going to tell you something of the history of the Pullman scene the continent."

He does so, and as he proceeds the officials face shows a change—eagerness marks it now—a desire to be of service, interested.

"And you are Doctor Jack. Well, I never expected to meet you. We all know about your adventures in Spain and Portugal. Yes, you are right, sir, I have been deceived. I could kick myself now for feeling such a dolt."

"Never mind. Tell me how it came about."

"As simple as apple pie. When the eastern express rolled in we waited for the party who had engaged the special. Up come two gentlemen—

"One dark and with a military look; the other plainly English." interrupts Jack.

"Yes. This English fellow tells me a rock-and-rolling sort of a fellow. I believe it. He says he is a debonair from Standard Keep, in Hankshire Jollington-on-the-Wold. Well, they come up here—I know the place, I have stolen a million and run away with a duchess. I agreed to carry them on board, since he said he would pay for the special in case you failed to turn up. Under these circumstances I trust you will pardon my mistake, Doctor Jack, and believe that I acted to the best of my judgment."

What can Jack do but forgive him.

"Then you will act with me, now. The first thing to be done, then, is to get rid of these interlopers."

The conductor rises to his feet.

"Stay, what would you do?"

Step at the next station, and force them to alight."

The doctor ponders a little.

He is disposed to be lenient, but the knowledge that these men are desperate in their endeavor to take the lady from his heart to a degree.

"Wait a while. We will reach some larger town or city ere nightfall. That will be time enough to make them walk the plank."

It is a fatal decision, and one he has cause to regret later on, but we are mortal and unable to see into the future.

So it is decided, and the rest of the day slips away. They keep a constant watch upon the state-room door, and what tricks the inmates may attempt.

No night again draws over them, yet are still some hours from the destination of the journey. Their prospects are not encouraging, rapid, as all regular trains must give way to the express.

Just as they finish their supper the train slows up, and shortly comes to a stop. Evidently in response to a signal from the conductor the special means to run a few minutes, as he is under orders as well as the official of a regular train.

Now comes the critical moment.

Doctor Jack and Larry prepare themselves for action, if it should be necessary.

Loud voices are heard in the private room, and one exclaims, "Let go, you black 'Garado' of the Chilian, who takes the part of the worm of affairs deeply in heart, and would kick against it, if he could."

They leave the car, and the porter has both doors locked, so that it will be impossible for them to return. As he does so, he looks as though Doctor Jack and his party had shaken them off at last, and as Sinbad did his "Old Man."

For hours they experience a relief, and look forward to a safe arrival.

At St. Louis their special stops. Jack keeps track of the time, and is in the explosion of the conductor—who has received instructions from the officials of the Pullman—that they will arrive at Chicago, if it should be necessary, with the regular east-bound express.

This peculiar which across the continent is rather demoralizing to regular habits, especially when they are racing against time, and have no difficulties or fears as hand; but they are Americans, and can put up with much. Jack, too, would completely worry old some people.

Another change occurs Larry, as he picks up his satchel, for St. Louis has been reached.

It will soon be over, my dear fellow. In thirty-six hours we ought to be in Chicago, and, if we succeed, Mr. Jack, who never shows signs of weariness, no matter what the difficulties he has to battle with.

"That will only give us time. Its hard to fight against the fates," says Larry, and to look at him one would imagine he has the troubles of the universe on his shoulders.

Thus they again pass outside.

The conductor meets them with a troubled face.

"Hello! What's wrong, now? Has our train gone?" cries Jack, a little taken aback.

"No, no, fully fifteen minutes yet, Doctor Jack; but you made a mistake. How are?"

"Its not letting me put those men off at the little station in the mountains."

"Eh! what's this?" exclaims Larry.

"They're gone."

"Well, that's odd. How do you account for it?"

The Pullman conductor shakes his head.

"I am in the dark. I examined both platforms several times while we ran, and there were no signs of them.

"Why, we were in on on on our car. What a beauty we had to take," remarks the little man.

Jack and the employee smiles.

"I hardly think that was the case, though it might be possible. There is another way in which they could have left the train, and, perhaps, they have stolen a ride on the cow-catcher of the locomotive, or even entered the engine, deceiving the man just as they did me."

"That is a more plausible theory. How they reached St. Louis would probably form the base of an admirable story, but at present I am more concerned in considering how I shall gain New York. Will you show us the eastern train, conductor?"

"With pleasure, Doctor Jack. This way, sir."

He acts as if anxious to please. Perhaps he desires to make them forget that he helped their enemies part of the way on the road. The veteran traveler hardly knows what to think. It may be this man has proved false before, and after all remained faithful to the party who first "saw" him with a fat bribe.

It matters little—results are what Jack cares for, and he knows that the means employed to reach them—and yet he is sufficiently considerate curiously enough the way in which mildred and his Chilian, are to be seen.

It is the same old story over again.

Their telegram has reserved a section, and as the train pulls out Avis retires. Jack is unable to say whether his enemies are in the car or not, but he knows they are all down. He is inclined to believe they are in the special.

Already they have started, and the savory bagels appear. Jack, who never make up such speedy time-tables, their trains are behind on hand, and he knows this better than Doctor Jack.

To annihilate the many miles separating them from their next change of base, they must keep up this steady speed, whirling the leagues behind them.

Jack's golden remedy is once more used as a lever to help things along. Though averse to the almost universal habit of tipping, he knows the weakness of human nature, and how best the work can be obtained from a majority of public servants.

Conductors are reached on time. That run all through has been a remarkable one, and Jack's luck is made. The train from St. Louis has been an extra, carry a large number of people to some gather, ing in New York, and there is a special, limited waiting for the Pennsylvania to take them to their destination.

When they have left the sandy city on the yellow Child, and speed up the Miami Valley, it is about one in the afternoon. Inquiry gives Doctor Jack some knowledge concerning their expected arrival in Gotham. If all goes well, they will make the run in twenty-one and a half hours. Given twenty-one, and they would reach Jersey City at 10 p.m.

"Remember," says Avis, "we change cars at Pittsburg, and go one hour ahead."

"Yes," says Jack, frowning, "that only leaves an hour to reach the first office in Wall street, but that is doubly enough. We will take a hack to the Cortlandt street ferry, and have the John hustle on along. I reckon we'll be there, Larry, as my boy, if our work course on the road."

"I shall pray we may be delivered from that," declared Avis solemnly.

This is spoken at the time they sight the dome of the capitol at Columbus. A short stop here, and again they are flashing toward the region of the rising sun.

Night approaches—the last night they expect to spend on the road. It has been a long and exciting run from Valparaiso, to New York, and rendered more than continually dangerous on account of the desperate tactics adopted by their rivals. Perhaps the victory will come at last, and be all the more pleasing because it has been earned.

Let us go to Pittsburg now. The train is late, and Jack, Larry and Avis are quietly eight to open before them. Suddenly, a little after which, begins the climb over the great Allegheny.

Avis was not well, and retired early, leaving the gentlemen to a special car on a special, can see nothing of the scenery, which is a pity—it is. It is a more everyday performance.

No night again draws over them that discovered Lord Rackett and the doughty colonel in ambush, and they have hopes that perhaps they are discounting desperate measures, and that this is a last venture for their case is getting down to a fine point, and they know it. Still they are all on the jump, and it is only a question of a few hours ere they reach that place.

Jack is lightheiled they part with two engines, climbing over heights, reaching through tunnels, and finally reaching the summit. Then down the slope they speed, for a long way, for a little seventy miles an hour. An accident now would be disastrous, and all. The train is wrecked, a red light flashes in the cold gray of the early morning—there is a halt ahead. Desperate measures are taken to stop the special, for the porter has gone, so faithful, slip, and with a crash they are into the pile. Jack, Larry and Avis turns to shield his wife. The car seems to rise on end, totters, and then rolls down the embankment.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The scene that ensues beggars description. Fortunately this sleeper is the only one that left the road-bed, else the calamity would have been much greater. A wreck is always more than ever forget the scene—the fearful sounds, the blazing lights from burning freight cars, the hiss of escaping steam, and, above all, the terrible cries of men and women half-crazed with affright or wounds.

Madness is apt to rule under such circumstances as these—even the coolest of men often joins in the confusion.

Doctor Jack can remember endeavoring to shield his wife, and remember, he appears in the aisle just at the second they leave the train—he has the car up-ended, and Avis is hanging upon his hind legs—then it totters, and turns over.

All is another blank within. Fortunately the lights go out, so that the danger from fire is diminished. He seem to roll over once or twice, and then remain unconscious, as though stunned by a gully.

A little accident had occurred at one of a thousand other points they have passed in the heart of the Allegheny, it would have resulted in a frightful loss of life; but like most other affairs that have occurred at long intervals on this superb road, fortune has been kind, and apparently selected the best spot for the trouble.

Doctor Jack loses his mind. He is conscious of a terrible whirling, and then comes a blank.

It is only a few minutes that he lies thus, and then his senses return. Strangely enough the car is lacking had fallen upon its bed, so they stand upon the floor. Such a situation is his senses are returning—every one appears to be shrieking at once. Confusion reigns, and the excitement is great. A car has been piled up in every conceivable manner.

Jack gains his feet, reaches broken windows here and there. The burning freight car—one such fortunate, at least, for although dawn is close at hand, it will be an age ere the sleepers old Phoebus rears his glowing orb beyond the valley.

The first thing that occurs to Jack is the thought of his wife. What physical pain he may suffer himself is as nothing to the mental torture that sweeps over him at the thought of those her would in reply to his cries.

He is like a tigress robbed of her whelps. A dozen sprained ankles or broken bones could not crush him now. He feels around him, for it is too dark to distinguish anything clearly in the confusion.

At first he discovers only the medley of wreck that have been rolled from the berths but as his eager hands search all around they soon touch a figure lying still and motionless.

It is Avis.

A terrible fear sweeps over him that she is dead.

The grim monster comes so easily under such circumstances that Jack has reason to be alarmed.

Fear is a thing that may follow. The fateful flashes of fire, seen through the broken windows, possibly indicate the beginning of a conflagration that may reach the Pullman sleeper and all in it to ashes.

Alarmed, Jack lifts his lifeless form to the open air as speedily as possible. He knows that it is impossible that he can gain either door through such a mass of debris. Men are crawling out around him, bellowing lustily either with pain or fright.

Doctor Jack turns to the window of his section. It has become jammed, though neither of the two panes of the double window appear to be broken.

One kick from his uninjured foot sends the glass flying. He follows it with several more to remove the smaller pieces. Then making a hurried investigation, he starts upon the task of getting himself and Avis through.

The first part of this job is easily performed in spite of the pain that comes from his limb; but it is much more difficult to assist his wife. Once again Doctor Jack has cause to thank heaven for his strength.

It looks as if a man's back is the center of strength when he is straining to lift or haul a heavy weight. But the center of strength is not the back, but the stomach. Men have no strength in the back of a giant if they starving. All strength is made from food, and food can only be converted into strength when it is perfectly digested and assimilated. When the stomach is diseased, the nutrition of food is lost and physical weakness follows.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It makes men strong and muscular. Strength follows good digestion and assimilation of the food taken.

"I suffered from a very obstinate form of dyspepsia," writes R. E. Secord, Esq., of Thomas, Ontario, "for which I tried a great deal of medicine without success. I was so low I could not bear any solid food or any exertion. I was nervous and depressed. Could not recommend highly enough your Medical Discovery. I have taken three bottles, and it has accomplished a permanent cure."

The Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Jack's wife opens her eyes, and, when she recognizes her husband, a look of joy lights up her face. Her first words are, "Are we safe?"

"Safe as a church, my dear. Are you hurt?"

"I think not. Only bruised and shaken. Where are we?"

"Not far from Pittsburg. Now, Avis, I must leave you for a little while, and see what I can do for the poor people who are hurt."

Jack kisses her good-by. Sad though the parting is, he knows he blesses his darling him such a wife.

"You have the packet safe, dear?" he asks.

"Yes; yes; it is sewed in my dress."

"And the Chilian?"

"I still possess—do not fear—if steam will do its duty and reach New York alight, very soon after which, be-ginning, as you have spoken about it or not."

"Then good-by, and heaven guard you for the trouble we have caused."

"I have no shame to think I have to do a lawful service to rescue my husband from his enemies and grasping Larry, but she gives him an entreating smile, and, as he departs, she sinks back on the cushions from the shelves.

E. E. W. McGAFFEY,

LINDSAY'S LEADER OF LOW CASH PRICES.

The Weekly Post.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 12, 1902

THE DATE IS JAN. 1ST

Mr. Chalmers' Resignation Accepted by Council.

THE CAS COMPANY CONTRACT UNDER DISCUSSION.

Exception Taken to an Alleged Test of the Street Lights—Safeguards Supposed to Exist in the Contract Cannot be Located with a Microscope.

According to notice given, and on understanding arrived at Saturday night, a special meeting of Council was held last Monday in the Town Clerk's office. The members present were Mayor Ingle and Aldermen Jackson, O'Reilly, McBiarnid, Barrows and Hore. Absent, Ald. Robson.

The Object of the Meeting.

Ald. Jackson—"We are called for a special purpose. I believe to-day we give the resignation of Town Commissioner Chalmers."

Clerk Knowlson read the document.

Ald. McBiarnid—"The auditor has called our attention to certain important details in connection with Local Improvement works matter, and lately completed that must be attended to by Chalmers, and we must give him time to complete his reports. For that reason I will move that his resignation be accepted to take effect Jan. 1st."

Ald. Hore—"I will second that."

Ald. Jackson—"I don't know what we are looking to the new Commissioner to leave us at the first of the year there will be considerable work to be done between that date and the first of March, and I don't think we want to give any man an advantage over others who may seek the position. We should give him time to disappointment. Why not make Mr. Chalmers stay until March 1st, or at least to the first meeting of the new Council."

Ald. O'Reilly—"I think the Board of Works can manage to get along anything that needs to be done during the interval. Mr. Chalmers tells us he's nothing very important."

Ald. McBiarnid—"I'm in sympathy with the suggestion and Ald. McBiarnid's reasoning on the matter."

Some discussion then ensued as to the duties of the Town Commissioner of the Commissioner, and Clerk Knowlson read a letter to see to it that a correct return of all the property in the town is made.

Council Will Not Act Yet.

Ald. Jackson called the attention of the Council to the action taken at the Evening Post of Monday, dealing with the Chalmers resignation. He found fault with the reference to the Council's last conference in the Judge's private chamber between the members of Council and the Town Solicitor, and said he regretted that the report had not been in full, for as they would have seen that no action in it was made to block the further progress of the investigation.

Ald. Barrows—"I don't know about Ald.—I mean Ald. Jackson's reputation be accepted at once, and that Council proceed immediately, but I didn't hear anyone support one."

Ald. McBiarnid—"When I took up the matter I said I would only consider—to foster on Mr. Chalmers the remarks made in the Council on grounds the walks contract. There were other grounds for investigation to be proced—which I still think can be proved—but when the Contract was established I felt that the town's interests were protected, and I did not care to be drawn into a position for further prosecution of the investigation."

Ald. O'Reilly—"As far as I am concerned, I think the Council's action is paid to do our business and protect the town. I don't think there is no novice that the case go on. I think there are enough of the proofs, and when Ald. McBiarnid and the Town Solicitor have completed the case drop I did not feel justified in taking the opposite course, although I wanted the case to go on. There is a matter of a charge of collusion to a remark made by Mr. Thomson, Mr. Chalmers, the Reeve, to the effect that he did not think the Council would let the contracts for walks at the time of the meeting. My opinion is not in accordance with the proceedings. I think many progressive towns and I am prepared to prove that Mr. Chalmers's view is wrong."

Ald. McBiarnid—"What was to be gained by pursuing the investigation? Was the charge against Mr. Chalmers was ended?"

Ald. Barrows—"In common justice to Mr. Chalmers the enquiry should be taken to a finish."

Ald. Jackson—"No member of the Council has a right to let off any thing to block the investigation. I think Barrows should be surprised to hear that Chalmers offered to resign. Chalmers or Mayor Ingle is capable of another age."

Mayor Ingle—"That was when he was ill, I persuaded him not to do so because his going would muddle everything."

Ald. Barrows—"No one should be allowed to make insinuations against me to the town."

Ald. Hore—"I still think we were too fast in pushing some of the work."

Ald. Jackson—"I don't know; there were good reasons for the Post three other night taken from the Examiner."

On motion of Ald. Hore, seconded by Ald. Barrows, the Clerk was instructed to return the resignation presented by Mr. Geo. Cocoulle with his thanks.

Council then adjourned.

THE CAS COMPANY CONTRACT.

Members Profess Surprise Over Some of the Clauses.

At the request of Ald. McBiarnid, chairman of the Police and Lighting committee, the members remained for a time to consider matters connected with the town lighting system. The chairman explained that the Company's accounts for October and November had not been paid. With the November bill there had been submitted a certificate in connection with an alleged test of the street lamps, said to have been conducted by one J. K. Johnson, of Toronto, Government Gas Inspector. No member of Council had been invited to be present, and the report, in proof that a street light had been selected for the purpose of the test.

Ald. O'Reilly—"We'll take no notice of that—we want a street test, as the contract calls for."

Ald. McBiarnid—"The contract does not provide for anything of the kind—according to it a test may take place anywhere. If the Gas Company had gotten a certificate from a Government inspector."

Ald. O'Reilly—"Well, the proposal to go into a wilness box and take oath that a public test was supposed to be given, and if it turned up the contract then there have been fraud ring somewhere."

Ald. McBiarnid—"I don't know about that, but its not there now."

Ald. Jackson—"I feel we were not able to have the privilege of having a test made by Prof. Galbraith, of Toronto, whenever we desired."

Ald. Barrows—"Anybody that was last year's Council made a nice muddle of things."

Ald. McBiarnid—"There's another thing—we haven't got the 1500 candle power light promised in the contract, yet we're charged for them. The inspector was supposed to report on them, but they're not mentioned in his certificate."

Ald. O'Reilly—"I wouldn't pay them until we've had a proper test—and put up the 1500 c.p. lights."

Ald. McBiarnid—"I think we can do that without any trouble."

A resolution was then carried unanimously that the Gas Company be called on to serve the proper notice of the intention to make a test, report to out the contract, and the Solicitor was directed to prepare the proper notice meeting to be held Saturday evening.

A Costly Blunder.

Mayor Ingle called attention to a complaint made by a Council member, disclosing that on several occasions lately the Town Hall was left in darkness if the engineer at the pump house happened to be absent, and the fire alarm proved a false one.

Good Humored Meeting.

Clerk Knowlson read a letter from Mr. A. W. Campbell, Provincial Commissioner of Highways, dated Monday, 22nd inst., as the date when he would be in Lindsay to discuss the address a Good Roads deputation. The Clerk was instructed to write the necessary pointers issued.

The Committee then adjourned.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Germany took a good dose of Hon. Mr. Tarte's cathy nostrum, and she is recovering the natural position for her folly.

It will be a pity if a large vote was not polled to-day. Such an occasion should show the state of popular sentiment.

High taxation never yet added a dollar to the wealth of a people. High tariff taxation ever tends to split a nation into millionaires and serfs.

Dr Weld does not appear to be very much impressed with Kitchener's strategy. He regards it as blockhouse scheme as a "blockhead policy."

The temperance man who didn't take the trouble to get out and vote Thursday ought not to grumble hereafter if his own son becomes a drunkard.

Fred. Smith, a St. Louis coal dealer, who delivered a short-weight load of coal to a patron, has been fined $100 and costs. He should, in justice, the maximum penalty imposed prescribed by law.

Ottawa Free Press: The speech delivered during the Canadian club at Hamilton by Mr. Tarte was almost on the same lines as others he has delivered. But it is one will worth repeating. It is a plea for the protection by a national spirit and that needs some fanning. The text of Canada's case is contained in the last one, and he preaches on it "straight from the shoulder," as a critic remarked. In the quotation he says "Canada comes, knocked on a subject, which is not sufficiently illustrated by Canadians. He strongly deprecated the high-class spirit, and said he knew what party spirit was, but Canada should rise to both parties. On many occasions there was not enough party and not enough national spirit. He was proud of British institutions, which were the best in the world, but there were occasions when the two parties should agree. That is a good sentiment, and cannot be too much laid to heart. Party has its place and use in a system of government that as the years of trial go on does not increase but decrease in importance.

The fire losses for the Dominion and the United States for the eleven months of 1902 are the lowest for some years, being $64,647,000 and 900,000 lower than for the same period of 1901.

Another man, Prof. Clark, has been killing Shakespeare with unskilled, man cruelty to support a family on $900 a year. We fancy that the Prof. would find that $900 a year is good deal of skill to do that. Moreover it is not quite $900 a year, it is 900 a year and three years such a limit for the Prof. to stay.

Toronto Star.—It is learned that Mr. A. H. U. Colquhoun has been engaged by Mr. Flavelle and Mr. William as associate editor, with the latter in charge of the paper, and has resigned from the editorial staff of the Mail and Empire, to assume his new duties. Mr. Colquhoun is recognized as a writer of ability and is a man of wide popularity."

Winnipeg Tribune: 45 per cent. tariff protection is the modest request of the Canadian manufacturers. This means an increase in price of about 25 per cent. on the manufactures the consumers would be small millions in pocket if, as an alternative, they consented off every man, woman and child on earth to be the office holder.

The above frank admission of this folly of protection elicits the following from the Toronto Globe and Times: Yet the Tribune, for personal reasons, has been doing all its work to repute the party that stands between the tariff raisers and the consumers. How does it think the consumers would benefit by the success of the Borden-Foster-Sifton crowd?"

Frank Carpenter, the syndicate writer, who has been travelling regularly in fifty American newspapers, is en route to New Oinland to write up the country. Canadians would be surprised if they knew just how much attention they are receiving from the American press and public, he said to a Toronto interviewer. Canada is looked upon as the way of immigration tends to work from the United States. The Canadian North-west, but all parts of Canada are now being taken this attention. I have been giving Canada a good deal of attention lately and am amazed at the progress the Dominion has made on Freeport. Asked if I believe for the next few years the States will supply a million settlers for Canada, I said that I believe it easily be made up, either, for these people are the best pioneer product, and most desirable as citizens."

Bobsayeen Bripsgenient.

Public Ownership Bulletin: Bobsay is one of the best within the range of civilization, and is the most advanced type of Home is the ideal of all communism. That step might still be improved if the people of Bobsay, Bripsgen who attend school should have provided free books at the public expense, and the food supplied should be cooked by the scholars and the teachers, and the dishes washed. Another step might also be advantageous if the work of the school was communism. The school children would be a miniature Bobsay Bripsgen Government. Everybody should have a share in the work and in the profits of the first while being washed. The moral effects on the boys were marvellous. Instead of being rough, tarrgous, and they would feel a pride in their appearance. They would have two dresses and the washing should be done by a lady who is a good professional programme. One of the first reforms which Mr. Smith, the chairman, would make would be the articles will undertake, as soon as he becomes Premier of Ontario, will be the above school reforms.

Prof. Goldwin Smith has the following to say regarding last Thursday's vote and the prohibitory law:

"I do not believe in prohibition, but I do believe in the regulation and restriction of the saloon, which is the only sent of any serious evil. But there are two things to be considered—first, the danger of having an illicit trade in liquor, which would not do injustice to the honest dealers. The temperance is a very good thing, but so is justice. It is scarcely possible to expect to extirpate at one legislative stroke a taste coeval and coextensive with humanity. You must carry on criminal legislation against a practice which, however can may view it, nine-tenths of the people don't believe to be a crime. Think the result on the whole is satisfactory. It probably signified the feeling in favor of a more strict regulation of the saloon."

Rheumatism

No other disease makes one feel so old. It stiffens the joints, produces aches and makes every motion painful.

It is second only to Kidney Disorders in disable, and it should never be neglected.

M. J. McDonald, Trenton, Ont., had a severe attack of Rheumatism. He writes: Hatton Turner, Bellevue, Mo., had so severe an attack of Rheumatism that he could scarcely get up or down stairs. W. H. Shepard, Sandy Hook, Conn., was laid up with it, was cold even in July, and could not dress himself.

According to testimonials voluntarily given, these sufferers were permanently cured, as others have been, by which corrects the acidity of the blood on which rheumatism depends and builds up the whole system.

BOOK REVIEWS.

"Letters from a Self-Made Merchant to his Son," by George Horace Lorimer.

This little book is a collection of the letters which the packing house of Graham and Company, to his son Pierrepont, functionary of the firm, at Chicago, by gone to college, and takes the view that is naturally coming to the millionaire and son of a millionaire, the intention to make a man of him, and shows the young fellow always signs of foolishness, the old man reminded him is sharply enough. The father is a Boston man, he knows that experience is the best teacher, and that even an old man can learn a lot in a partnership in a big packing house without working up and learning all the details of business. Some of the sensible notions, leaves bizarre cities hang, and the idea to take a post-graduate course at Oxford and the grand tour of Europe, are in spirit of what the old man, whose early education was obtained in a hard school of adversity, beginning with the big pail, and ending with the generalship of thousands of men, and hundreds of men in New York and London, brings him to the idea of the sports that are the mailing desk at eight per week. The generous college allowance is stopped and hereafter Piggy must earn what he gets. The father concludes that "I've got more than twice his pay, and I'm a long way from the top of the ladder yet." Piggy's reply is sweet and amusing at the progress the Dominion has made on Freeport, and he believes for the next few years the States will supply a million settlers for Canada, and that the old man's loss easily be made up, either, for these people are the best pioneer product, and most desirable as citizens."

Advertising Pointers.

—Now is the time to do your Christmas advertising.

—An advertisement must present interesting facts from the standpoint of the reader. The facts, which the reader wants to know, may be dow, but mighty important.

—Appearances count for much in this world. A big advertisement costs money and looks like prosperity. There are many who prefer to deal with the prosperous.

—The average person is hard-headed and cautious. He wants to be shown him what he asks for. Usually the thing he asks for is of a prosperity nature, is one that has been advertised.

—An ad which is concise and brief has the power of keeping the mind of the reader, it gives satisfaction by preventing one's thoughts from wandering. It saves time, thus labor. It saves space likewise money. It is a symbol of truthfulness, dispelling doubts. It is a sign of originality and attention of the uninterested can be aroused more quickly and held longer than by a lengthy explanation, because it will have spoken and finished long before the other has begun to speak.—Printers Ink.

The Weekly Post.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 12, 1902.

MAKE NO MISTAKE.

We are sending our handsome Christmas number to those only who have paid IN ADVANCE for 1903. Don't wait too long. This Christmas number is full of interesting things, pictures, Stories, etc.

IS IT A CASE OF WHITEWASH?

We make the frank admission that we are not at all satisfied with the outcome of the so-called investigation of the charges lodged against ex-Town Commissioner Chalmers by Alderman McDiarmid. It was a judicial investigation, and the proceeding thought of some of those in charge seemed to be "How little can we disclose," rather than "How much can we prove?" We are grieved by our estimate of the sense of fairness and honesty inherent in our citizens if they express approval of the extremely narrow limits within which the enquiry was confined. It was unfair to Ald. McDiarmid, the author of the charges, it was patriotically unfair to Mr. Chalmers, in seeming as the application of the "closure" rule following the admission that he had a financial interest in the Gosnell tender leaves him at the mercy of all who wish to believe him guilty of the entire category of charges. The fact that the defence contingent before any evidence was offered in the essential points of the first charge will be interpreted as fully warranting that view.

For the information of our readers, and in order that they may be able to judge fairly at a just verdict concerning the procedure at the investigation, we again publish the charges made by Ald. McDiarmid against Mr. Chalmers, the town's trusted servant.

Whereof it has been alleged that James M. Chalmers, town Commissioner of the Town of Lindsay, has been guilty of malfeasance, breach of trust, and other misconduct in relation to the duties and obligations to the municipality, in that he has neglected duty and misapplied, given information to certain parties not entitled thereto, and withheld from other parties, and otherwise misconducted himself in reference to the tenders for contracts and works under his control during the present year 1902, and that he has been so in a manner prejudicial to certain contracts for granolithic walks, let by the Town, and that proper care is not taken to encourage competition in the letting of contracts for town works, and that he has not given his whole time and attention to the service of the town, but has been engaged in outside contracts with other parties, and has improperly used the property and material of the town in other works and has not kept proper and correct accounts thereof; and it is advisable that the said matters should be investigated and other inquiries made as hereinafter mentioned.

We have firm faith in Ald. McDiarmid's integrity of purpose in making the above charges, and believe his statement at the Council board that he regretted having to take such action. Moreover, we believe he was prompted by an honest conviction when—after reading the above list of serious accusations—he declared in his enquiry as fair and sufficient proof to substantiate the charges. Not one charge in particular—not the first one only—but the full list of allegations cited in his resolution. No citizen will believe for one moment that Ald. McDiarmid tried a volley of charges at Mr. Chalmers in the hope that some one of the "popular strike and boycott" would stick. The presence of thirty-five reputable witnesses, who had been summoned to give evidence in relation to the several charges precludes that idea.

We are told that Mr. Hugh O'Leary, K.C., managed the case of his client, Mr. Chalmers, in a very clever way. All who have heard Mr. O'Leary plead will be ready to believe the statement. We regret that we have not yet heard anyone complaint Town Solicitor Hopkins upon the management of the case for his clients — the ratepayers — who through grave mismanagement on the part of some person or persons are shut out from a knowledge of the possible extent of their servant's wrong-doing.

The agreement of Council not to proceed with the investigation was a mistake, and Solicitor Hopkins should have advised against it. Ald. McDiarmid could not well insist upon the prosecution of the inquiry after not having himself spoken to the implication that he was trying to persecute Mr. Chalmers. The forward step should have been taken by the members who felt doubtful the truth of the charges laid.

Our readers will not be satisfied with the Scotch verdict, "Not Proven." The investigation was a failure. Failing further action, the people may well ask, "Is it a case of Whitewash?"

A COUNTY GOOD ROADS SYSTEM.

The efforts of the Ontario Government to foster the building of good roads are meeting with gratifying success. The setting aside of a fund of one million dollars to aid the rural municipalities in improving their highways, and already a number of County Councils have applied for their share of the grant—an amount equal to the sum set aside by the Ontario Government—Mr. A. W. Campbell, Provincial Commissioner of Highways, has done and is doing a great work in influencing public opinion along right lines, and the results of his labors are now showing. The benefits accruing from good country roads are so apparent and real, it is almost cause for wonder that a quiver of the million is left in the treasury. As Mr. Campbell in his last report has shown "the delights of country life are greatly enhanced by good roads, which are necessary, not merely for driving, but for saddling, wheeling and for the hauling of building material, farm and garden produce, fuel, and all the necessities of life." Extravagance at any time or the demand of the automobile Makers' Association is asking the U. S. Congress to grant $60,000,000 for the construction of good roads, there is a method in their madness. Some an equivalent would repay itself twice over in half a century.

The following extract from a thoughtful article in the Stratford Beacon shows how keenly alive are some progressive Canadians to the advantages conferred by the act:

In Ontario, the appropriation of a million dollars by the Legislature for the purpose of improving the public highways by counties, or by townships in case a county by-law is not adopted, has not been a very encouraging of such an extent as might have been anticipated, yet there is a awakening on the subject and the movement will probably be more rapid in the near future. Lennox has passed a by-law through all stages providing for the expenditure, exclusive of the provincial grant, of $17,000 on road improvement under the Highway Improvement Act. Wentworth has appropriated $20,000 for a similar purpose. In Elgin county more than two-thirds of the township councils have approved of certain roads being designated county roads and improved under the act. A convention of county and township councillors in Oxford county unanimously approved of a plan to spend $250,000 on a system of county roads, and the Bill has by this time gone through the ordeal of being remodeled, to meet the views of township councillors.

A valuable educative work has been done by Mr. A. W. Campbell, the present Deputy Minister of Public Works. One result of this work has been that Wellington county has adopted a system of statute labor in many townships. To the end of the year 1901 there were 73 townships which had abolished or commuted statute labor in whole or in part, and the number this year has been increased to 97, or about one-quarter of the total number of townships. Of the 73 townships which had commuted, 24 had wholly abolished the system, and for road purposes collect a rate on the assessment. Forty-eight commuted all statute labor, at a cost per day, varying from 50 cents to $1. The usual amount being from 50 to 75c. a day. Eighteen additional townships have partially abolished or commuted the system. The following testimony from townships where statute labor has been removed is that the roads improve much more rapidly than in the surrounding townships. Where the old system is retained, and in some cases it is affirmed that one year of the new methods has been worth five years of the old system, is seen improvements in the roads of years. At the November session it was decided to memorialize the Legislature to make a slight change in the Act to suit local conditions. Similar difficulties, no doubt, have confronted other County Councils in regard the way has been made clear without special legislation. In the meantime, the matter of good roads is a subject in a business-like way. The approaching nominations offer a fine opportunity for the discussion of good road's system for the County, and we hope every candidate will take a bold stand. For their benefit we quote the terse advice of Mr. A. W. Wood, the father of good roads in Huntingdon County, on the occasion of his address before Victoria County Council a few years ago, "It is the duty of County Councillors to educate public opinion, and not servilely follow the lead of others."

IT WAS NOT POLITICS.

(Toronto Evening Star.)

The fact that Toronto and other cities where the Conservative vote is strongest gave unexpected majorities for the Liquor Act has started the story that the Conservatives supported the Act in the hope of "pulling Ross in a hole." Individual electors may have voted for the Act with this idea, but it is highly improbable that the Conservative managers had anything to do with it or any desire to see the Act carried at the polls. In fact, the Conservatives made strenuous efforts to prevent that Mr. Ross could not be put into a hole" by such tactics. If the Conservative party had wrecked the Liquor Act, it would have been for Premier Ross to go to ob and get the lame duck and the prohibitionists would have seen that they only helping winning the by-elections for him, so that he would be strong enough to carry out the task. The by-elections are in rural constituencies, where, in a political campaign, the prohibitionists would be able to work to a great deal for strength, and so, instead of putting Mr. Ross "in a hole," the Conservatives by carrying the Act, would have given him all the by-elections. The Conservatives must have been well aware of this. It is, as we have said, highly improbable, therefore, that the Conservative managers wanted to lose the liquor law since that is the by-election. The large vote in favor of the Liquor Act polled in the cities cannot therefore be explained away or minimized by attributing it to party manipulation.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In 1894 the vote on the Prohibition Plebiscite was: For, 152,467; against, 110,757.

The municipal ownership idea is growing in popularity in Birmingham, Eng., as elsewhere. The tax-payers have just decided, by a large majority, in favor of municipal ownership of the tramway system.

A United States despatch says there are 210,000 adult males in the Republic and one man for every 21 is a pensioner in receipt of Government bounty, and that takes no account of those who are pensioners through the tariff.

"Public Opinion," an English weekly, does not think the Canadian preference has been a failure. It declares that the trade of Great Britain and Canada was on the ebb when the preference "was granted" and "it turned the tide, and it will be renewed to-morrow, the ebb would begin again."

There is a wave of depression sweeping over Europe. Things have been very prosperous in some lines, and the inevitable reaction has been reached. Countries like Canada whose prosperity is founded on agriculture are not likely to be so severely affected, but it is well to build securely.

The Canadian Reading Camp Association is trying to get young fellows who have got teachers' certificates to go into the lumber camps, offering in addition to the $25 to $40 monthly pay, $10 to $20 for teaching on rainy days and evenings. The Association has already secured five young men and wishes to get more. It was the lack of that class of five that joined the lumber camps that led to the formation of the Lumber Shanties Association, a system as failure and a very sad conclusion to hang on so small a peg.

It is pleasant to find such implacable Tory organs as the Toronto Mail and Empire have had to signify their approval of the establishing of a chair of forestry in the University of Toronto. There will be no long ago, when every Tory in the legislature fulminated against the Government for taking the first step towards preservation of our forests and Government lands, and again they tried to prevent payment of the salary of the Clerk of Forestry. Times have brought the Liberals many justifications.

A Toronto school teacher stopped a bad pupil into school and then had the boy's father claiming a row over it. We are glad to see that the School Board stands by the teacher. Better be expelled than that father is sowing a crop of dragon's teeth. Better be expelled than the bad boy and applied any further persuasion necessary to make him offer the teacher a proper apology for his conduct. Many a man grows to think his parents are the guilty ones for respect and obedience to preceptors. The boy who has been coddled and petted and backs him in treating the teachers with contempt is likely to occupy a prison cell and later life.

BOOK REVIEWS.

"Oliver Langton," by G. A. Powles, Chairman of Public School.

This is a character story from the pen of a former resident of Fenelon township. Apart from its high literary merit the book will appeal with a peculiar charm to all the old families of the county because the action of the story centres in Lindsay and Fenelon township in pioneer days and many of the old citizens are mentioned by name. Thomas Hudspeth, principal of the Lindsay Grammer School in the early sixties, Adam Hodgins, Tom Pollock, Tom Benson, Squire Hamlin, and Constable Dodgall.

Oliver Langton is the much maligned son of a rich lumber merchant. Through his innocent connection with a small theft he is confined in the village jail for two months. No word of sympathy or encouragement comes from his parents or sister, and he refuses to accept liberty on the bail of his friends, the Grays. On his release he re-enters high school, where he has a great many trouble amidst a band of friends notably among them the principal, Mr. Hodgins.

On his graduation, Oliver has some difficulty of entering the ministry, as the Resurrection, the Trinity, and a host of other dogmas with which he cannot reconcile his intelligence, force him to abandon the vocation of a country school teacher at Lescoe. Oliver Gardiner is not long on the job ere he teacher when it is learned that one of the trustees that has passed some time in the county jail, during which their surprise minds cannot brook in the exemption of their young. In his fight to retain his school he has a staunch supporter in Hubert Dudley, (Rev. Thos. Fuller), the rector of Lescoe, the truthful to Jessie Charleton, daughter of one of the trustees.

Langton is forced to give up his school by their majority's vote, and enters the Toronto university, which he quite well honours, and is given the care of the township school. The years he spends here are the happiest of all his life. In the meantime, Jessie Carleton and Mr. Dudley are married, his father has lost all his worldly goods, his sister has also married, blaming him for the loss of her entire estate, and Jessie bears of the death of her warm friend, Oliver Langton.

While on a pleasure trip down the river Mr. Dudley loses his life while pulling long to make a landing near the falls, and, near the end, Oliver is brought nearer to Jessie, which he has quietly loved, through all the years of his teaching, as she inherits all her husband's estate in Scotland. She and Oliver eventually marry. They are forced by conditions to make their future home in England, where Langton is elected to parliament.

The story is interesting throughout. The pompous and inflated committee's examination of the school is humorous. The book expounds what is best in all sectarian. Mr. Mulvey, whose orthodoxy and sainliness would allow of none contaminated in his presence, and Mr. Dudley are well contrasted.

—Mr. A. H. Benton, who has filled the position of secretary of the O. H. A. for a number of years, has decided definitely to retire. As an acknowledgment of the appreciation of the valuable services to the Association he was presented with a purse containing $200 at the annual meeting held last Saturday in Toronto for that position.

—Toronto Star: The business of the O.H.A.'s annual was conducted with the utmost despatch and in a business-like manner that appealed strongly to every delegate. There was always something doing, and no time was lost by those who had business to transact. Some of the other sporting bodies, large and small, should take a leaf out of the O.H.A. book.

Christmas Opening

AN EVENT WORTHY OF YOUR ATTENTION.

This is Transformation Week—when the store opens on Saturday morning it will be a different store—A Christmas Treasury, with Holiday Goods smiling on every counter.

We've let Christmas creep pretty close before opening this merry bante of supplies. The ranks were ready but we held our fire waiting until the time was ripe for one sweeping charge all along the lines. It is close range action now.

Maybe we can tell you something that will give a clearer idea of how the SAFE SATISFACTORY STORE caters for Christmas business.

Preparations began months ago for the most serviceable and staple articles, and just a few days ago our buying syndicate met New York City representatives in Toronto and selected many novelties that you won't see outside this store. Then you know our stock is all bright, fresh and new—no last year novelties to get rid of here.

Nowhere hereabouts will a finer stock of holiday givables be found. We planned for it, worked for it and now we have it—not on paper, but right here in the store.

We're with the Christmas tide from now until Christmas.

Come to the store if only to see—no need to buy unless you want to—no need to keep what you buy unless you want to.

VOTE IS OVER 150,000

Prohibition Majority Has Now Reached Over 65,000.

RESULTS OF THE REFERENDUM

Official Returns Add Many Thousand to the Total Vote Over That at First Available—Northern Districts Still Have Scanty Totals—Vote Is Considerably Over Dominion Plebiscite of 1898.

Total Vote Reported—

For	150,576
Against	85,427
Majority for	65,149

Toronto, Dec. 8.—Official returns are now available in a great many of the counties and all of the cities, and the result is a very great increase in the total vote cast for prohibitory legislation. The summary compiled at 1 o'clock this morning shows that the vote for the act stands 150,576. As the northern sections of the Province have sent very incomplete returns, and some of the more thickly-settled counties have also to complete their returns, the total may yet be increased to 160,000, with probably 90,000 against. This vote is considerably over that of the Dominion plebiscite in 1898, when the total was 152,337, while the vote will apparently fall short of the total then secured against prohibitory legislation by fully 20,000.

Scott Reply from Britain.

Boston, Dec. 8.—No reply to the cablegram sent to the British Government by Premier Dunsmuir, Hyslop, Ross, Prentice, Cotton and Cattle shippers, that its quarantine restriction against the shipment from Portland of Western and Canadian cattle, has yet been received, and meanwhile New England's export cattle trade is at a standstill.

Unless some changes are made in the plans of the Federal and State authorities every animal that has the misfortune to land here exposed to it will be slaughtered.

PAYING FOR FATHER

Hopeless Life of 12-Year Old Breaker Boy in Pennsylvania.

MINE COMMISSION ON SATURDAY

James Gallagher, Who Worked in the Markle Mines For Thirty Years, Was Always in Debt to the Company—Only Once in 17 Years Received Money in Wages—The Lehigh Scat.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 8.—The mines having finished their attack on the Coxe mines in the Hazelton region, Saturday turned the attention of the commission to the collieries of G. B. Markle & Co., in the same locality. The witnesses for the miners' workers scored what appeared to be telling points with regard to wages and other conditions prevailing in the mines of this independent company. The attorney for the company was not prepared to cross-examine the witnesses on all things he had testified to, and the commission has granted the company privilege of recalling the witnesses.

The principal witness called against the Markles was James Gallagher, who worked in the Markle mines for thirty years. He claimed the wages were so low that he was always in debt to the company, and that, in 17 years he only once received money in wages, and that was $50. He further testified that he had to deal at the company's store, the only place where the miners could get credit, and that the prices were from 10 to 20 per cent. higher than in other places. The witness kept the court and spectators in a state of hilarious amusement by questions by the lawyers.

A 12-year-old breaker boy was called to the stand and gave a testimony above that, he was working at the Markle mines to pay off the debt incurred by his father, who was killed in the mines 18 months ago. He received no pay, but was given dog bills, showing how much his mother owed the company. The dog bills also showed that the debt his mother was incurring, such as house rent, etc., was growing faster than the credit notes it was her was only getting 4 cents an hour.

The conditions prevailing at the Lehigh Valley Company mines will be taken up next.

Consume All Next Week.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 8.—It is expected that the coal strike witness will consume all next week in presenting to the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission their side of the controversy with the coal operators. The miners occupied twelve days thus far in presenting their testimony, and expect to take fully as much more time.

Flavelle-Willison Paper Will Appear With the New Year.

Toronto, Dec. 8.—Charles Mathewa, jr., who has been Mr. Willison's private secretary on The Globe, has resigned his position and will serve Mr. Willison in a similar capacity on the new paper.

It is stated that Mr. Colquhoun, late of The Mail and Empire, will become Mr. Willison's chief assistant.

It is stated Saturday with no little authority that The Evening News was purchased on Friday afternoon last by Sir Hugh Graham's syndicate, and that the new proprietors will start business at the beginning of the new year.

New Spanish Cabinet.

Madrid, Dec. 8.—A new Cabinet has been formed and sworn in. The new Ministers, with their portfolios, are as follows:

Premier—Senor Silvela.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—Senor Abarzusa.
Minister of Justice—Senor Dato.
Minister of Finance—Senor Villaverde.
Minister of the Interior—Senor Mora.
Minister of War—General Linares.
Minister of Marine—Senor Sanchez Toca.
Minister of Instruction—Senor Alendo Salazar.
Minister of Public Works—Marquis Vadillo.

General Linares, the new Minister of War, was wounded at the battle of Santiago in Cuba.

City Left Without Water.

Nebraska City, Neb., Dec. 8.—The sudden shifting of the main channel of the Missouri River on the Iowa side has left this city without a water supply. The waterworks mains are 3 miles from the river and the basin is empty. The electric light plant is shut down and the streets are dark. The breaking out of a fire of any consequence would cause disaster. It may be weeks before pipes can be extended to the main channel, and in the meantime the manufactures in the city depending on steam or electricity must be shut down.

Baker's Son Hurt.

Plowa, Prussia, Dec. 8.—Prince Oscar, Emperor William's fifth son, has sustained a slight fracture of the collar bone through falling from a horizontal bar.

Opening of Assouan Dam.

London, Dec. 8.—The opening of the Assouan Dam by the Duke of Connaught to-day will be a signal proof of the enlightened methods of British policy. Egypt's great works, which have cost between £20,000,000 and £25,000,000, will systemize irrigation, thus insuring larger and more stability to harvests and widen the area of the Nile lands under cultivation.

Roosevelt a Trimmer.

London, Dec. 8.—The Saturday Review Saturday criticised President Roosevelt to the extent of a page. The paper calls him a "trimmer" and says he is paralyzed by his shadow of a second term. His cautiousness, the Review says, has now amounted to cowardice.

Is New Principal Gordon.

Kingston, Dec. 6.—Queen's trustees yesterday afternoon confirmed the appointment of Rev. Dr. Gordon of Halifax as principal of the university. LIPPINCOTT'S

MONTHLY MAGAZINE

A complete copyrighted novel in each number.

LIPPINCOTT'S never becomes a back number. The complete novel, its distinguishing feature, is always good, and with LIPPINCOTT'S you do not have to wait for the novel to come out in book form. It comes complete every month, and not the ordinary magazine kind of a story, but a copyrighted novel by a prominent author, and most of these novels are afterwards published in book form and sold for $1.50 a volume.

In LIPPINCOTT'S first appeared in this country "The Light That Failed," the story that made Rudyard Kipling famous.

It was in LIPPINCOTT'S also that James Lane Allen's "Choir Invisible" was first printed.

Amélie Rives's "The Quick or the Dead?" which stirred every reader of fiction in the United States, was a complete novel in LIPPINCOTT'S.

Other distinguished names associated with LIPPINCOTT'S are:

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell	Josiah Allen's Wife
Owen Wister	Agnes Repplier
John Luther Long	John Strange Winter
Chas. G. D. Roberts	Mary E. Wilkins
Cy Warman	I. Zangwill
Cyrus Townsend Brady	Mrs. Burton Harrison
Seumas McManus	Alice Brown
Amelia Barr	Edith Wharton
Marie Van Voorst	Wm. Dean Howells
	Ruth McEnery Stuart

The novel is not the only feature of LIPPINCOTT'S. There are a lot of interesting short stories, and they perhaps are the best that appear anywhere.

There is also a corner for anecdote, fun, and sentiment, which the newspapers say is the best department of its kind among the Magazines.

MEETING OF TWENTY CLUB.

A PROFESSOR ON GOOD ROADS.

An Old Problem—New Problems Looming Up—Interesting Facts in our Municipal History.

The annual open meeting of the Twenty Club is an interesting affair and brings together four score or more of our leading citizens. This year Dr. Clarke was host, and Prof. Mills, Queen's University, was speaker. The subject was one of very great interest to all thinking folk—Municipal Betterment in Ontario. The treatment was largely historical, but some of the new problems now confronting us, or fast approaching from the horizon, were suggestively considered. The following is an epitome of the address:

In origin our Ontario municipal system has little or no relation with the French regime. It began with the influx of the U. E. Loyalists in 1783 and subsequent years. These loyalists were of two classes—those from New England and New York, who came from Virginia, the former type representing the early Saxon idea of local self-government through township institutions, and the Virginians representing the older British idea of quarter-sessions and government by county or shire officials belonging to the county, and appointed by the lieutenant-general, Governor Simcoe originally made for a federal union, but favored the latter idea, and it triumphed, perhaps more to his regret afterwards. In a site of Government representatives, the township grew steadily, especially around the Bay of Quinte, where the township began to

To Dismiss Water Commissioners.

The Belleville waterworks has been administered by a board of three Commissioners for a number of years, and that the plan has not given entire satisfaction is shown by the fact that a petition for ousting municipal elections the people are now asking for, and the city council by dismissing the commissioners and place the plant in charge of the city engineer, is taking the discussion on the subject out of the arbitrament of the ballot box. There is one only 400 consumers yet there are consumers 2,000,000 gallons as compared with St. Thomas, where there are consumers 1,000,000 gallons. The statement was misleadingly made that Belleville has a rate of 40 in the highest in the province, it is, the only plant worked at a loss.

New Postal Rates.

A postal notice issued this week states that the rate on printed matter without writing of any kind has been changed from two cents for the first four ounces or fraction thereof, to one cent for each additional two ounces or fraction thereof, to one cent for each additional two ounces or fraction thereof.

Council would be responsible for the selection of a board of men to carry it out; their officials would be responsible for the execution of the policy. The separation of the executive is the next forward step, therefore that must be made in our municipal development, especially for large towns and cities.

But the municipal Council has another side to its work—the spiritual. It must minister to the intellect and moral life of its people. Education, museums of its people, libraries, art galleries, concerts, etc., are all in some under the Councils jurisdiction and cannot be neglected with impunity. The public school and the public library are essential to the well-being of the community, and their influence is to be measured not, only by the Council, but by every average child or citizen, but by whom they do for the gifted ones, whose their influence attains a high position in life, and exercises a great influence in the world's thought or guide its activities. We want research in quality as well as quantity.

The discussion that followed revealed how thoroughly Prof. Shortle understand his audience. His address was of very pleasing, the scholar was evident in his thought, and the very of the principles and details of his subject, and the audience, from Warden down, by the delivery made his address a rare treat. Prof. Shortle will always be sure of a good audience in Lindsay.

NOVEMBER WEDDING BELLS.

McPherson—McGough

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's church on Wednesday, Nov. 26th, at 8 a.m., when Miss Mary McGough, eldest daughter of Mr. M. J. McGough, of Peterborough, was united in marriage to Mr. Francis B. J. MacPherson, third son of Mr. Angus MacPherson, of Peterboro.

The ceremony was performed by Ven. Archdeacon Dowdy, in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties and a number of guests from a distance. The bride looked pretty dressed in a creamy white silk dress on trains, with Brussels net veil, she carried a shower bouquet of white chrysanthemums. Miss Jessie McGough was bridesmaid, and looked quite pretty attired in white silk, with black picture hat trimmed with white ostrich feathers, and carried a shower bouquet of pink chrysanthemums. The groom was supported by his cousin, Mr. Joseph Pentier. Mr. Jas. McPherson, of Sault Ste. Marie, was

After the ceremony the party drove to the residence of the bride's parents, where the usual congratulations were showered on the happy pair, and numerous were extended to the young couple. They left on the afternoon train for a honeymoon trip to Eastern points. The bride's going away dress was a heavy cassels hair cloth, with navy and pearl grey, with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. MacPherson will reside in Peterboro, where Mr. MacPherson is employed in the service The Post and their many friends join in wishing them a happy and prosperous married life.

To Dismiss Water Commissioners.

The Belleville waterworks has been administered by a board of three Commissioners for a number of years, and that the plan has not given entire satisfaction is shown by the fact that a petition for ousting municipal elections the people are now asking for, and the city council by dismissing the commissioners and place the plant in charge of the city engineer, is taking the discussion on the subject out of the arbitrament of the ballot box. There is one only 400 consumers yet there are consumers 2,000,000 gallons as compared with St. Thomas, where there are consumers 1,000,000 gallons. The statement was misleadingly made that Belleville has a rate of 40 in the highest in the province, it is, the only plant worked at a loss.

New Postal Rates.

A postal notice issued this week states that the rate on printed matter without writing of any kind has been changed from two cents for the first four ounces or fraction thereof, to one cent for each additional two ounces or fraction thereof, to one cent for each additional two ounces or fraction thereof.

THE HABITANT IN POETRY.

DR. W. H. DRUMMOND AT THE COLLEGIATE LAST FRIDAY.

Delighted Audience—Auspicious Opening of Lecture Course—Poetry a great Drawing Card—the Next Lectures.

There have been many large audiences in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall, but few larger than the one which greeted Dr. Drummond last Friday evening. Certainly none ever been more delighted. The only evening in the history of the Collegiate Institute with its ten real pleasures was that on which Rev. E. McIntyre lectured on Egypt. McIntyre and Drummond, like Ossianus will hereafter fill any hall in Lindsay.

Dr. Drummond arrived in Lindsay by the 6.20 train from Montreal, and was driven by Dr. Herriman's where guest he was during his visit to our town. When he appeared about 8.15 in the Assembly Hall, he was greeted with an audience that filled all the seats and all the table at the back, and stood all the evening. One of our prominent citizens (philosophy) captured a three-legged chair, and propped it up against the wall, and two others shared a specially broken-backed chair between.

Dr. Drummond is tall, stout, well built man. His figure is full of strength, and his face bears the private power and good humor. His voice is strong and resonant, and admirably suited for the habitant and French Canadian character and dialect (one is tempted to say, with a kindly feeling, and sympathetic insight). The attention of the audience throughout the lecture was wonderfully close, no one apparently being willing to lose a word.

The lecture was not a lecture at all for Dr. Drummond read some of his poems from his books, with little explanatory comments. Those who have read the habitant, Le Vieux Temps, Johnnie Courteau, Dans le Bateau, Little Leon, Camptown, The Bell of St. Michel, The Ours, and Madame Bellemare, will appreciate a recital a couple of these selections, recited by an inveterate lover of a habitant, who said ever to Britain with cattle and land troubles with the Yankees, and none these were irresistibly funny—the audience laughed till they cried.

Rev. Mr. Henderson moved, and Rev. Mr. Hughson seconded, the vote of thanks. The latter pointing out that the evening was not only exceedingly pleasant but very instructive, in that the character of a large element of our Canadian people had been interpreted by the poems and sketches just given. In response, Dr. Drummond said, modestly, or rather sang, The Wreck of the Julie Plante, which was most highly appreciated.

Dr. J. G. Edwardes of the Board of Education, acted as chairman, and the musical part of the evening was started of a song, finely given by Mr. Lewis Brandon, one of the Collegiate Institute boys, and possessor of a good tenor voice, and a pleasing style. Mr. Hamilton, organist of St. Andrew's church, which was so well used on the occasion, and

After the lecture a number of us entertained Dr. Drummond at Dr. Herriman's, where they spent a delightful hour. Dr. Drummond recited several of his finest poems and chatted and added to the pleasure with which he had invested his first visit to Lindsay.

The next lecture will be early in January from Dr. W. Lawrence Grant, Halifax, Attorney General of Nova Scotia, who will be followed early in the month by Yarsley, Glee Club, Sir Wilfrid Laurier in February, and Mr. D. B. Monk, M.P., in March, complete the course.

Where Secrecy is Dangerous.

Strange, wonderful, is it not?

No court has a right to keep secret the testimony offered in trials where there are public allegations, and truths are alleged of public interest, because it makes room for corruption and fraud. And neither the Supreme Court nor any other court has power to make "laws" on this subject.

Municipal Taxation.

The St. Thomas Journal, in an editorial on the municipal situation in that city, reproduced elsewhere in extractive figures. It publishes the assessment and taxes raised in several of the small cities of Canada in 1901. Woodstock is the lowest with an assessment of $2,751,120. Belleville is next with $3,000,000; Chatham, $5,506,777; Guelph, $3,778,001; Stratford, $4,000,000; St. Thomas and St. Catharines, slightly over $4,000,000, and Brantford, $4,000,000. The tax raised for all purposes is: Chatham, $99,000; Guelph, $97,917; Stratford, $100,224; St. Thomas, $128,951; Brantford, $129,000, and Woodstock $142,000. The mills on the dollar are: Belleville, 22.6; Brantford, 20; Chatham, 27.6; Guelph, 23.6; Hamilton, 19.9; Kingston, 20.3; London, 21.8; Ottawa, 22.7; St. Catharines, 21.9; St. Thomas, 22.8; Stratford, 22.8; Toronto, 24; Woodstock, 23.7; and Windsor, 26.8.

A Good Work Happily Concluded.

The last meeting of the ladies who for two and a half years have been in attendance in connection with the Boys Memorial Hospital, was held on Thursday afternoon in the Council chamber. This committee of forty was first called together in May, 1900, by the president, who had the Hospital work in hand. The town was divided into districts and each district was canvassed by one lady, a very large sum produced for the endowment fund, and the Hospital in the fall of 1900 a Women's Exchange of the Hospital was organized and published by this committee, which has been carried on thereby added to the endowment fund. The Exchange stock, which stands on the state of the Hospital was the gift of the ladies of this committee. A large number of articles for use in the Hospital were embroidered with the initials, "B. M. H." and valuable assistance was given also in connection with the preparations for the opening ceremonies, this committee being only a provisional one, and the Hospital being regularly organized the work the committee disbanded.

POPULAR LINDSAY BOY HONORED.

Mr. Bruce Paton Given a Complimentary Supper and a Gold Watch.

A very pleasant evening was spent Friday night at the Queen's Hotel, the occasion being a farewell supper given to Mr. Bruce Paton by a few of his intimate friends. The party met at 10 o'clock in the parlor of the Hotel and then repaired to the dining-room, where a most delicious supper had been prepared by mine host McDonald. The table was prettily decorated with flowers, and presented an attractive appearance.

After full justice had been done the viands Mr. Geo. Gordon, M.P., in the chair, rose called for a toast list. The King, The Queen, and the Prince of Wales were responded to by all standing and singing the National anthem. Mr. Geo. Gover on behalf of the boys assembled, presented Mr. Paton with a nicely worded address and a gold watch, a silver chain of the high order in which he is held by them. "Our Guest" brought Mr. Paton to his feet, and in a few brief remarks he expressed his very great appreciation of the kindness and good friendship. Messrs. Fullerton, Preston and Dr. Duy made a few remarks on behalf of the Local Ministries. "Our Winter Sport—Hockey" was replied to by Moore B. MacAlpine and N. McSwiggin, and "Our Theatricals" by Messrs. P. Kennedy and J. Walker. The "Lassies" was looked after by Messrs. Lewis and A. Simpson, and "Our Host" was responded to by Mr. McDonald giving a song. During the evening, choice selections were rendered. The happy gathering dispersed about 2 o'clock, after "Auld Lang Syne." Mr. Paton, who has been boarding at Mr. McDonald's for two years, leaves on Monday to take a position with Dr. Bryce in the Provincial Health Department.

A Most Unjust System.

(Argyle Correspondence.)

Under the present system of taxation the man who lives like a miser, saves his money, takes no interest, and allows his property to run riffraff and be an eyesore and a nuisance to the town, is taxed according to the value of his real estate, which is practically nil. On the other hand the man who spends his money, who delights in spending his money in his business, who adds value, beautifying it, and making it a credit to the place of which he is a part, is taxed to the utmost limit. He works for the town, he does its fair a force of plant a tree, but it appears to be a fine thing, and he must pay for being progressive.

A Substantial Red action.

(Toronto Weekly Sun).

While condemning unjust, unequal taxes imposed in the past, we have always endeavored to give them full credit for any reduction they made.

On the 15th of November both the Grand Trunk and the Canadian Pacific railways reduced the rates of local rates from which shippers will receive a material benefit. The rates are now fixed upon a mileage basis as follows:

Up to 10 miles; 2½c. per 100 lbs.
From 10 to 25 miles, 5c per 100 lbs.
From 25 to 50 miles 5c per 100 lbs.
From 50 to 75 miles, 5c per 100 lbs.
From 75 to 100 miles, 5c per 100 lbs.

From points where the old rate on shipments to Toronto was 10c the rate is now 4c. From points where it was 8c it is now 3c. The reduction is between 30 and 40 percent.

WORKING IN THE WOODS.

A Large Force Under the Rathburn Co.

High Wages Paid.

A great number of men are now going to the lumber woods to spend the winter, and will earn "the wind pay" for their labor, the best of these commanding as high as $25 per month, which, considering the work is no kind to good mechanics.

The Rathburn Co. have in their employment at the present time under Foreman Chas. Callaghan, of Campbellford, a force of more than 500 men in three camps, comprising the following:

In the Muskoka District.....	155
In the Bancroft District.....	80
In the Algonquin District.....	100
In the Black Creek District.....	110
In the Partridge Creek District.....	100
In the Haliburton District.....	100
Total.....	640

Besides these there are a small number of men who are also hired at work with their own teams of men getting out timber, etc., under contract, under the contractors.

Sorry He Spoke.

"I see the scoundrel in your face!" exclaimed the angry man.

"That's reflected, I guess, calmly, in a personal reflection."

When he caught it he had figured this out he was even snaggier.

About Browning.

Orillia News-Letter: The bombasting towns to get manufacturing establishments are ridiculous, and although the practice is still kept on, some towns are staggering under the burden of taxes to bonus these manufacturers, which are really not worth the price. Most of the concessions granted by towns are depending to a large extent on the money to start them up in business.

Gets What It Deserves.

Indianapolis News.

In the long run it gets the kind of administration of its affairs that it wishes and deserves. The decent, honest, hard-working people are always in the majority, and they can pull together they can turn the rascals out and keep them out. The trouble is that it is hard for the average voter in the exciting days before the election to determine for himself patriotism, even in municipal affairs.

Canada's Challenge.

(From the Montreal Star Pursuan.)

The most interesting sign of the times from Canada is the proposed increase in her bank capital. It establishment who view with such distrust American financial expansion will see a growth or expansion of capital more that of the United States unlike in the shade. Six millions have been added to the capital of bank deposits of $850,000,000, a gain of $100,000,000 in two years. Canada may well challenge the world to match it.

Railway Notes.

—The earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the week ending November 30 were $1,352,000; for the week last year the figures were $1,048,000; an increase this year of 104,000. The Grand Trunk earnings for the same week were $600,000; for the same week last $770,024, an increase for 1902 of $26,147.

—Kleinburg, the point on the Owen Sound branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway from which the company ships potatoes in large quantities to Sudbury, is only 21 miles from Toronto. The road runs through Lake Simcoe, Lake Couchiche and Georgian Bay, crossing the French river, and giving a passenger a view of the Sault Ste. Marie and Port Arthur, than the one via Havenshurst and North Bay.

—Barrie Advance. An accident occurred in the yards of the Nipissing Central the evening of which greatly exaggerated reports were circulated. It appears that a switch engine, which had just run in from Allandale, was being used to shove a freight which was being shunted by the main line, when the coupling and rail were torn off the side of the engine and a bolt pulled out of the boiler, enabling the steam to escape with a roar, which could be heard a mile away. The cab of the engine was damaged to such an extent that the crew could not get out at first, and no the wreck was hidden in clouds of steam. It was at first feared that the men had been badly scalded, but fortunately, however, no one was injured.

CHALMERS RESIGNS

Mr. George Coombs Cancels His Contract for Granolithic Walks.

RESULTS OF THE INVESTIGATION BEFORE JUDGE DEAN.

Mr. Chalmers' Improper Interest in the Contract is Admitted by His Solicitor—the Other Charges not Pressed.

The official enquiry into a number of serious charges preferred by Ald. McDiarmid against Town Commissioner Chalmers at last Monday night's Council meeting was held Saturday morning by His Honor Judge Dean at the Court House, commencing shortly after 10 o'clock. There was a large attendance, including all the members of the Council, Messrs. J. D. Flavelle, Dr. Vrooman, F. W. Sutcliffe, G. E. Broderick, Sheriff McLennan, and a number of other leading citizens. Some thirty-five witnesses had been summoned in connection with the charges. Mr. Hugh O'Leary, K.C., was present in behalf of Mr. Chalmers, and Mr. Hopkins, Town Solicitor, was on hand to guard the town's interests.

Mr. Fred. Knowlson was the only witness examined, and his evidence merely touched on the preliminaries leading up to the letting of the contract to Geo. Coombs for the laying of 45,000 feet of granolithic walks.

Before Mr. Knowlson's evidence was taken Mr. O'Leary stated that there had been certain charges made against Mr. Chalmers, but the nature or particulars of the charges were not given. The dates on which his client neglected his duty should be furnished and other information given, so that he could meet the charges fairly. If it was an attack on Mr. Chalmers while on official business then he would object. On Wednesday he had called on Mr. Hopkins to find out particulars, and also tried to meet His Honor, but he was not available. There was no specific charge in the first clause of Mr. McDiarmid's motion. The Mayor of a town might be guilty of malfeasance, or any Councillor, for having talked too much at a Council meeting.

Mr. Hopkins said he was not present as a public prosecutor, but on behalf of the town, to see that the charges were investigated.

Judge Dean said he would be very careful to see that Mr. Chalmers was given every opportunity to defend himself.

Mr. Hopkins said he would enquire into the Coombs' contract for granolithic walks, the one that Mr. Chalmers was supposed to be interested in.

Mr. Knowlson, sworn, said: I am Town Clerk and Treasurer, and Mr. Jas. Chalmers is Town Commissioner. There were some specifications and contracts relating to granolithic walks, but they are now in Mr. Coombs' possession. They were given to him to sign three or four days after the contract was accepted. The contract was sent to him, but has not been returned.

At this stage Mr. Coombs was called and requested to produce the specifications and contracts. He complied.

Mr. O'Leary—"I wish to have them marked as coming from Mr. Coombs, not from the Town Clerk."

Mr. Knowlson, continuing: I never noticed any other sheet attached to the specifications and contract. They are as they came from my office. That printed slip is a newspaper advertisement advertising for tenders for the construction of 45,000 feet of granolithic walks, which were to be received up to noon of Friday, Nov. 7th. There were two tenders received in answer to the advertisement, one from Jas. Bogue and the other from Geo. Coombs. These tenders came before the Board of Works on Nov. 8th. They were placed in sealed envelopes marked "Tenders." I recollect one was open on that day, but not removed. Both were put together in envelopes and sealed up.

Mr. O'Leary—"I have no objections, Mr. Hopkins, to you going into the preliminaries relative to this granolithic walk contract, but when you say Mr. Chalmers is interested in a contract that is not signed yet I will have something to say later."

Mr. Knowlson: These tenders came before the Committee on Nov. 15th and were referred to the Commissioner to report to the Board of Works committee, being finally dealt with at a Council meeting on Nov. 20th. At this meeting Mr. Coombs was awarded the contract. Since then the specifications and contract were taken from my office by Mr. Coombs.

Mr. O'Leary—"This is not a contract because it has never been signed; it has nothing to do with Mr. Chalmers."

His Honor—"I understand by resolution of Council the contract was awarded to Mr. Coombs and he has accepted and taken it away."

Mr. O'Leary—"A year or two ago tenders were called for the construction of a sewer on Colborne-st. Mr. Pilkie's tender was accepted and men were put to work. A petition was sent in soon after asking that work be stopped. The Council said: 'It's no contract because it has not been signed by the Mayor.' The work was stopped, much to Mr. Pilkie's inconvenience. He threatened a suit for damages, but the matter was finally dropped. I understand there should be a by-law passed for every contract given, but there has not been in many cases where contracts have been given. In this case Mr. Hopkins wanted a by-law passed. In this contract the specifications had been prepared by Mr. Chalmers for Mr. Coombs, and only reported on. It was Mr. Chalmers' intention to resign to become a party to the contract. On account of poor health Mr. Chalmers intended resigning some time ago, and spoke to Mayor Ingle about it, who prevailed on him to remain. When Mr. Bogue was given the contract for construction of granolithic walks Mr. Coombs was appointed an inspector, but when the last tenders were asked for these two men tendered individually, and Mr. Chalmers only reported on the figures. There were no insinuations made then against my client, but since then there have been considerable. This was Mr. Coombs' first tender and not being very well educated in figuring out matters of this kind, he naturally went to Mr. Chalmers, who had the experience and ability to prepare figures. Before Mr. Coombs tendered it was understood Mr. Chalmers should be interested financially with him, and the latter would resign his position as Commissioner."

Mr. Hopkins—"Did Mr. Chalmers tell any member of the Council that he intended to resign?"

Mr. O'Leary—"I am not prepared to say. It seems strange the Town Solicitor should want a by-law passed for a contract given in November and December for work that can't be done till summer."

Mr. Hopkins—"Have you any statements to make, Mr. O'Leary, regarding Mr. Coombs?"

Mr. O'Leary—"Well, Mr. Coombs does not expect the contract after this. If the contract had been given Mr. Coombs, then Mr. Chalmers would cease to exist as Town Commissioner."

His Honor—"In other words, he would cease to live." (Laughter.)

Mr. Hopkins—"Mr. Bogue was given the contract for granolithic gutters at the Hospital and while that work was going on Mr. Chalmers was overseeing the levelling of thee grounds at the Hospital. Mr. Bogue did not complete his contract, but left four or five days' work for Mr. Chalmers to do. At the same time Mr. Bogue was a contractor in this town, and I would like to know why Mr. Bogue should give Mr. Chalmers the work to do."

Mr. O'Leary—"Mr. Bogue may have had some other work that was more important to him. Anyway, it is improper to connect Mr. Chalmers with Mr. Bogue. Mr. Chalmers was sent to the Hospital by the Council to level the grounds. His work was getting mixed up with Mr. Bogue's, and as there were only three days' work left to complete the latter's contract Mr. Chalmers saw it was done."

His Honor—"I understand Mr. Chalmers intends to resign, and this will be the end of this charge?"

Mr. O'Leary—"Mr. Chalmers is accused of using material belonging to the town. Two barrels of cement, amounting to $3.86, caused the Board of Works committee some trouble, but this was due to a mistake made by Rathbun's bookkeeper, a young man named Doherty, who charged the town with that amount instead of charging to the Hospital account. Both Mr. Chalmers and the town have paid Rathbun's for this cement, and that firm has at present the $3.86 placed to Mr. Chalmers' credit in their books."

Mr. Hopkins said a Town Commissioner should not be interested in private contracts. Before the waterworks was taken over by the town it was the custom of the employees, when making private connections, to use the pipe belonging to the company, charge the consumer and keep the money themselves, but after the works were placed in charge of the Commissioners both Mr. Flavelle and himself thought it improper for them to be using the town's pipe, and decided to pay the men more wages and let them turn over what they made out of private consumers to the Commissioners. A clause to prevent anything of that kind happening was inserted in the rules. Rathbun's cement would not have gone wrong if the proper orders had been given. It showed Mr. Chalmers was interested in other work. He had investigated the Rathbun affair thoroughly and was satisfied there was some wrong-doing.

Mr. O'Leary—"The mistake occurred in connection with the Hospital account."

Mr. Hopkins—"Well, it goes to show the impropriety of town officials engaging in other work."

Mr. O'Leary—"The Council have as much right to allow the Town Commissioner to engage in private deals as they have the Town Solicitor." (Laughter.)

Mr. Hopkins—"If orders are given to the Rathbun Co. for cement by telephone a duplicate order should be made out and sent to their office. If orders are given one way, why not another, and mistakes would not occur."

At this stage Mr. Hopkins said he would like to talk it over with the Council as to proceeding with the other charges, so a short conference was held in the small room adjoining the Court room. While there Mr. Chalmers' resignation as Town Commissioner was handed in by Mr. O'Leary.

After the conference Mr. Coombs was sworn and said he would abandon his contract.

Mr. Hopkins said it was the desire of the Council not to proceed any further with the investigation. The charge regarding the use of town property was a reasonable and proper one to make, but he believed that clause had been misconstrued by Mr. Chalmers. However, it had been explained that a mistake occurred. He would like any other person who had any charges to make to come forward and state them.

Judge Dean—"If any person in the audience has any charge to make he should come forward and state it, or should hereafter hold his peace in connection with Mr. Chalmers."

Mr. Hopkins called attention to the exposed condition of the Town Clerk's office. He said it had never been put into proper shape and consequently was not private enough. It should be fitted up something like a bank and the Clerk should have a private office of his own. It seemed to him any person could enter the Clerk's office, and if they wished to act dishonestly, could pick up contracts or any other documents."

Mr. O'Leary—"Mr. Chalmers wishes me to state most distinctly that he never received a bribe from any contractor."

Judge Dean said that in connection with the cement Mr. Chalmers was to blame, but it was an unintentional error on his part. However, we owe Mr. Chalmers a vote of thanks for building such fine walks and the way the work had been conducted. He could understand how easy it was for him to get mixed up with Mr. Bogue. He was superintending the levelling of the Hospital grounds, and in order to save time finished Mr. Bogue's contract. In regard to the Coombs contract Mr. Chalmers did a very improper thing by not resigning when he was interested in the contract. Mr. Chalmers' work in our town should be appreciated. As a Commissioner he had endeavored to please the people. He hoped that Lindsay would have next year as good a Council and Commissioner as it has had during the past two years.

The investigation then came to an end.

Church Notes

—The New York Herald has had a census of church attendance in all the Christian places of worship on Manhattan Island taken, and finds that at the 366 churches the attendance of adults was 451,731 of which number 139,991, were men. Leaving children out of the consideration, there were on each three Sundays 451,731 persons in attendance upon public religious worship on Manhattan Island and 937,18- who were not in attendance. These figures make no allowance for the strangers in the city each of the three Sundays who may have attended religous worship, but who are not counted in population. The christian membership is 695,942. Of the total attending all services each Sunday 134,277 were at Protestant and 317,454 at Roman Catholic places of worship.

Too Much Stock Market.

(Toronto Telegram.)

The C.P.R. is manned by able and capable railway men in all branches of the service.

The trouble of the C.P.R. is that its management has kept one eye always on the stock market. Expenses been kept down in order that the stock might be kept up.

Prosperity is here and the C.P.R. is unprepared for prosperity. The necessities of the stock market demanded the economies which rendered the equipment of the C.P.R. hopelessly inadequate to the demands of the traffic.

The C.P.R. has neither engines nor cars to meet the needs of its territory. If it had the engines it has not the cars, and if it had the cars it has not the engines. Too much attention to the stock market and to the possibilities of the country which has been growing up around the system are the causes which have their effects in the present inadequacy of the C.P.R.

THE CATTLE EMBARGO

Will Be Raised When Disease Outbreak Is Suppressed.

SOME CATTLE ARE TO BE LANDED

Why the Opening of British Ports to Canadian Live Cattle Is Considered Improbable by British Importers —Question of the Argentine Live Question Not Yet Settled—Effect of the Quarantine.

London, Dec. 6.—The Board of Agriculture has intimated its willingness to remove the embargo on cattle arriving from New England ports whenever the American Department of Agriculture considers the outbreak is suppressed. The board issued last night an order enabling the landing of cattle under certain restrictions from the steamer Irishman, which has arrived at Liverpool from Boston, the steamers Kansas and Victoria, due yesterday at Liverpool from Boston, and the steamer Cambrian, due at London from Boston.

Meantime, the importers here say that the quarantine has little effect on the American meat supply, since the bulk comes from the west, and it is merely a question of shipping the cattle by way of New York, instead of Boston.

Regarding the general question of opening English ports to Canadian and Argentine live cattle there is not the slightest likelihood of the admittance of Argentine cattle until the Board of Agriculture is satisfied that the foot and mouth disease has been not only stamped out in the Argentine Republic but until the latter establishes an effectual quarantine against the surrounding infected territory, of which there is no immediate prospect.

On the other hand the importers say that the opening of British ports to Canadian live cattle is not only improbable, but if done would not favorably affect the English meat supply, because it is cheaper to sell Canadian range steers in the United States and ship them dressed to England than to import them alive here to be fattened for the market.

Wild West Buffalo Barred.

London, Dec. 6.—Mr. Hanbury, President of the Board of Agriculture, has decided, owing to the existence of the foot and mouth disease, that he will be unable to permit the landing in England of a herd of buffalo belonging to the "Wild West" show, which opens in London on Dec. 26.

Wholesale Disinfecting.

Albany, N.Y., Dec. 6.—The State Superintendent of Agriculture, yesterday ordered all railroads doing business in this State to cause all cars in which cattle have been transported since Aug. 1 to be thoroughly disinfected before further use. Forty special inspectors will be on the State borders to-day to enforce the order.

A Reciprocity Convention.

Detroit, Dec. 4.—Arrangements for the Reciprocity Convention to be held here Dec. 10 and 11, under the joint auspices of the National Reciprocity League and the Detroit Chamber of Commerce, are rapidly approaching completion. Wednesday evening, there will be a dinner at the Fellowcraft Club, at which John Charlton, member of the Canadian Parliament, will discuss Canadian reciprocity. Delegations are expected from New York, Buffalo, Toronto and other cities.

Sick Blood

Feed pale girls on Scott's Emulsion.

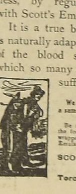
We do not need to give all the reasons why Scott's Emulsion restores the strength and flesh and color of good health to those who suffer from sick blood.

The fact that it is the best preparation of Cod Liver Oil, rich in nutrition, full of healthy stimulation is a suggestion as to why it does what it does.

Scott's Emulsion presents Cod Liver Oil at its best, fullest in strength, least in taste.

Young women in their "teens" are permanently cured of the peculiar disease of the blood which shows itself in paleness, weakness and nervousness, by regular treatment with Scott's Emulsion.

It is a true blood food and is naturally adapted to the cure of the blood sickness from which so many young women suffer.



We will be glad to send a sample to any sufferer.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

ELECTION ARGUMENT.

Court Asked to Declare the South Oxford Seat Vacant.

OPPOSING COUNSEL WAX BITTER

Mr. Blake on the Methods Used to Obtain Evidence—Mr. Watson Says Mr. Blake Used Idle and Mischievous Language —Judgment Reserved and an Adjournment Till Monday Next.

Toronto, Dec. 6.—The argument on the one charge which the Judges decided had been proved in the South Oxford election petition against the return of Mr. Donald Sutherland, that of hiring rigs by agents of respondent, was heard yesterday before Justices Street and Britton. The court did not give any decision, adjourning till Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Mr. George H. Watson, K.C., and Mr. A. G. Slaght represented the petitioners and Mr. S. H. Blake, K.C., and Edmund Bristol the respondent.

Mr. Watson first addressed the court, and quoted from the Ontario controverted elections act as to the nature of the corrupt practices necessary to void the election. In the case before them there were two distinct charges in one, relating to one Skinner, a liveryman, and to Walker Bros., also liverymen. In one case three rigs were rented, two double rigs charged to J. L. Patterson at $10, and one single rig at $3.50. In the second case three rigs were charged to Patterson and Stephen King.

These acts, Mr. Watson contended, were six distinct acts of corruption. Hiring each rig was a separate and distinct corrupt act, and this was a continuation of corrupt acts from the opening to the close of the poll. Mr. Watson argued that the vote of every voter carried in these rigs should be struck off as a result of these corrupt acts.

The fact, too, that their Lordships had disagreed on other charges was of importance in the application of section 172 (the saving clause.)

Answering Mr. Watson, Mr. S. H. Blake said that out of 114 charges made only one had been allowed. He claimed the election had been conducted in as pure a manner as any conducted for 40 or 50 years in this Province. Mr. Blake referred to the methods that had been adopted to secure charges. If it had been possible to have obtained other charges no means would have been left undone to do it. Every unlawful effort that the mind of man could conceive of to debase and debauch and turn the constituency into a carnival of crime, efforts that must stink in the nostrils of honest men, had been done here. No means were too low or too debasing to go into to smirch the respondent; but he had come through the ordeal untouched, and with only one charge proved, and that in itself not corrupt, but by the act of Parliament in which it was declared to be an illegal action.

In concluding Mr. Blake argued that the carrying of some dozen or fifteen voters could not affect a majority of 473.

In his reply Mr. Watson remarked that Mr. Blake had admitted that he had nothing to clear himself from participation in corrupt acts, and that was very vital. The respondent had never stated publicly nor to the court that he had made efforts to have a clean election. On the contrary, they had him before the court charged with a corrupt act in which he said he had no memory and could not help the court. Mr. Blake therefore had no right to take a higher stand than the respondent himself.

Mr. Watson characterized Mr. Blake's remarks regarding the methods adopted for obtaining evidence as "idle and extravagant language, used for improper and ulterior purposes."

THE JURY DISAGREED.

Joseph Hood Charged With Assault in Toronto Criminal Sessions.

Toronto, Dec. 6.—Joseph Hood, a farm laborer, was tried on a charge of indecent assault. Hood was in the employ of Thomas Coltmann of East Gwillimbury, and the offence complained of was alleged to have been committed while Coltmann was away in the Northwest, last August. Mrs. Coltmann explained that she kept Hood as a hired man after the alleged occurrence, simply because she could not get another hand. She was also advised by her friends to do nothing about the matter until her husband returned. Coltmann got back in October last, and the information was laid forthwith. A lawsuit is pending in the County Court, in which Hood is the plaintiff against Coltmann, for $101. The jury disagreed.

The Weekly Post.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 12, 1902.

BREEZY LOCAL BREVITIES.

GATHERED BY POST REPORTERS.

What is Happening in Town and the Country About Us.

—Messrs Boxall & Matthie have just placed a large furnace in their new brick school at Kinmount.

—The Grand Trunk will issue 45,500 special tickets for the season calling special attention to the beauties of the Kawartha and Lake of Bays region.

—The germ of the public ownership idea is working in Stratford. The Water Commission of that city offers to dig one of its trenches and plant for $5,000.

—Orillia Collegiate classes are now being instructed in the metric system, a short and full set of apparatus having been supplied by the Education Department free of charge.

—Dan Whitney, of the Chimong Lake Indian Reserve, drove a team of horses across the ice on Mud Lake last Saturday. Last year the first trip across was made on Nov. 24th.

—Bobcaygeon school board proceedings, as reported in The Independent, Mrs. Lyons, chopping wood, etc, $1.40. A bible has been purchased for Rosie No. 1 at a cost of 60c.

—At the coming municipal elections the people of Collingwood will vote on a by-law to grant a bonus of $50,000 and a fixed assessment for 10 years to a wire nail and fencing industry, to employ at least 100 hands.

—Belleville council has decided to impose a license bill of $10 on pool dealers in cigars, cigarettes and tobacco. The druggists have objected, and were told that they were going outside their legitimate business in handling cigars and confectionery.

—Bobcaygeon citizens evidently do not believe that Prohibition would exercise a deleterious effect on the fishing; years told by summer visitors who make that pretty village their stopping place every season. The vote on the Liquor Act of 1902 stood For 58, against 20.

—Do not begrudge loving deeds and kind words, especially in these who gather about you at the same hearth. In many families a habit of nagging crossness or illnatured giving gradually covers the real feeling of love that lies deep beneath. And after all it is such a little way we can go together.

—City Analyst Hersey, of Montreal, has reported to the health department that red aniline dyes are commonly used in that city in the manufacture of sausages to give the latter a bright, fresh appearance. Bismarck and other brown aniline dyes are also used to give a certain class of sausages a Vienna appearance. If Mr. Hersey could secure samples of the one or two of the brands handled by Lindsay dealers he would probably be more fearfully and wonderfully make and embalmed.

—Diphtheria has again broken out in Haliburton County. Eight members of one family in Hindon township died, and it is known that in all it has made its appearance almost generally for the past twelve or fifteen years, and it would seem that the germs are always present. The county health officials should ask the aid of the Provincial Health Board and make a determined effort to stamp out the disease.

—Selling up the drinks is what frequently upsets the drinker.

—The citizens of Bancroft are about to press for the incorporation of their village.

—Montreal has 100 miles of wooden sidewalks and the Herald estimates that 100 miles of them need repairs.

—Emperor William is of opinion that the only decent thing a Socialist can do is to hang himself with his own brick school a Kinmount.

—The Grand Trunk will issue 45,500 special tickets for the season calling special attention to the beauties of the Kawartha and Lake of Bays region.

Brenner borrowed it to protect a large sum of money he received just before he shot Mutart. Mr. Godfrey pleaded hard for clemency on account of the prisoner's youth, but the magistrate did not consider it a case of leniency. The online line between Lindsay and Omemee on the 12th con. of Ops is not what it should be, considering the severe weather continues we may find it difficult to pass over it without the aid of a snow-plough.

Farmers are reaping a rich harvest in selling their cattle here for export. The banks are making it convenient for them to pay cash for the cattle, for in the village of Millbrook there are more than a dozen buyers, and Toronto having opened a branch there lately, with Mr. Smith as manager, who will no doubt be the leader of Peterboro, as he was in it as accountant for many years. We hope he will succeed in giving satisfaction in the high position he now occupies. The fact of the farmers wanting so many branch banks opened in the towns of Ontario is a good proof of the farming community and the good government under which we live.

Business in our town is increasing so that grumblers have nearly disappeared. The extreme fine weather has put an end to the question of wood and coal, which has not only disturbed our minds, but, we trust, we have felt the effects of the security of both of those valuable necessaries of life which contribute to our comfort, especially when 40 below zero is reached.

CITY FATHERS MEET

Last Regular Meeting of our Councillors for 1902.

MAYOR INCLE VOTED THE CUSTOMARY HONORARIUM.

Communications and Reports—Ald. Jackson Comments on a Statement in Ald McDiarmid's Letter of Saturday Last—Tenders for Granolithic Walks and Stone to be Called for.

The final regular meeting of Council for the present year was held on Monday, Mayor Ingle and all members were present.

The minutes of last regular and special meetings were read by Clerk Knowlson, and on motion were confirmed.

Communications.

From F. Bartlett, Peterboro, applying for the position of Town Gardener—Referred to Board of Works of incoming Council.

From G. H. Hopkins, relative to Miss Hughes' sidewalk—Laid on table.

From Mr. F. Sandford, Fenelon Falls, acknowledging receipt of Council's letter re locating his new factory in Lindsay, and promising to communicate with the town when he had received a joint stock company—Referred to Finance committee of new Council.

From G. H. Hopkins, secretary Water Commissioners, informing Council that a flush tank connected with Russell-st. sewer has been operating continuously, and the waste of water has been stopped—Thanks to Commissioner Chalmers—"It is all right; the water supply O'Reilly has only a few days ago to flush the sewer."

From J. R. McNellis, County Clerk, enclosing copy of a resolution passed by the County Council on Nov. 20th, protesting against the introduction of dangerous crossing signals on Lindsay's streets—Referred to Board of Works for 1903, Clerk to notify Mr. McNellis that no signals complained of had been removed.

From W. L. Herriman, town physician, expressing the opinion that the opening of the Rose Hospital would not materially lessen his practice and therefore he could not consent to any reduction in his salary—Referred to 1903 Council.—Ald. Jackson—"We had an illustration the other evening of how the Hospital will benefit us in some ways. The charge per week for a patient only by 50 is only $2.80, but we paid a bill of $10.00 the other night for a patient cared for in a private house."

From D. Cook, applying for the position of Town Commissioner. Referred to 1903 Council.

From F. K. Begbie, Waterworks Superintendent, enclosing copy of resolution passed at last meeting of Water Commissioner relative to the neglect of the firemen to notify the pump-house by send off preacher in case of a fire, the result being a serious waste of fuel and unnecessary strain on the pumps, the matter being discussed for a few minutes, Ald. McDiarmid pointing out that when the automatic electric system is installed in the fire hall the departure and the return of the hose wagon would transmit the required signals. In the meantime, in order to prevent a repetition of the blunders, Driver O'Neill will be held responsible for any failure to notify the pump-house staff.

From the secretary of the Fire Brigade, submitting a list of the year's fires and false alarms.—Ald. Burrows—"This report would be much more interesting and effective if it came the hour at which the fire alarm was sent in, the time the team reached the fire, and the number of men of firemen present."—Referred to the incoming Council.

From the Board of Health, recommending that the Board of Sanitary Inspector Douglas be increased to the old figure, $300.—Referred to new Council.

From Jas. Butler, submitting second tenders for clearing accumulation for Driver O'Neill and Fireman Oxley, while the former was absent on sick leave, 44c beds at 15c., $67.20, and $5 "for damage done to mattresses" and the putting in of electric signals.—Laid on the table.

From Town Solicitor Hopkins, enclosing account for services re Mrs. Lee, $195.40.—Moved by Ald. Jackson, 26.25 ; Wilson & Wilson, $45.—Laid on table.

A Question of Privelege.

Ald. Jackson said he wished to refer to a statement made in Ald. McDiarmid's letter in The Evening Post as it tended to cast suspicion on members of the Council who had supported the letting of the granolithic walks contract to Mr. Coombs. The statement was that the tender preferred to was the highest priced one ever let by the town. That was not correct, because in the year 1900, when labor, and perhaps material, was cheaper than at present, the contract for a walk on south side of Kent-st. was let to Mr. Hayes, of Peterboro, at 19 3-4c. He was prepared that explanation should be made as the letter would circulate all over the country, and perhaps Mr. McDiarmid had not been aware of the facts, and had been misled by some one.

Ald. Burrows, "Technically Ald. McDiarmid may have erred in the matter of figures, but results were correct. A favorable overseer could have twenty profits over on bright. Everything being done to excuse the the contract entered into, only made things worse and in justice to all concerned it would be well to allow the investigation to proceed."

Ald. McDiarmid—"Perhaps Ald. Jackson has looked at the matter in the wrong light. The contract was let for 1900 and 1901 at the amount an expenditure of $7,500, which is certainly the highest contract ever let. That was the only thing I had in mind when I made the statement."

Ald. Jackson—"That is the only point I take exception to."

Reports of Reports.

Committee reports were next taken up. Chairman McDiarmid read Rec. No. 30 of the Fire Water Works and Lighting committee; Chairman Hare, No. 30 of the Town Property committee; Chairman O'Reilly, No. 32 of the Board of Works; and Chairman Jackson, No. 18 of the Finance committee. All were adopted.

Ald. Burrows took exception to the amount paid to members of the Court of Revision for the reason that it implied that they should have been left for next year's Council. The sum was much larger than last year.

Ald. Jackson—"The Court had to sit oftener this year. I wished a member last year."

Ald. Burrows—"Ald. O'Reilly has been on for two years."

Ald. O'Reilly—"I didn't want to be a member this year, but I was put on. We had to choose between Ald. Burrows and Ald. McDiarmid, and because he was left off he squeals like a stuck pig. After the money—there's the rub."

Hotel Licenses to be Cut.

Ald. McDiarmid gave notice of his intention to introduce a by-law to amend the liquor license by-law and reduce the number of town licenses to seven.

The Town Solicitorship.

Ald. Burrows reported the first reading of a by-law of which he gave notice some time ago, to repeal the by-law appointing a town solicitor, and expressed his satisfaction at quoted Solicitor Hopkins' expression of opinion to the effect that it was improper for a servant of the town to serve opposing parties, as the number referred to second the resolution. Solicitor Hopkins was present for the time being.

Clerk Knowlson's Comfort.

Moved by Ald. Jackson, seconded by Ald. Wilson, that the Clerk of the Court of the Property committee be authorized to procure a rubber cushion for the Clerk's office forthwith.—Carried.

Christmas Boxes.

Moved by Ald. McDiarmid, seconded by Ald. Jackson, that as usual, unanimously, that the reporters be granted a box of Christmas cigars each.

Moved by Ald. Hare, seconded by Ald. Jackson, that a box be sent to each of the firemen, exclusive of the Chief and driver, as provided for the change in the by-law governing practices and satisfactory work.—Carried.

Granolithic Walks Contract.

Moved by Ald. O'Reilly, seconded by Ald. Jackson, that the Clerk call for tenders for 45,000 feet granolithic walks, same to be received up to 15th Jan., 1903.

Ald. O'Reilly explained that the object of the motion was to help contractor for the new hospital. When they met they would have the offers before them, and could let a contract or decide to have the work done by day labor, as deemed best. Whichever course was taken, stone for stone other material would not be arranged for.

Ald. Burrows—"I have sat in Council before this, but never have I seen so much work left over for the coming year. The quantity of work in hand is rendered too small to be taken into consideration."

Ald. Jackson said a great quantity of stone would be required, and carters were anxious to get to work. The supply is exhausted, and stone has to be secured from distances, and carters are loth to cart the stone for walks built for 14 3-4c.

Report of Council was adopted.

Moved by Ald. McDiarmid, seconded by Ald. Jackson, that the Clerk advertise for the quantity of stone required for the year for granolithic walks, tenders to be received up until Jan. 20th.—Carried.

The moment the clock had struck the hour, Ald. O'Reilly seconded the motion, and it was carried unanimously.

Mayor Ingle returned thanks in a brief speech. Perhaps he had been a little hasty in his rulings at times, but never intentionally so. The proceedings had been conducted in a very harmonious and pleasant manner. He hoped next year the business would be transacted as smoothly.

Council then adjourned till Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, when the financial statement will be presented.

TO A LIBERAL LEADER

Nova Scotians Banquet Hon. Mr. Fielding at Halifax.

A NOTABLE GATHERING INDEED

Tributes From Colleagues and Friends—A Most Cordial and Enthusiastic Wire From Sir Wilfrid Laurier—The Minister of Finance Speaks of Great Achievements of Six Years of Liberal Rule.

Halifax, Dec. 12.—Nova Scotia last night paid a signal tribute to one of her most brilliant sons, Hon. William S. Fielding, who for nearly a quarter of a century has led his party to victory after victory, was tendered great at a complimentary banquet tendered him at the Queen's Hotel by the Liberals of Nova Scotia. It was a remarkable tribute to a public man. Since the days of Joe Howe, the idol worship of the people, no Nova Scotian has had such a hold upon the hearts of the people as W. S. Fielding. At the close of Joe Howe, he was premier of Legislature. Two years later, in 1867, he became Premier of the Legislative Province, and tonight, at the age of 54, he is Finance Minister of Canada. He was the recipient of an ovation rarely accorded to a Canadian politician.

Nova Scotia's Premier presided, and at his side were four Dominion cabinet ministers, who had come from Ottawa to join in this testimonial to their colleague, while around the board were men of prominence from Sydney and every department of the life of Nova Scotia, Liberal and Conservative, were present.

At the festive board the following: Hon Wm Paterson, Minister of Customs; Hon. R. Prendergast, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; D. C. Fraser, M. P. for Cape Breton; Hon. E. Wade, M. P. Premier Tweedie of New Brunswick.

At his left were: Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia; Hon. Geo. E. Blair, Minister of Railways; Hon M. Ross, M. P. C. P. Bowell, Hon. Sir Thompson, M. P. Halifax, Ont.

Letters and telegrams paying glowing tributes to Mr. Fielding were read from Sir Wm. Mulock, Hon. Messrs Sutherland, Fitzsatrick, Sifton and Fisher, Premier Ross of Ontario, Premier Farquar of Alberta and others.

The telegram from Premier Laurier was read.

Hot Springs, Va., Dec. 11.—R. E. Finn, Halifax. Very sorry that I cannot attend banquet which our Nova Scotia friends are tendering to my tried colleague and friend Fielding. I, however, join you heart and soul in this honor. Our party owes the honor is not more than he deserves.

The telegram of Sir Gorden was sounded by Premier Murray, who, in his address, said he came to Mr. Fielding at 11 o'clock, and he was asked to one of the greatest tributes to a political leader in Canada. In the period of public life he has been engaged in it he has won the confidence of his first and oldest friends. In the speech, I think our guest presents an example unsurpassed in the political history of Canada."

Mr. Fielding.

Mr. Fielding received a great ovation on rising to respond. After dealing with his early political career and local political affairs, he launched into a discussion of federal affairs. "Well, can I not say for at least six years the Liberal party at Ottawa has given this country a period of good government, a period of peace, a period of progress, a period of unexampled prosperity? We are able to point out to the country that our department of the Government the administration of affairs by the Liberal party has been making for the development and prosperity of this country. In the first place, we are able to point to six years of prosperous and sound finance. That is an important matter. It is as important to the nation as it is to the individual that the business transactions of the country should be on sound financial basis. Our friends on the other side recognize that, and they predicted again and again that the entrance of the Liberal party into power would be the ruin of public its and disaster. What followed? Let us sum up the results. Take the six years of Liberal rule, and we have to compare with those in the years they ended the period with a total deficit of $2,000,000, we ended our series of six years with a net surplus of $8,000,000.

Mr. Fielding then pointed out the great growth of Canada's trade since the Liberals came into power. We have only been in power six years, one-third of the eighteen, and under the Conservatives increased the trade of the country $60,000,000 in eighteen years, we should have increased it $22,000,000 in one-third of the time. We can say you did not lose anything. If we have the same rate of increase, there would be no reverse to our friends. But what is the fact? We do not come before you and point to an increase of $22,000,000 in the trade of the country in six years. Instead of $22,000,000, the proper proportion—instead of $66,000,000, their figures in eighteen years—we point to the fact that in six years the total trade of Canada has been increased by $180,000,000. (Cheers.) The ice broke and Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been realized.

DEAD IN HIS CHAIR

Grim Reaper Takes Principal MacVicar Without Warning.

HAD MANUSCRIPT IN HIS HAND

Sudden Summons to Head of Presbyterian College, Montreal—Was to Have Lectured at 8 o'clock—Found Unconscious at 5.30 p.m. Monday—Dead Before Medical Aid Could Be Called.

Montreal, Dec. 16.—The Presbyterian Church of Canada suffered a deep loss yesterday in the awfully sudden death of Principal MacVicar of the Presbyterian College. Dr. MacVicar attended a meeting of the French Evangelization Committee at 3 p.m., and at 4.30 left for the college to deliver his usual lecture at 5 o'clock. His students waited until 5.30, and one of their number went to the principal's study, and the door was found dead in his chair, with his manuscript in his hand.

Sketch of His Life.

Rev. Donald Harvey MacVicar was born at Dunglass, near Campbellton, Argyleshire, Scotland, Nov. 20, 1841. He came to Canada when 4 years of age with his parents. He was educated first by private tutors, and afterwards at Toronto Academy. He was also a partial student at Toronto University. He studied theology in Knox College, graduating in 1869. Ordained in 1857, he performed his first mission work at Collingwood, and after declining calls to British Columbia, Brantford, Collingwood and Toronto, accepted a unanimous call to Knox Church, Ottawa. He was first married was him a call in 1860 to Cote street church, Montreal, to be successor of Rev. Donald Fraser, D.D., afterwards of London, Eng.

After eight years of successful labor, Mr. MacVicar was appointed by the General Assembly principal of and professor of divinity in the Presbyterian College, Montreal. This institution was then in its feblest beginnings, with no endowment, and only five or six students. Now it possesses a handsome building, a valuable library, an endowment fund and an efficient staff of professors and lecturers, with students keeping place therewith.

Always having a deep interest French - Canadian evangelization, Principal MacVicar organized a department in his college, and the training of French-Canadian ministers. He served for many years as the Protestant School Commissioner, occupying position of trust. In 1879 in 1881 he was chosen moderator of the General Assembly. As the Presbyterian Church's principal Dr. MacVicar has lectured on logic and ethics before the Ladies' Educational Association, Montreal, and has also for a season, 1880, a lecturer on logic at McGill University. He visited the Presbyterian councils at Edinburgh, Philadelphia and Glasgow, respectively, and took part in the discussions. He has been president of the Principal Auchterlonie Association, M.A. and received the honorary degree of LL.D. from McGill University (1879), and that of D.D. from Knox College (1883). He was also a fellow of McGill, and a vice-president of the Lord's Day Alliance, as well as honorary member of the Athens Oriental of Paris.

In addition to primary and advanced arithmetic, both of which became textbooks in the public schools, he was the author of "The Office and Work of Elders", of pamphlets, "Conversion" and "Life" of a paper on "The Catholicity of Presbyterianism," and lectures on "Inspiration," "Miracles," "The Constitution of the Church." "The Sabbath Question," "Christ's Ministry." "Moral Culture," "The Teaching in His Study and Class Room," "Hindrances and Helps to Presbyterianism," and numerous other sermons. He declined a call to South Africa, and to a mission in Japan, in 1890, on the completion of 25 years in the Presbyterian College. He was presented with a purse and students alike with a congratulatory address, accompanied with a purse of $4,000.

PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE.

Meeting of Premiers to be Held at Quebec on Dec. 18.

Toronto, Dec. 16—Premier Ross will to-day attend the conference of provincial Premiers at Quebec on Dec. 18, but the views of the Ontario Government will be presented. At the time of Confederation the Ontario agreed to pay Ontario $80,000 a year for civil government, Quebec $70,000, Nova Scotia $60,000, and New Brunswick $50,000, and it was resolved at the time that that would go a long way towards paying the expenses of civil government. But nearly all of the amount paid to Ontario is required for the members in dependity, which amounts to $59,000. There was also at the time of Confederation an allowance of 80c. a head made on the basis of population. (1861), but since then there has been an increase of about 800,000 in population. These are all matters for consideration at the conference. The Ontario Government hold that the Dominion subsidies should be re-adjusted in conform with the increased expenditure of the province.

Coal Strike Commission.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 15.—The great part of yesterday's session of the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission was taken up in presenting cumulative testimony on matters that have already been before the commission. This testimony tended to show that there has been excessive docking, that many men were discriminated against because they were not strike rather than do the work of strikers, that they are paid one price for mine cars of all sizes, that they do not get paid for all the coal mined, that they should have the eight hour day because the mines are unhealthy and dangerous, and that they ought to receive higher wages.

PREMIER'S MANIFESTO

Hon. G. W. Ross Issues an Address to the People of Ontario.

ISSUES OF THE BYE-ELECTIONS

Mr. Whitney's Fairly Stories of Liberal Corruption Biddled in the Light Published by Government—Tactics of the Opposition During the Last Elections.

Toronto, Dec. 16—Hon. G. W. Ross, Premier of the Province of Ontario, has issued an address to the electors in the pending by-elections. The document is a lengthy one, but in the opening paragraphs, as quoted, he deals with Mr. Whitney's stories of corruption, as seen in the light of court evidence. Mr. Ross says in part:

"As it is necessary to hold by-elections at a period of the year when, owing to the inclemency of the weather, it is difficult for the electors to attend public meetings, and as it might be impossible for myself or any of my colleagues to meet as many of the electors as we would like. I take this method of addressing the electors in the constituencies recently opened by the courts.

"At the general election, which took place on the 29th of May, the Government, according to the official reports of the returning officers, carried 50 seats, and lost 11 seats. The returns should really have been 51 seats for the Government and 47 for the Opposition, as it was found on the trial of the petition in North Lambton that Mr. Cameron, the Liberal's votes on account of personation, and that the seat of Mr. Brown, the Government candidate, a tendered ballot which could not be counted by the Returning Officer. I admit this majority is less than I expected, but I feel it not for the over-confidence that prevailed in the Government ranks, a good deal less than I would have obtained.

"I need not remind you that the Opposition, during the election, did not hesitate to charge the public of the Government or present an alarming picture of the corruption of the party were attempting to dislodge them, and, in order to give the criticism of some minor detail of Government measures which really did not affect the public at all, to their candidates in the different constituents were trying to the electors on the ground that the Government was too long in office, that they would do as well for the country as this Liberal party had been doing, and generally better, that it would be a great advantage to the party at Ottawa if the Opposition were in power here that the Government was not so efficient as was claimed it was; that there was nothing to fear from a change and so on. In many cases, particularly in one or the personal relationship of candidates, the constituents, municipal or otherwise, took the charge of corruption, and, in some cases, the cry of universal corruption everywhere except among Grey's friends. Of exaggerated and untruthful statements as to irregularities that were alleged to have taken place a few places, made up the impromptu charges of corruption against us.

"One would really suppose from the vehemence with which the leaders of the Opposition denounce corrupt practices that their party had never just little practices and commenters or agents in any corrupt practices, and that it would be a crime for electors I do not propose to plead the offences of my friends, but the publication of what may have happened within our own party. I shall not, however, plead ignorance or shelter themselves behind a mask of ignorance, but I shall plead in extenuation claim. The evidence given in the election trials during the last few weeks proves that the agents of the Opposition did not pay the highest respect to the laws governing election practices at elections, and I warn the electors against the practices that is being practised by the Opposition in this respect.

"Previous to the last election, Mr. Whitney and his friends made the point committees of able-bodied men to guard the polls and to watch the ballot boxes, and to see that the secret poll books should be tampered with and that there should be no defiance by personators and heels, etc. Well, these committees have passed over and what has he to show by way of proof that there was any foundation for such charges? In a single case of corrupt practices, not a single instance of corruption, except in one case, and that was a case of a Government candidate, a Judge of the Court of Appeal to be unwarranted.

"A brief survey of the election machinery is the best way of showing the extent to which the election has been conducted. (1) The returning officers are appointed through the hands of 98 returning officers, with the assistance of deputy returning officers and clerks and constables—total, 294. Each returning officer has to hold a public meeting for the nomination of candidates. Now, there has been a suspicion expressed that one of the returning officers, or his assistants undoubtedly favored the Government candidate to the slightest extent.

(2) The ballot papers passed through the hands of 4,161 deputy returning officers, with the equal number of clerks and constables, or a total of over 12,000 persons. The deputy returning officers in charge are required to administer the oath of qualification to the electors, and to see that no one to do so by one of the scrutineers appointed by the candidates.

(3) The ballot papers are then closed, and return the ballot-boxes within the specified time to the returning officers. Out of the 4,161 deputy returning officers appointed, chiefly from the ranks of the Liberal party, no suspicion was cast upon any act of one of them, except in one polling subdivision in the township of St. Vincent, in the County of Grey. There, then, were the personators that Mr. Whitney confessed he was not heard of one, except in North Perth, who voted for the Conservative candidate. Where were the ballot-stuffers? Not a single ballot has been shown to be marked except by an elector during the whole election. The number of votes cast, was 427,468. No complaint has come from a single voter, out of this great army that his vote was refused or that he was treated unevilly by any of the officers appointed to take the election. Mr. Whitney called aloud for help to prevent the ballot-boxes from being tampered with. Why this fear? Was he afraid the Liberals would adopt the methods of his own party in the Dominion? Or was he raising a false and groundless alarm for party purposes?

"The Premier then deals with the findings of the election court petitions, and closes with an able review of the administration of the Province's affairs by the Government.

THE TARIFF ADOPTED

The German Reichstag Reads the Bill a Third Time.

SIXTEEN HOUR SITTING OF HOUSE

The Session Lasted From 10 a.m. Saturday Until 4.15 p.m. Sunday Afternoon —A Majority of 195—The Duty on Malting Barley Increased—Other Grains Stand as They Were—Exciting Closing Debate.

Berlin, Dec. 15—In the Reichstag Saturday, Count von Ballestrem opened the discussion of the third reading of the Tariff Bill, saying the allied governments had agreed on the bill, as it passed its second reading, and they did not accept the abolition of the municipal octrois, now that the date of that liability effect has been fixed for 1910. The Governments also agreed to the adoption of a future law a pension fund be established for widows and orphans from the proceeds of the tobacco revenue, and accepted the Herold motion, according to which animal and meats will not have minimum duties and the duties on grains will be reduced from the minimes e figures to those of the Government, namely, maintaining the duty on which is increased from 77 cents to 31, and that other "farinaceous" will be reduced minimum duty.

When the Government original figures were restored, the Agrarian minister's increases in other sections stand, namely, heavy duties on live animals and meats above the Government figures, the Herold, therefore, became a general tariff, which will be enforced, except when commercial treaties may be made. Some of the meat duties adopted compare as follows with the Government's:

Bacon, $9 per metric 100 weight against $7.50.

Simply prepared meat, $15, against $7.75.

Meat delicacies, $30, against $18.75.

Oysters, $25, against $12.50.

After Herr Richter and others had spoken, Herr Sachs made a sharp attack on Chancellor Von Buelow, who replied, praising the patriotic spirit of the majority parties, and admitting that he had taken an active part in effecting a compromise on the Tariff Bill, the form of a practical basis for arranging efficient commercial treaties, which would surely be reached with the good will of the Reichstag.

It was on Herr Spahn's proposal that the house proceeded to the ballots on the Tariff Bill. The introduction of the proposal created great disorder, but the debate was abandoned and the motion adopted. The balloting lasted until 4.15 yesterday morning, when the bill was read a third time, by 202 votes to 100.

VERY COSTLY INSULT.

Puerto Cabello Fort Demolished by British and Germans.

VENEZUELANS RETURNED FIRE

British Vessel Seized and Pillaged by the Mob—When Demanded Satisfaction Was Not Given and Allied Fleets Were Ordered to Bombard the Forts Solano and the Castle Libertador.

Puerto Cabello, Dec. 15—The British cruiser Charybdis and the German cruiser Vineta bombarded the Castles here at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fire was returned, but after a bombardment of 45 minutes the Venezuelan guns were silenced. The fortress is composed of forts Solano and the Castle Libertador. After the firing ceased the Charybdis and Vineta entered the Castle. The fortress was almost demolished. It is reported that only a few persons were injured by the shelling. The commander of Castle Libertador has been placed in irons. The cruisers are still here.

At 7 o'clock yesterday morning the Charybdis and the Vineta arrived here, searching for Venezuelan gunboats. The two cruisers sent their boats into the harbor port, but finding no gunboats the boats returned. The captain of the British merchant steamer Topaze, which was seized by the mob here late Wednesday then went to the German cruiser where he board the Charybdis and lodged a protest against the seizure of his ship. The British captain returned shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday with a detachment of marines, who took charge of the Topaze. The populace were greatly excited at the time and some raised the cry "To arms!" but there was no disorder.

Insult to Flag.

The British commodore then sent a message to the authorities at Puerto Cabello, demanding immediate satisfaction for the insult done to the flag by having hauled down the British flag from the Topaze, saying that if this satisfaction was not forthcoming in two hours, at 4 o'clock, the forts and the custom house would be bombarded. On the receipt of this demand the authorities sent a message to President Castro asking for instructions.

A committee of merchants of Puerto Cabello then proceeded to the American consul here, petitioning him to intervene. The consul accepted this mission and wired the President that he could obtain no alteration in the decision of the allies.

At 4.45 a reply was received from President Castro, who stated that the chief official here to give the British commodore ample satisfaction. Before this answer could be communicated to the American consul the hour stipulated for the return of the arrived, the cruisers immediately opened fire on the Castles, which fire was returned from Fort Solano and Castle Libertador. The fire then continued there was intense excitement in this port. Every house in town was closed. The British marines purpose to make use of the castles in Castle Libertador. No casualties was done to the town.

Blockading La Guayra.

London, Dec. 15. — In a despatch from Willemstad, Curacao, dated Dec. 14, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says the Anglo-German allies are blockading La Guayra. The steamer Yucatan was warned by the British cruiser Indefatigable not to enter La Guayra and returned to Curacao.

The Venezuelan Government has declined the offer of a loan, made by a German banker of Caracas, to settle the claims against it.

Blockade Demanded.

Caracas, Dec. 15—A note from the commanders of the allied Anglo-German fleet to the Venezuelan Government refused to revive Saturday at 1 o'clock. This was sent yesterday to United States Minister Bowen, at Caracas, and forwarded to the Hague by the proper diplomatic fora. The note is in the name of Great Britain and Germany, and requests all Venezuelan ships, after the elapse of five days, to refrain from leaving from the port of La Guayra, and to inform other ships of the order.

People are raising by what the Great Britain and Germany coerce Venezuela without declaring war.

"El Mocho" Hernandez, and certain other revolutionary leaders, left Maracaibo yesterday for Curacao on their way to Caracas. Hernandez is probably the most popular of the revolutionary leaders. President Castro has kept him imprisoned at Maracaibo for several years past.

The news of the shelling of the forts and custom house at Puerto Cabello yesterday afternoon by the British cruiser Charybdis and the German cruiser Vineta, reached Caracas last night. It caused considerable excitement.

Italy With the Others.

It is now stated Italy has handed to the Venezuelan Government similar demands to those made by Germany and Great Britain for the payment of indemnities.

The situation here continues to be critical, and there is much excitement among the German colony in Caracas, many of whom have called at the American legation to seek refuge there.

The people of Caracas are astonished that the Government at Washington remains silent in spite of the recent act of the allied fleet.

The enlistment of Venezuelan soldiers continues. 2,000 from the interior reached Caracas yesterday.

The legation here was opened last night under the American ensign, at the request of Secretary of the American legation.

Leading German and British residents of Caracas are very bitter against their respective ministers, whom they accuse of leaving Caracas without giving any intimation of their intention to abandon the city.

UNITED STATES INFORMED.

Official Notice of the Bombardment Sent to the State Department.

Washington, Dec. 15. — Minister Bowen, in a despatch received by the State Department this afternoon, called that he had been informed by President Castro that British and German warships were bombarding Puerto Cabello.

The United States consul went on board the two cruisers and was informed by the commanders that they had come to this port in search of the Venezuelan warship.

In the matter of blockade the Secretary has instructed the American Ambassadors at Berlin and London to represent to those Governments that the United States must not be understood as giving its consent to any interruption of the international right of peaceful blockade. Secretary Hay stated last night that it had not been decided to send any vessels of war to the Venezuelan ports.

Powers Conceal Real Motive.

New York, Dec. 15.—The Herald publishes a long cable despatch from President Castro yesterday morning received by The Herald correspondent in the Palace of Miraflores, the executive residence of the President of Venezuela.

General Castro was very calm. His quiet manner in speaking gave no evidence of unusual concern or emotion. He spoke dispassionately and in a tone of firm resolution, when he said:

"I pledge myself to organize the necessary treasury resources only if it should become necessary to fight."

In reply to questions concerning his views of the sincerity of the British and German Governments in the statement of their purposes made in Washington, the President Castro said among other things:

"The Germans arrested the Venezuelan Government before that they discern another and a quite different purpose on the part of Great Britain and Germany than that avowed. Germany which may remain comparatively cool for the present, but which you will agree with me is very

TO DISQUALIFY MR. BRUNET, M.P.

Argument in the St. James' Election Case Heard in Montreal.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—The argument in the St. James constitutional case was heard Saturday by Acting Chief Justice Mr. M. P. Talon and Justice Lorangar. They have all been reserved the opinion of which there is enough evidence to annul the election, and the point now is whether it is sufficient to disqualify Mr. Joseph Brunet, M.P. Mr. F. Dilmillon, counsel for Mr. J. B. Bergeron, the Conservative candidate, recalled Mr. Joseph Brunet to prove that he had given Mr. J. Azaire Brault, an elector of the division, a money appointment $4,000 for the Federal and municipal elections which followed such a guide succession. It had been difficult to determine how much had been spent in the Federal election. Money had been given Brault in a leather bag. He had given the money to "bons," or orders given by other agents of the Government. All these "bons" had been destroyed by the respondent himself, as he admitted in his evidence, and now the bag was empty. The respondent, Brunet, had reported the expenses to the returning officer as $6.50, whereas his legal agent, Mr. Bergeron, he had had neither received nor paid a cent because during or after the election. The agent said in his evidence that he knew of no expenditure whatever. He had seen committees, but it appeared these resulted from the popular effervescence in favor of defendant. The failure to make a complete report of the expenditure was in itself a penal offence under the election act, and sufficient to retain disqualification. Mr. Joseph Brunet had had an opportunity to show that the acts of agents of his friends committed against his will, and contrary to his orders. He had failed to take advantage of that opportunity and the law should be applied without apply. By his failure to disclaim responsibility he must have held to have authorized the acts, which were paid for out of funds furnished him. He must be deemed to have authorized payment of telegrams, which he had received from Mr. Dastlee, K. C., continued the proceedings against Robertson and Philipe Roy replied. After which the court asked that the record be sent up as soon as possible, that judgment might be no delay in rendering judgment.

DR JACK'S WIFE

By ST. GEORGE RATHBORNE

Author of "Dr. Jack," "Captain Tom," "Miss Caprice," Etc., Etc.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Meryg in all his life did Doctor Jack wonderful life characteristic of his. Meryg with stronger conflicting emotions than all he present crowding. Trapped to his job remain, he is also aware that his future fortune depends upon his reaching New York by noon on November fourth. They have done well thus far, but he will be not upbeat his matter be attended to. So he groans and bides his fate, and when he looks again Jack has gotten Lady Larry repainting at his side. Larry, who endures the pain of his broken arm with the grim bravado of a martyr.

Meanwhile, alone in the Avis who carries the precious packet, it is eminently proper that he followed her in the brown wagon. He makes to mold circumstances.

The conductor leads her to where the engine awaits them. In the gray dawn the scene is most distressing, of the wreck presents an aspect of ruin, though in reality it is the freight that makes most of the damage, the cars of the passenger express being simply derailed, toppling all over.

No one has been killed, as far as known; but many are injured. It is strange that an engine is clear of the wreck, but up it goes. This is the locomotive about to be sent to Harrisburg for assistance, and Avis gazes about on the time of the express.

The conductor speaks a few sentences to those on board the huge engine, and the hearty voice of the driver is heard.

"Make way there, boys, for Doctor Jack's wife. It isn't a pleasant ride for a lady, but she is a good sport, and Harrisburg, we'll take her there."

Thus the words of Jack' Evans beat fruit. He is known to this engineer by reputation. What he has done with him his wife has not been hidden under a bushel.

Avis is helped aboard, and given a seat beside the fireman. This has one arm, a rude sling, as though he received some damage in the wreck.

They are off!

The great iron engine rushes down the track like a monster of life. To Avis it is a new and decidedly novel sensation. Under other circumstances she would experience something of alarm, but now as they seem to fairly fly through space, the only feeling she has is one of exhilaration at the speed of and blinding distance. Every mile which they leave behind brings her so much closer to New York.

She sits there, holding on firmly, for the engine jumps and rocks until it seems to be almost on the point of turning over. Now and then the fireman is forced forward so long as she lives.

Behind her has left suffering and misery. In front lies her mission, a sacred duty that she has vowed to perform. The thought of her husband and all that excuse or justification she has to him burst her heart up. Were the dangers of her waterworn journey ten fold more numerous, yet would she proceed.

As the morning draws on, square and darkness disappears she can see the wide Susquehanna on her left. The air is frosty, and yet in the cab, with the windows closed, it is very comfortable.

Avis looks around. Up to the time she has been wholly engrossed with her thoughts, which have almost been fastened outside.

She discovers that she is not the only passenger who goes to Harrisburg by special engine. Several men are aboard, and her eyes fall upon one after another with a somewhat uneasy feeling.

The first thing she sees is the red one of Lord Rackett, who bows and smiles, yet does not seem to speak to her.

Beside him is Colonel Garcia, the agent of the syndicate against whom Doctor Jack has plitted himself. Two others are present, and Avis recognizes a number of men, jumping from over mass meets and general appearance, are Chilians. This surprises her, because Jack has felt confident that all the enemies, save the Briton and the South American colonel, had been left far behind in the mad race against time.

The more she watches these men the stronger become her belief that there has been some miscalculation made. She sees Garcia, talks to her closely, and speak to one of these men who, in turn, probably communicates the intelligence to his companion.

Doctor Jack's wife is quick to recognize the gravity of the situation. She carries on her mission, determined that it would be worth a million dollars to the syndicate these men represent, could they secure them. That is what Colonel Garcia, the unscrupulous Chilian, has come thousands of miles to accomplish—that is why he is here.

Meyer Guggenheim'one final woman. It looks as though the packet might be in greater danger now than ever before.

Doctor Jack's wife carries on her person, however, an antidote for this. She is armed, and her husband has taught her how to use a revolver in an emergency. With one hand she holds to the rail. The other is lost amid the folds of her dress.

Thus they plunge on toward Harrisburg. Every little bell behind means the danger she feels hovering over her. It seems to serve the man who plot against her to desperation.

Their journey is such that in less than an hour they will cross the long bridge spanning the Susquehanna, and enter the capital. Whatever is to be done must be accomplished before that.

Avis knows a crisis is near. She sees one of the Chilians move up until he is just behind the engineer. The second fellow is talking with the fireman. Lord Rackett and the Colonel Garcia they have nothing to do with the matter, having washed their hands of the fate of the wreck. Hence, it devolves upon Garcia to take the leading part.

The waning whistle sounds very often as they come to each grade like a whirlwind. Men rush to the doors of cottages, terrified under the hill side, to gaze in wonder at the remarkably swift passage of the wild-eat engine. They do not understand what it means, for, of course, no news of the wreck has as yet been sent along the line.

When the Chilian colonel crosses to where Avis sits, she knows the time has come. He will demand the packet, and threaten violence in case it is refused. As he has apparently no power as none to carry out his threats, it looks as though triumph might at last come to his hands.

He counts without taking one thing into reckoning, and this the fact that his woman is friendly to Avis Doctor Jack's wife. Long association with that daring man has given Avis some of his spirit.

Now Garcia is in front of her. Upon his face can be seen a smile, and back of this the strong passions he strives to conceal.

"Senora, you see that fortune has smiled on my side. We are speeding on engine. You carry something I have come from Valparaiso to secure. I must possess it. Avoid trouble, then, and hand it over to me. I will give you my word to leave you at once.

This is what he says, in what he imagines is a tone of authority. He may be accustomed to seeing his soldiers jump and tremble at his words, his frown, but how he deals with one who has been used as him down at all this true value.

Doctor Jack's wife looks him squarely in the eyes, and then, strange to say, laughs. Big little fool of a Chilian, she thinks.

"I prefer to retain what belongs to me, Colonel Garcia. Your interest is no doubt in your credit, but I refuse to consider a request that savors of robbery.

He begins to realize that the victory may not be so easily won. The self-confiding block has already arisen in his path. He frowns at the Avis, for perhaps, he's ally looks fierce enough to scare a Turk.

"Senora, no nothing. I want to be able to say to my son, but that packet must have at any price. It is worth more to me."

"And more to Doctor Jack. I give him my word I will keep it, Colonel Garcia.

"See, I control this flying monster. I can stop it at a moment's notice. You, too, are in my power. For the last time, lovely senora, will you hand me the packet?"

"If I refuse!"

"Then, much—I hate to do it, I shall use force to take it from you. Doctor Jack taught you to box. He would not have you defy a man who can be a terrible adversary."

"He taught me how to use—this!"

The Chilian colonel starts back as the hand of Doctor Jack's wife suddenly swings a deadly re-revolver his very nose. His horrified eyes instantly discover that it is a condition of affairs. He is not a coward, and when a woman's finger plays with the trigger he knows to a nicety what accident may happen.

"Hold, senora!" he exclaims, ordering to stop, as though he fears lest he may be sent suddenly upon a long journey.

Another element enters the game at this point, and Avis sees the Chilian change. The engineer, leaving his throttle, has left his place of duty for the purpose the man back of him sprawling among the coal. He has been listening to Doctor Jack's words about owning the engine, and now sees about proving him a false prophet.

One step takes him to the side of the Chilian, where he seizes and shakes as a terrier might a rat. The insulting manner of the colonel has aroused all the stalwart engineer's anger.

"Talk to a lady like that, will you—I've got a wife as well as Doctor Jack, and I feel like you'd treat her as well, you miserable dog."

More shaken fellow, and Lord Rackett, who is seated on the tender, feebly claps his hands, and exclaims, "Bravo, bravo! for something he has taken to steady his nerves appears to have gone to his head.

"You are a Chilian officer, eh? continues the engineer. "Well, I don't wonder they had a revolution down there if many like you are to be found. Stand only one thing to be done with such vermin. Run this machine, do you? Order it stopped when you please, eh? Jack good-by to you, colonel.

The engineer grabbed the Chilian a while and a toss, and actually throws him out of the cab. As he falls, he sees Avis and she sees Garcia alight with a tremendous splash in a large pool of water that, by the wretched crew of the engine, the driver's eye.

Looking back as they go whirling down the steel rails, they are able to see the wretched crew scrambling for land and stand waist deep in the dock pond. Then a sudden jerk and they are the Vista The engineer's hand is on the throttle, and he is off to the capital for the bridge pieces the morning air.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Across the great bridge they roll, then the pace quickens again until finally Harrisburg is reached. Avis is in suspense, not knowing what fate awaits her.

Into station the engineer no friends by assistance. People stare to see a lady leave the locomotive; but she has no time to stop to answer questions.

Her eyes seek an official, and toward him she hastens.

Inquiry develops the fact that the next train leaves for Philadelphia and New York in half an hour. She regrets the delay, but least it gives her time for an early breakfast.

Avis consults her watch frequently. She has set it an hour ahead, knowing that the time changed at Pittsburg. There is time to reach New York, but nothing to spare.

When the train pulls out she breathes a sigh of relief. To be moving means a great deal.

On another track she sees the wreck-ing train hurrying off to the scene of the disaster. It takes her thoughts to Jack. How he must be suffering both mentally and physically during those hours, round by abusing the trust fate that prevents him from finishing the good work.

Avis smiles. He has a trusty messenger, she believes, and he will be with only reach his destination at Jersey City on time, Doctor Jack's wife knows the rest.

She has a time-table, and consults it whenever they arrive at a station. Who has more interest in the journey than this brave little woman, coming thousands of miles by sea and land, encountering and conquering dangers at the side of her husband, in order to be in New York at a certain hour?

It is a long, weary ride—one always feels the final portion of a journey the most.

Philadelphia at last. Thank heaven, and very close to time.

Two hours and a half ought to see her in New York. For Jack's sake more than her own she is glad. He will be so proud of her.

Why do they not start again—precious minutes are being lost. Each pulsation of the heart for the next few hours may mean dollars—a million is the stake played for.

When Avis, more nervous than ever before in all her life, is reaching a point when the situation becomes almost unbearable, she sees the conductor, whom she has watched with feverish eagerness, move his arms. Thank heaven! they are about to start.

At a snail's pace, it seems to her, they creep out of Philadelphia. Once the City of Brotherly Love is left behind their pace is more rapid, and at length the maximum is reached. Trees and houses seem to fly past.

Avis stole counting the minutes. At Trenton they have made up eight, and it begins to look as though, after all, they may yet get in on time. If the man at the throttle knew of her mission, and sympathized with her, he could hardly have carried the train on more nobly.

Every fiber of her being thrills with excitement as the long race against time draws to a close. It is like a well-balanced scale—a very small thing will send it up or down, but the result is freighted with enormous results to a few.

If anything they increase their speed. The track is in elegant condition, and the man in the cab has the reputation for the best time made on an American railway. This the Avis work for the brave and the fair.

Through New Brunswick they pass like a streak of light. It is about half past two. Then comes a stretch of country, after which Elizabeth shows up. Their speed is checked in crossing the Passaic River, and then they pass for Newark and pass through with no delay.

Another burst of speed over the meadows, and Jersey City is reached, scently they dash upon the elevated tracks into Jersey City.

Avis is ready to leave the train as soon as it stops, and she is on the platform a few short flutter with deep anxiety. To lose even one hour may ruin all. This she not knowing, and she presently finds herself crossing the North River. New York, her goal, shows in the sunlight, which gilds its domes and spires. When she issues from the ferry house, New York is just ten minutes to twelve.

Avis hastens to the door of his well-open.

"Carriage, madam!"

A glance shows a stout animal and a driver who seems to possess determination.

Ten dollars if you reach Wall street before noon," says this determined little woman, as she disappears within this vehicle.

Slam goes the door shut. With one bound the carriage jolts ahead, the whip, as whirls his horses around. Ten dollars! the fee is worth striving for.

"Make way—ease of life and death!" cries the driver, as he goes.

Once over West street to Courtlandt he has overcome the heaviest difficulty. He urges his horses on with a galop. Obstacles appear, but a veteran hackman is an adept at avoiding them. Wall street are in Liberty street, and nearing its junction with Broadway. Avis looks out. A jam would ruin her hopes, but such a thing seldom occurs so far down the congestion of wagons being from the Broadway side.

Broadway at last. Avis breathes in relief. The worst is over, she thinks.

Just as they turn into Wall street the time ball, on the Western Union building, drops. It is high noon, and the crowd whistles proclaim the fact.

In a certain office in Wall street a number of gentlemen have congregated. Men whose business affairs are part of business standing and wealth. Thousands like them can be met with every day in this section, where meetings are being held to involve the handling of millions.

Men with square very anxious, and consult their watches frequently.

At the first stroke of the bells announcing the noon hour, one of them leaps up and raps on a desk with his knuckles.

"Gentlemen, it is time for the vote. We will decide the destinies of our company. Is there any objection?

One man springs up.

"I have had a telegram from Doctor Evans.'

"Ah!

"He is on the way from Chili with documents that give him the right to vote in behalf of these shares. I have added to his own, makes a majority of the stock, I hold.

The other gentlemen smile.

"Where is Doctor Jack's proxy? Let him produce these documents, and we submit. If he is not here, we must shape the future policy of the nitrate company we represent.

"He left Cincinnati at noon yesterday."

"Ah, what news?

"The Pennsylvania"

The smile grows broader now.

"Ah! fake was too much for him—that train was delayed by an accident in the mountains, so I learn from the bulletins. Gentlemen, we will go on with the voting. It is all in our hands, since Doctor Jack is not here."

The door bang occurs, eyes whirl, he spears, and a again steps in. One figure is seen, whose handsome face glows with eagerness.

"Ah, Evans!" says the chairman of the meeting, in haste, "you have arrived in the room; the next door leads to the office of my lawyer's office.

She steps forward.

In the stockholders' meeting of the Rising Sun Nitrate Company, limited, there very distinctly

"Yes.

"Is the one member who had plead for delay jump to his feet eagerly.

"Is Doctor Jack's proxy present?

"I am that party," he exclaims.

"Have you something in her hand.

"I am requested by my wife to you. My husband is unable to be here. I represent him.

"Madam," says the chairman, now all eyes are fixed on Mrs. Madam, what are your?

"Avis gives him a radiant smile.

"I am Doctor Jack's wife."

Jeremiah Green's face is half suppressed cheer as he tears the cover from the packet, glances at the contents and waves them above his head.

These contributes are in Doctor Jack's name." Avis, the woman, the originals," giving him a majority of the stock. Gentlemen, I move that the Rising Sun Company will be worked in the true interest of all holders. Holders interest must follow Yankee push, for Doctor Jack has won."

The defeated conspirators who have intended freezing the minority out, and ruining Doctor Jack, now admit that they are beaten, and beg for the best terms they can get. Avis knows that the crisis has passed, and success won, sinks into a chair quite overall.

The meeting is soon adjourned to await the pleasure of the man who now controls the company. Jeremiah Green goes this to the Avis, and tells her that he, she does is to send a message to Harrisburg, directed to the hotel where Jack is meant to stop. It simply says in the language of sign.

"Veni, vidi, vici—I came, I saw, I conquered."

Doctor Jack, seated in his room, with his limb bandaged, and not yet able to travel, receives the cheerful message, and a tremendous load is at once lifted from his heart. He knows how Avis reached Wall street in time.

The next day he begins to travel to Gotham, and the Astor House, assisted by his friends, is soon down in a cozy tabl that a warm welcome awaits the suffering hero.

Kirke Smith also turns up.

The Chilians, Colonel Garcia and all, have vanished from sight. Gone the complete failure of their plans. As for Lord Rackett, his recent experience has taught him that it is dangerous business trying to steal other men's wives, somewhat foolish, since so many fair English girls would jump at the chance of securing him; so he shakes the dust of America from his feet, and sails for home. No one misses him or absence.

Doctor Jack's sprain grows better daily, and although he calls a meeting of the company from which he has resigned, he does not attend, as he is now under his thumb. The British interests and those of Chicago must be henceforth guided by his wishes; but as he has his fortune invested they must either follow in his lead or buy him out. This latter occurs, for Doctor Jack is willing to sell at a profit, realizing that in the future there seems danger of war between the United States and the republic of Chili.

Larry, who has invested heavily, shares in the profits, which, into another year of idleness on the Continent, so he starts for Italy as soon as his arm heals. Kirke Smith accompanies Doctor Jack and his wife to Europe, for he has long desired to visit, and they spend some months in an elegant dahabeh on the Nile, until the approaching cold weather drives them to more congenial Paris.

THE END.

FATAL STORMS.

Four Schooners, One With a Crew of Ten, Lost Off the Newfoundland Coast—Large Steamer Ashore.

St. John's Nfd., Dec. 12.—Furious snow storms have raged for days on the Newfoundland coast. Four more schooners are reported lost, with the entire crew of ten persons. The other vessels have been driven from to sea and are believed to be in great danger. Trains and steamers are delayed and there have been a number of fatalities throughout the island.

It is rumored that a large steamer is ashore at Grand Bonaventure. It may be the overdue Corinthian.

YANKEES ANXIOUS FOR RECIPROCITY

National Convention Adopts Resolutions to That Behalf Before Adjourning.

Detroit, Dec. 12.—The delegates to the National Reciprocity Convention yesterday afternoon adopted resolutions and adjourned sine die.

The resolutions adopted are as follows:

"Resolved, that we re-affirm the resolutions of this body favoring the adoption of the league at Chicago, which embraced in their proposals the general principle of reciprocity and the establishment of free trade with Canada with all the nations of the world.

"Resolved, that it is the sense of this convention that the government of the United States should take immediate steps to secure closer and more advantageous trade relations with Canada, and that reciprocal relations, beneficial to both countries should preferably follow the general lines of the proposals of the conference of delegates on natural products of each and such mutual revision of tariffs as may be accordingly, we earnestly urge upon Congress that steps to this end be taken at once, either by reconvening the joint commission for the sole purpose of negotiating a reciprocity treaty with Canada, or by adopting such other method as to Congress may seem best.

Premiers Will Meet.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—La Patrie says that the proposed meeting of provincial Premiers will take place soon in Quebec, and that the gathering may be fraught with important consequences.

MATERNITY IS MADE PRACTICALLY PAINLESS BY THE USE OF DR PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION ... IT CURES NAUSEA

THE CAUSE APPARENT

The Venezuelan Attitude Bound to Create Differences.

THE VIEW OF LORD LANSDOWNE

If the Republic Would Come Down to the Possible, She Would See Great Britain Is Not a Hard Taskmaster—Italians Are Aiding the British in Somaliland—Situation Less Serious.

London, Dec. 13.—Foreign Secretary Lansdowne was the principal guest at the Lord Mayor's guild given last night in London of the United Club. In a speech of considerable length the Foreign Secretary touched upon the most prominent topics of the day.

He said he did not believe that in any part of the world, could Great Britain open to the charge of being inveterate antipathy to any one, not even the Venezuelan of that Republic, said Lord Lansdowne, "would desist from committing outrages upon British subjects and British property if he would only hear her lost debts, and if she would reply to diplomatic representations made her in perfectly courteous language there would be no need whatever for an quarrel.

"I might add," said the Foreign Secretary, "that Venezuela should be content to put herself on a moderate allowance in the matter of revolutions. In less than seventy years Venezuela has indulged in the luxury of 104 revolutions, and revolutions in two years seems to me to be altogether unnecessary.

"I am glad that in Venezuela what, at this moment, Germans and British warships and sailors are acting side by side in enforcing the just demands of these two Powers.

Continuing, Lord Lansdowne said that, "Somaliland, which Italian Government was giving Great Britain invaluable assistance in the conduct of operations, and that he hoped soon to see the end of the difficulties created by the Mad Mullah in that part of the world.

Concerning Ireland, the Foreign Secretary said the condition of that country might be treated more fairly with less misgiving than at any time for many years past. Ireland has Rule and receded further into the background than at any time within his recollection.

Situation Not Alarming.

London, Dec. 15.—The Venezuelan crisis is regarded less seriously here this morning. Lord Lansdowne's speech is held to show that the situation is in no way alarming, and, although he did not expressly express that President Castro's reported request for arbitration has reached too late, this step on his part is well noticed as a sign of his anxiety to withdraw from his position.

The morning newspapers express various opinions as to the arbitration proposals, but there is a general agreement that, in the present case, made by the United States, or by other neutrals, Venezuela be bound to carry out an award, no reason exists why Great Britain should refuse to consent to arbitration. It is believed, however, that Minister Great Britain Germany is likely to accept the arbitration proposal.

Statements attributed to the consul-general of Germany at Caracas in Venezuela in European cities all be true a strong feeling against Germany than against Great Britain, as well as reliance upon the United States to prevent the German-European invasion of Venezuela. The Venezuelan Consul-at Genoa is reported with the assertion that the armed interventions of the Triple Alliance would be certain to follow immediately such invasion.

Advices from Berlin to The Morning Post says the British commander in Venezuela, Sir Nigel, a senior officer, in future direct all joint action by the Anglo-German fleet, after having consulted with Commodore Scheder, the German commander. Germany has no intention of sending a force to the interior of Venezuela. All operations according to the correspondent, will be confined to the coast.

Crippled For Life.

New York, Dec. 13.—Charles Clinton Gladwin, one of the leading athletes of Canada, and the champion snowshoe racer of the world, left Harlem Hospital last night probably crippled for life, as a result of the explosion of fireworks in Madison Square on election night. Gladwin was taken to the hospital with both legs broken, and the right in bad shape. The surgeons desired to amputate both legs, but he refused permission.

GAKES REFUSED TO WORK.

Freight Train Crashes Into an Express and Several Are Injured.

Virden, Man., Dec. 12.—Through the brake refusing to work, the west-bound express, No. 3, was run into by an eastbound freight yesterday morning. Arthur Johnson, the engineer of No. 1, was just oiling up his engine when the eastbound train was walking up to hand the orders to the fireman who was thrown from his head and looked up the track and saw an engine coming swiftly down the track. He ran back and ran his fireman to jump or he would be killed. Johnson, No. 547, seeing that with a load of heavy freight behind he would be killed, ordered his fireman and Fireman Armstrong jumped to save his life. He escaped, but was badly hurt. The engineer on 547 stuck to his post and escaped unhurt, but his fireman, Gibbons, escaped and was seriously injured. Flatt, the baggage clerk, Regina was on No. 1, was also hurt, but not badly. The injured men have been removed to Brandon on a special train.

Caleb Mallory Not Dead.

Cobourg, Dec. 12.—Caleb Mallory who was struck by a G.T.R. express Wednesday, is still seriously ill at the home of his brother-in-law, Dr. Jones. Dr. Jones, however, declares he will get well. There will be no inquest held into the cause of Mr. Mallory's death.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19.

THE FACES OF MEN.

Up in Stratford a clergyman in his sermon last Sunday made a queer contrast between a "red-faced hotelkeeper and a Y.M.C.A. lad." The result is a somewhat amusing dispute, the red-faced hotelkeeper having sprung bravely forward to the defence of his countenance, which he offered to exhibit against the face of the clergyman and leave the public to judge which was the most satisfactory visage.

Using this occurrence as an excuse, the Toronto Star gives us some practical and interesting relections upon the subject of faces and heads generally. "After all is said and done, faces do not count for very much. It is only in story books that the boy with 'a frank open countenance is stopped on the street by the childless old man, sent to college and made the heir to a large fortune. Some very rascally people are wearing frank open countenances at the present time of writing. The visitor to the Central Prison will be surprised to see the number of good faces collected there, and it may be added that a prominent Toronto clergyman once said to the writer that sometimes when he stood in a strange pulpit and faced a congregation for the first time, he was compelled to think and to hope that the principles of physiognomy were all at fault. It is not the outside but the inside of a man's head that counts. It is not the dial that makes a clock good or bad; it is the works. In addressing a meeting of farmers the other night a lecturer told of two men living near each other and owning orchards of equal size, yet one sold his fruit on the trees for $1,000, and the other sold his for $100. Both these men had heads, and perhaps their countenances were equally pleasing to the eye, but one of them only used the outside of his head—used it to see, speak and hear with and to feed himself through, but not to think with. He did not cultivate his orchard and spray his trees. Some fine looking men got through the world prosperously by relying entirely on the outside of their heads. They look wiser and greater than they are and go through life at a high premium, but everybody cannot do this. Young persons usually have faith in physiognomy, but experience with men teaches them that except for some flaring-indications of character that mark some countenances, the outside of a man's head may reveal nothing of the quality or voltage of the works within."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Commercial travellers very generally supported the new liquor law. They know something about the evils of the bar-room and would be glad to get rid of the treating system,

Some of the people who are crying out for higher tariffs, that they may be enabled to shut out competition and charge higher prices for their goods, would be better employed in pushing sales. How many of the Canadian manufacturers have an adequate idea of the value of advertising? Some Yankee firms, capital considered spend thousands of dollars in publicity where Canadian firms spend shillings.

Church advertising is no longer infra dig. The church people are alive to the fact that Auld Clootie is not adverse to publicity, and they come to think that advertising is good business. Not only do some of the big churches go into special newspaper and program advertising, but they hang out great wall signs. Manhattan Congregational church, New York, has a great sign on front and side that can be seen from afar, and the church that does not weekly invite all to its services is counted slow nowadays. Competition with the powers of evil is keen, and the advantages of printers' ink are not to be despised.

Stratford School Board and Inspector have arranged regulations to prevent overloading pupils with home work. They are:

(a) No home lessons in any grade be given in arithmetic and grammar.

(b) No home lessons be given below the third book classes.

(c) That home lessons shall not be given in more than two subjects at one time, or of such a kind as to take more than half an hour in the third book grades or an hour in the fourth book grades in preparation.

(d) That the work given shall be of such a character that it can be done by the pupil unaided.

It is provided that in the case of specially backward pupils teachers shall consult with parents as to further home work. That is a step in the right direction. Parents ought to have more interest than teachers in the progress of their children.

While Australia continues to bar the way to the complete adoption of Imperial penny postage, the United States has come to the conclusion that a two-cent letter rate is feasible between the United States, on the one hand, and Great Britain France and Germany on the other. The declaration of the Postmaster-General at Washington to this effect is most important; but it is too soon to jump to the conclusion that the proposal is certain of adoption. The smaller powers will have as much voice as the larger ones in the deliberations of the Berne Convention, which must precede a working agreement. When at last the four powers named have arranged a one penny, two cent, one centime or five pfennig letter rate,—by which time, we may hope, Australia will have fallen into line with Imperial penny postage,—Canada will be able to note with pride the world-wide expansion of an idea which, as the Earl of Norfolk, the late Postmaster-General of Great Britain, declared, owed its inauguration to the present Postmaster-General at Ottawa.

Carleton County Council has adopted a Good Roads system which covers the improvement of 300 miles of roadway at an outlay of $300,000. The proposition will be submitted to a vote of the ratepayers at the January election.

The incomes of some of the great powers are; Russia, $860,412,882; France, $710,314.099; United States, $699,316,530; Great Britain, $576,556,064; Austro-Hungary, $539,515,976; Germany, $502,926,320: Italy, $324,199,386.

Belleville Ontario: The great fault that we find with the Board of Water Commissioners (not the individuals composing it, but the system of management) is its complete independence of the Council and people. It is a very important department of the city's business, and we do not think it should be conducted with such absolute secrecy as the Comsioners have seen fit to adopt. However, the question has reached the point at which we wanted it to arrive when we first broached the matter last spring. It is before the people, and if the majority of the ratepayers want the change made it will be made.

Toronto Star: The issue that confronts the Sons of Temperance, the Dominion Alliance and all such organizations is this: Being unable to reach immediate prohibition, will they refuse to accept temperance? They have secured in Toronto something they were not seeking, and because it is not exactly what they sought, will they throw it aside? The iron is hot for a blow in favor of the greater restriction of the sale of intoxicants, and by an unreasonable attitutde at this time prohibitionists may repel the advances of thousands of people who favor reform but not revolution. What can be gained right now—with the aid of those who are not in favor of prohibition—is the enactment into law of the principle that a barroom must have a better reason for existence than a thirst for drink in the neighborhood where it is located. Let us explode the theory that because a bar can sell liquor enough to support it, then its existence is justified. We fully believe that if the prohibitionists will direct their efforts to practical ends they can cut off at once fifty barroom licenses in the city of Toronto. This will be one of those practicable reforms that will prove so successful that it will quickly lead to others. There are a dozen other practical advantages to be got from the present situation, and we hope they are not to be thrown away.

The Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York has addressed a strongly-worded circular to the liquor dealers of his flock, calling attention to the pronunciamento of the third plenary council of his church against the liquor traffic. His Grace says that to the consideration of the means of reformation to be used, the members of the council devoted a whole chapter of the proceedings of the Council —"a chapter of sad but salutary reading." A feature of this chapter was the admonition to the liquor dealers to get out of the business, to "choose some more honorable way of making a living." If they found it impossible to quit it they should remove the occasion of sin from themselves and from others by not selling to minors or those who go to excess, by keeping their saloons closed upon the Lord's Day, by prohibiting on the premises blasphemy, cursing and obscene language. "But if," says the Archbishop, "through their action, or with their co-operation, religion is dishonored and men are led to ruin let them remember that there is an Avenger in heaven who will certainly demand of them a terrible retribution." The Archbishop uses very strong language, but he probably found none other would be equal to the occasion.

A MODEL MAN.

A model man he seems to be,
I've noticed him quite often, and
That's just how he impressed me—
I think his style is simply grand.

He neither drinks nor swears nor smokes,
Was never known to make a bet
Or tell those questionable jokes
As do some people I have met,

He always wears the same sweet smile,
A frown has never marred his face;
I have observed him quite a while
And never knew him off his base.

From most men that I've ever known
Some ugly language I have heard
But temper he has never shown;
He never says an angry word.

He's pretty as a picture, too,
Complexion rosy, fresh and clear,
Such eyelashes you seldom view—
What ladies call a perfect dear.

He's comme il faut from toe to top;
It is a pity he is but
A dummy in a tailor's shop.
His clothes are of the latest cut,

HOCKEY WILL BOOM THIS WINTER.

The Lindsay Hockey Club Re-organized Last Night.

A meeting for the purpose of re-organizing the Lindsay Hockey Club was held last Monday in the Benson house parlor, and was largely attended, there being present about twenty-five enthusiastic hockeyists.

On motion Mr. Lewis, of the Bank of Montreal, was elected chairman pro tem, and Mr. H. J. Nosworthy secretary. After discussing several matters pertaining to the game, the nomination of officers then took place, resulting in the following being elected: Hon. Pres., Mr. J. A. Paddon; Hon. Vice-Pres., Mr. R. Ross and Mr. H. J. Lytle; Pres., Mr. Siddle; Vice-Pres., Mr. Geo. H. Taylor; Secretary, Mr. Baldwin; Treas. and Manager, Mr. Lewis; Executive Committee; Messrs. Siddle, Taylor, Baldwin, Lewis, Dr. Walters, H. Nosworthy.

Mr. Jos. Parkins, manager of the rink, was present relative to the club making arrangements for the rink for practices and games. On motion the matter was left with the committee to deal with. It was decided that the club join the Trent Valley League. The membership fee was fixed at $1, and as it is necessary to raise considerable money within the next few days we trust our citizens will contribute liberally and give the boys a lift. Mr. Lewis, the treasurer, wishes us to state also that no debts are to be contracted unless a written order is given by him.

According to the interest taken in the meeting, and the enthusiasm that prevailed, it is likely Lindsay will have a fast team this winter.

King's Evil

That is Scrofula.

No disease is older.

No disease is really responsible for a larger mortality.

Consumption is commonly its outgrowth.

There is no excuse for neglecting it, it makes its presence known by so many signs, such as glandular tumors, cutaneous eruptions, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, rickets, catarrh, wasting and general debility.

Children of J. W. McGinn, Woodstock, Ont., had scrofula sores so bad they could not attend school for three months. When different kinds of medicines had been used to no purpose whatever, these sufferers were cured, according to Mr. McGinn's voluntary testimonial, by which has effected the most wonderful, radical and permanent cures of scrofula in old and young.

Wanted – a Public Library Site

Mr. David Mayer has made a perspective in water-colors from the architect's plans of the proposed new Public Library. It looks just as it will appear when erected. The picture is in a bold, dashing style, and is very effective. Mr. Mayer is a clever artists, and his work speaks for him. He is a native of New Orleans, La. While chatting with a Post representative about art and other things, Mr Mayer said; "For the population of Lindsay, I have seen more handsome women and pretty girls here than anywhere else."

IN MEMORY OF BRAVE MEN.

ST. ANNE'S CHURCH AT PENETANGUISHENE IS DEDICATED.

The Story Told of Fathers Jean de Breboeuf and Gabriel Lallement.

Penetanguishene, Dec. 12. — Two hundred and seventy-five years ago Father Jean de Breboeuf and Father Gabriel Lallement, two Jesuit missionaries, were matryred at the stake near Penetanguishene. The fiends who martyred them were the Iroquois Indians, whom they had endeavored to reach with the Gospel of Peace and Plenty. To-day, St. Anne's memorial church, a magnificent stone building, stands a monument to the two men who gave their lives for the cause of missions.

The ceremony of dedicating the church took place yesterday, and was a most impressive one. Archbishop O'Connor, Bishops O'Connor and McEvay, and many other of the distinguished clergy and laity of the Roman Catholic faith were present, arriving here from Toronto on a special train.

The church was begun on Sept. 5, 1886, when the corner-stone was laid by his Grace the late Archbishop Lynch. The site chosen was the most prominent in this old historic town. Standing on an eminence on the shores of the inlet, the church overlooks the picturesque bay and town, nestling on the sides of the hill, which gradually slopes towards its waters. The interior dimensions are 137 feet long by 45 feet wide, and the building will seat 800 people. The memorial windows, in groups of three, are beautiful both in conception and execution.

The name of Father de Breboeuf stands prominent in the roll of honor in Jesuit missions. The story of his almost superhuman achievements in the evangelization of the Huron Indians and of his terrible death was told to the great gathering by Rev. Father Jones, S.J., of St. Mary's College, Montreal, the authority upon the history of Catholicism in this country.

Father de Breboeuf kissed the stake which was to be finally the instrument of his death. A girdle of pine knots was put about his massive frame and lighted, and he still continued to exhort his companions. A necklace of hot axeheads was hung over his shoulders, and when he continued to pray to his companions to be strong in the faith, the enraged Iroquois cut out his tongue, and when his heart was cut out and death came, the Indians drank his blood, in the hope that they might become as brave as he had been. The next day they brought out the frail and heroic Lallement, and his soul, too, went back to heaven.

The speaker dealt with each locality separately, and located the first Iroquois attack as taking place on the east half of lot 4, of the seventh concessions of Tay, a most interesting discovery made recently.

The ceremony of blessing the church was a most impressive one. His Grace Archbishop O'Connor recited a prayer at the main entrance, and then, with the clergy and altar boys, marched in processional order around the edifice, sprinkling the walls with holy water. The procession was followed into the church by the congregation, and the ceremony of sprinkling the interior walls and blessing the altar and ornaments was proceeded with by his Grace.

The holy sacrifice of the Mass was celebrated, Bishop O'Connor, of Peterboro, pontificating, with Vicar-General McCann as assistant priest, Dean Egan as deacon, Father Beaudoin as sub-deacon, and Rev. Father Hand as master of ceremonies. His Grace assisted at the Mass in cope and miter. Two sermons were preached, one in French by the Rev. Father Allward, S.J., of Montreal, and one in English by Rev. Father Jones, S.J., of Montreal.

Advertising Pointers.

—Do you want a share of the Christmas trade? If so, let the public know what you have to sell. Enterprise on the part of advertisers begets enterprise in those who read ads. In the past ten years modern publicity has taught the public the significance of business announcements, sharpened its faculties and increased its buying capacity, until to-day there is an enormous audience ready to give attention to any rational proposition made to it though the medium of the public press.

Curling Notes.

—Bobcaygeon curlers enjoyed their first game Saturday night.

—Dr. Macaulay, of Brockville, has received a letter from his brother, Judge Macaulay, Dawson City, formerly of this town, in which he says that they have erected one of the finest gymnasiums, curling and skating rinks in Canada. They expect to do big things this winter in the hockey and curling lines.

—A letter has been received from A. D. Smith, secretary of the Royal Caledonia Curling Club, of Edinburgh, in which particulars are given of the club's forthcoming visit to Canada. The party, comprising 24 curlers, will leave on the 18th, and expect to reach Halifax about the end of the month. They will arrive in Toronto about the 21st of January.

A Lively Runaway.

A team of horses belonging to a farmer named Thos. Deyell, who resides near Mount Horeb, caused some exictement on Kent-st. last Friday afternoon. They were being driven east on Kent-st. about 4 o'clock, and when near Sylvester's foundry the animals took fright at some object and made a dash for liberty. After crossing the railway track the animals separated from the bob-sleigh, but young Deyell held fast to the reins and was dragged as far as the market, where the reins broke. The spirited team ran down Kent-st. at a lively gait, turning south on Lindsay-st., but were stopped near Dr. White's residence. Young Deyell escaped injury, but the horses were cut and the harness and sleighs badly wrecked.

Chapter of Accidents.

—Mr. B. Cook, of Ridout-st., met with a painful mishap as he was coming up street last week. When in front of Mr. Eli Williamson's photograph gallery he slipped and fell on the icy sidewalk, injuring one of his legs and bruising himself very badly. Dr. Burrows was summoned.

—Another accident happened in the G.T. yards last Friday afternoon, about 2 o'clock, Max Clendennan, son of Mr. Ed. Clendennan, of the Daly house, being the victim. Max is a brakeman in the employ of the G.T.R. He was assisting in making up a double-header train to go to Belleville, and while making the last connection of two cars his left hand got caught in the Detroit coupler, badly injuring the thumb. Drs. Simpson and Jeffers were summoned to dress the wound. A strange coincidence is that Mr. Clendennan's mate, Mr. Hacker, met with a similar mishap the previous Wednesday night.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Once more it is our pleasant privilege to be able to wish our many subscribers and readers, and the public in general a Merry Christmas. Truly the people of this Province can have cause to be grateful for the abundant prosperity that has blessed all branches of industrial enterprise during the year ending in the benefits arising therefrom, the citizens of this town and county have shared to the full. Let us, then, enter upon this joyous season with hearts attuned to the brighter outlook, and as we approach the mystic anniversary so pregnant of hope and promise to the children of men, let us not fail to return thanks to the Giver of all good things for the mercy and favors bestowed on us individually and as a people, and in shedding us from the dire visitations that have befallen in other lands.

A Very Merry Christmas to All!

A CREDIT TO G. W. ROSS.

(Toronto Telegram, Monday.)

History will link the name of Hon. G. W. Ross with the only sensibly built stretch of railway in Canada west of the International territory. The Temiscaming railway should be built and equipped for not more than $25,000 per mile, and should sell for or earn dividends on $25,000 per mile.

The Ross experiment with public ownership ought to give the Ontario Government $25,000 worth of railway for every $25,000 worth of money put into the line. The Temiskaming road should cost the Province nothing, and the business subsidy of $3,200 per mile should be clear profit.

History will link the name of Hon. G. W. Ross with a patriotic effort to build up the steel rail industry. The Temiskaming railway commission wisely gave a preference to the Clergue mills. Mr. Clergue was given an his own price, and the commission should accept nothing less than rails equal in quality to any made in the world. The whole Temiskaming railway venture on the lines of public ownership promises to be a good stroke of business for the country, and an equally good stroke of politics for Hon. G. W. Ross.

A NEW RAILWAY THROUGH VICTORIA COUNTY

In the last Canada Gazette appears the usual official notice of application for a charter for the Canada Central Railway, one section of which is to run from Sudbury through Scotia Junction—where the Parry Sound and N.T.R. crosses the Pacific junction, Railways cross—thence through the Townships of Bexley or Digby, by the shores of Balsam or Sturgeon Lakes, to the Capital of the Province—meaning Toronto. The proposed line would be a matter of course, run through Lindsay. If it should pass by Sturgeon Lake a branch or spur line might be run down to Sturgeon Point, and the energetic village Clerk of that corporation, and the Secretary of the Golf Club, ought to look out for this splendid chance to get rapid communication with the outside world. The solicitors giving the notice in the Gazette are Messrs. Johnston and Falconbridge, the former being Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, the well-known Toronto lawyer. The advertisement also includes some other sections in the West of what appears to be an extensive project. Has this a project connection with the G.T.R. Pacific, the C.P.R., or Mackenzie & Mann's Canadian Northern? The Toronto Junction ends at Davenhurst. North of that is a section to North Bay, largely honeycombed and known as the Pacific function, operated by the G.T.R. and C.P.R., but owned by neither. Further development will be awaited with interest.

THE POST'S FINE ILLUSTRATED EDITION

Undoubtedly the Best Holiday Number Ever Issued in the Midland District.

GIVEN FREE TO PROMPT PAYING SUBSCRIBERS, NEW OR OLD

Selected Stories by the Leading Canadian Authors, all Richly Embellished With Illustrations.

Sixty Pages of Choice Reading Combined with an Art Supplement of High Merit—Interesting Sketches of Lindsay's Industries and Business Firms, with Accompanying Photogravures.

For many years past The Post has honored the coming of Christmas by issuing a special edition combining various features of a meritorious nature, but never have we felt pride equal to that which prompts our announcement of the treat reserved for those who are fortunate enough to secure a copy of our Illustrated Edition for Christmas, 1902. Its pre-eminence over our past efforts along the same line is in keeping with the strides made by the fair Dominion in the last few years, or compared with the slow and labored advance under the former political regime.

The Post's Illustrated Edition for Christmas, 1902, is in magazine form, 12x9 inches in size, with handsome cover in colors entirely new, and like photogravures of their Excellencies, Lord and Lady Minto, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir R. L. Borden, Hon. G. W. Ross, Mr. J. P. Whitney, Lord Dunsmuir, Chief Justice Meredith and the House of Parliament, Ottawa. The planning exterior is a fitting index to the choice contents. The stories comprise "Jed Hawkins's Campaign," by Edward A. Dewdney; "A Picture with a History," by Pauline Thompson; "The Evidence of Things Not Seen," by Kate Westlake Walsh; "His Original Nature," by Stanbury R. Tarr; "The Shrine of Many Brave Feathers," by Wendell Dancey; "The Bishop, the Parson and the Parson's Chum," by Robert Jackson; "Within a Year," by Lady Johnson; "The Colonel's Guest," by W. A. Fraser. Sandwiched in between are a number of pages of interesting reading of a mixed character, including a table giving the population of Canadian cities and cities according to the census and cities outside the census, the totals for the several Provinces, numerous selections, etc., the whole making a literary gem well worth preserving and preserving.

Not the least attractive feature of the issue is the department devoted to Lindsay industries and business men, which is bright with many fine photogravures of the buildings and the owners, and a number of pretty views taken in various parts of the town. A remnant of Lindsay's history and advantages as a residential, business and manufacturing center, introduces a series of readable sketches relative to the growth of our leading mercantile and industrial interests and these elaborate sketches suffice to render the magazine well worth preserving as a valuable contribution to County history.

The handsome Christmas Edition will be ready for delivery early next week and will be sent to the mail subscribers. Our readers are again reminded that the free premium will be given only to prompt-paying old and new subscribers, (in a strictly legitimate sense of the words, and to the general public, will be 25c.

OBITUARY.

The Late Patrick Curtin

Many of our readers will regret to hear of the death of Mr. Patrick Curtin lockmaster, which said event occurred at his residence, Lock 44, on Sunday afternoon at a quarter to one o'clock, after about six weeks' illness from Cirrhosis. The deceased was one of the most known and most highly respected citizens of Lindsay, and was born in Ballinrobe, County Mayo, Ireland, County of Clare, Ireland, in 1840 and together with his brother, two sisters and parents, came to Canada, settling in the town of Cobourg, where his father, the late Patrick Curtin, engaged in the manufacture of brick for several years. In 1861 the family moved to Lindsay, where Mr. Curtin died, and shortly after, he moved to the township of Ops, where he farmed for a time, coupled by Mr. Wm. Meagher, south of Lindsay, and there he again engaged in the manufacture of brick, carrying on a successful business for 18 years, the deceased of his brick business to his eldest son, Francis, and entered upon the chosen work of lock 44, on the Ops. of the Trent Valley Canal. Mr. Curtin was appointed lockmaster on Lindsay by the Dominion Government, and in the following spring removed to Lindsay.

In the year 1851 deceased married Miss Mary Hughes, and of twelve children being the issue of the union, of whom five of the family are surviving members of the family are Mrs. M. Moriarty, of Lindsay, Mrs. Dooley, Ops, Michael and Miss Annie Curtin, and the deceased was left to mourn for a devoted husband and loving father. Mrs. Dodd, of Cobourg, and Mrs. Wm. Ward, of Ops, are sisters of deceased.

In Ex. Sec. Hughes' time Mr. Curtin was appointed a license commissioner for West Victoria, which position he filled till the time of his death. Mr. Curtin was also active in his township municipal politics, always took a great interest in local affairs. In politics he was a staunch Liberal and in religion a Roman Catholic. The funeral took place Wednesday morning from St. Mary's church, and was largely attended by all classes of citizens. The pall bearers were all Lindsay men, and evidently have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

—Dr. Jeffery has quite recovered from his recent illness, and his many friends will be glad to know that he has again taken up his practice.

—Our stores are being decked out in handsome fashion. The majority of the window displays for Christmas are very striking and effective.

—The Federal Business College reopens Jan. 2nd, 1903. Upon desire one of a thorough business training will do well to enter on that date. —w1

—The best cold snap story stands to the credit of a man down in South Brewer, Me., who reports that his fountain pen froze in his waistcoat pocket.

—Fowler & Co. are the best and cheapest photographers in Lindsay. To prove this, call up and compare their prices and styles. On the corner.—w1.

—The Beaverton Express has been of a very recent date. Continuous number in pamphlet form, and very neatly printed making into consideration the difficulties to be mastered in an ordinary country office, where pretentiousness does not exception, and not the rule. The issue contains a number of entertaining stories, and interesting local write-ups, with photogravures of local citizens.

—Some shoplifting has been done in town during the past week, and this will likely continue until the holidays are over. The rush of business at stores gives persons of thieving propensities a chance to operate. Several suspects are being closely watched, and will likely be brought up with a round turn. The female who walked off with a good-sized Christmas doll from a city goods store a few days ago had better pay for the article without delay and so save trouble.

THE NEWS IS SOLD.

Toronto, Dec. 11.—The Evening News has been purchased by the Flavelle-Willison combination, an official announcement to this effect appeared last night. The paper will continue under its present management until the first of the year. Contrary to expectation, it is the intention of the new owners to run an evening paper only, and there will be a big edition, too, as has erroneously been stated.

Threatened by His Wife.

Toronto, Dec. 11—A rather startling story was related to the police last night by William Stuart of 41 Lombard street. Who says George Brown of Oak Hedges, has broken up his home, and went so far as to threaten his wife to kill her. Mrs. Brown is under arrest, charged with polishing and carrying a revolver, and Brown is detained at the station on a nominal charge of drunkenness.

Anglo-Abyssinian Treaty.

London, Dec. 13.—The Foreign Office has issued the text of the Anglo-Abyssinian treaty which were ratified Oct. 28. By this treaty Great Britain obtains a lease of a slice of territory near Lamu on the River Juba, as a commercial station, and the right to construct a railroad through Abyssinia, connecting the Soudan with Uganda Territory.

Yale Duty of Cost.

Washington, Dec. 13—Representative McCall, (Mass.) yesterday introduced a bill authorizing the President to enter into a reciprocal agreement with Great Britain whereby coal mined in the Nova Scotia mines be shipped into Canada free of duty and Canadian coal admitted into the United States free of charge.

VENEZUELAN AFFAIRS

The British Side of the Dispute Stated in the Commons.

PREMIER MAKES EXPLANATION

Arbitration Suggestions Come From Castro's Government—The United States Had Nothing to Do With Them—Lord Cranborne Upholds the Monroe Doctrine—The Debate in the Commons.

London, Dec. 16.—The House was crowded last evening when the Venezuelan matter came up for debate. Harry Wylie, the American charge d'Affaires, had a seat in the diplomatic gallery. Mr. Schwann, after having expressed surprise that the Government was anxious for another war after South Africa, complained of the paucity of the information concerning the Venezuelan situation which has been given to Parliament. He said he hoped arbitration would be accepted, because the situation is full of danger and Roosevelt's hands might be forced by politicians.

Lord Cranborne spoke after Dr. Schwann. He reproached the member with a desire to discredit the Government, and exclaimed that papers in the Venezuelan matters were very voluminous, and that they issued yesterday were only a summary. He said that Great Britain had to perform police duty among her subjects, and had to prevent Venezuela from breaking the law of nations. The United States took the sensible view that Great Britain's resistance that Venezuela should meet her obligaeneila was no infraction of the Monroe Doctrine. "No country has been more anti-American than Great Britain," said Lord Cranborne, "to assist the American Government in maintaining that doctrine.

This remark was greeted with cheers. Continuing the Under Foreign Secretary said the British Government had displayed great forbearance, and that it was only after Venezuela had been thrice summoned to do right that the Government had been driven to strong measures to secure the safety, liberty and property of British subjects in Venezuela, and that in the execution of these measures the Government desired to pursue the same course of moderation.

Lord Cranborne said also that the blockade would be carried out with every regard for the interests of neutrals.

The Liberal Leader.

The Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, then voiced his strong dissatisfaction with Lord Cranborne's speech. He complained of the lack of information about the German and British proposals, which said seemed to be on a different footing. The speaker said he was an advocate of the best possible feeling between the two countries, but that he was afraid that Great Britain seemed to be bound hand and foot to Germany. He said he was afraid with regard to our claims," continued the Liberal leader, "lest the Germans are perfectly satisfied with the settlement of their claims. Such an arrangement is contrary to the country's best interest. The speaker had had nothing about an important communication received from the Venezuelan minister, and he was not satisfied if this communication was of such a nature as to lead to a peaceful solution of what, after all, seems to be a somewhat squalid difficulty.

Premier Balfour's Reply.

Premier Balfour accused the movers and the seconder of the motion for adjourn of a desire to discredit the Government and said that was not the way to approach a painful international episode. The Premier declared there was no justification for the assumption that the Government was prepared to go to war for the Venezuelan bondholders. The crux of the matter was a series of outrages by Venezuelans on British seamen and ship owners, for which only only had compensation been refused, but Great Britain's remonstrances had been entirely disregarded. It was an intolerable situation, and the Premier denied that the Government had been unduly hasty. Sir Henry Fowler, and Lord Cranborne had the sires to co-operate with Germany on this own peculiar terms, but few allies were prepared to act on such a basis.

To Assess Claims Equitably.

Continuing Mr. Balfour said that in so far as the financial claims were concerned, the Government was prepared to agree to a tribunal to assess them equitably. He said also that the United States Government had not suggested arbitration. Anglo-German interests in Venezuela had been treated with the American Minister at Caracas. Mr. Bowen, who, with admirable temper, had protected the lives of British and German subjects. The Premier said he understood that it was from Venezuela through the United States, that the suggestion for arbitration had come. On that point he would only say it was unfortunate that Venezuela should not have thought of the advantages of arbitration during the long period covered by these controversies, but that on the contrary she should have refused all explanation or apology until actually engaged in hostilities. The idea of arbitration suddenly commended itself to the minds of the Venezuelans.

The Premier said he would say nothing for or against this idea, and repeated that it had not come from the Government of the United States.

Criticized the Government.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt and other members of the House severely criticized the Government for its action in asking for additional information. Timothy M. Healy (Nationalist), declared that the Irish vote in American had driven the British Government into a humiliating alliance with Germany, and warned the Government that it was in a perilous position owing to the state of political feeling in the United States.

In replying to questions Premier Balfour said Italy was sending warships to Venezuelan waters, but that there was no agreement between Italy and Great Britain, as there was between Great Britain and Germany. Referring to the Anglo-German fleets in the Venezuelan coast, the Premier said there was no question of seniority, as the two fleets were acting along different parts of the coast, and independently of each other.

Mr. Schwann's motion was rejected without a division.

Proposal to Arbitrate.

A proposition arrived here yesterday to submit the points in difference to arbitration. It came in the form of a proposal through the United States Government to submit the claims of British and German subjects to arbitration, which Lord Lansdowne announced later in the day in the House of Lords" was under consideration by the British Government.

It was learned last evening that the proposals now before the British Government are the original proposals forwarded by Minister Bowen, but which now have received strong support from the United States Government.

Venezuela's Reply.

Lord Lansdowne said the Government had received from Minister Bagard a cabled summary of what purports to be Venezuela's reply to the British ultimatum. Therein Venezuela complains that no reparation was offered by Great Britain for the landing of the marines, or for the conduct of the British authorities of Trinidad. This dispatch closed by saying "Venezuela protested that as her treasury was exhausted, it was impossible for the Government to meet its debts for the moment, but directly, she was declared, she would not be necessary to remind the Venezuelan Government of its obligations.

Other Top State Aries.

New York Herald—The Herald correspondent in Caracas says he has learned on reliable authority that the Government of Argentina, in a dispatch from Buenos Ayres, has instructed its consular representative to report to Buenos Ayres what aggressive steps the ministers of the United States, and what view that Government is likely to take of its negotiations under the Monroe Doctrine, in the face of the aggressive action of Great Britain and Germany.

Should the United States not act, Argentina, fearing the autonomy of all Southern American States, is jeopardized, is prepared to advise goals.

It is believed Chile entertains similar views.

U.S. Will Not Be Involved.

Washington, Dec. 16.—The South and Central American diplomatic representatives are at a loss to know anxiety that finds expression in frequent calls at the State Department for information. No less Ministers were asking Secretary Hay for a viewpoint.

Among Senators and Representatives who have discussed the Venezuelan matter with President Roosevelt the situation is regarded as serious, but it is not generally believed to be likely that the United States will become involved in the controversy.

Orangeville, Dec. 16—David Ballard, James Ballard, Angus Ballard, William Reid and James E. Corbett, who were released from prison after long terms of imprisonment in May, 1897, for arson, have been released on ticket-of-leave, by order of the Governor-General-in-Council. The two Ballards and Smith were sentenced to 12 years' each by Mr. Justice Patterson, and Reid and Corbett to 7 years. Their release was the result of an application commenced last spring by The Post, and taken up later generally by the citizens, it being felt that the men had suffered sufficiently for their crime.

GROWING OF SUGAR BEETS.

PETERBORO COUNTY FARMERS DISCUSS THE INDUSTRY.

Prof. Harcourt, of Guelph Agricultural College, imparts Some Valuable Information.

At a mass meeting of Peterboro County farmers, held Saturday last, matters connected with sugar beet culture were discussed at some length. We take the following synopsis from the Examiner's report:

The Probable Local Yield.

Mr. Gurvin, who spoke not only as a producer, but also as a dealer, dwelt on the immensity of the industry as displayed at Berlin, where he became a brief resume of the history of the beet root sugar industry in Europe and America. He also mentioned the marvellous multiplied of it by the vicinity of beet root sugar industries, and also the increase in value of farming properties in these places. Then he gave a report of the measures taken by Peterboro' for a by-law proposition was dropped, and now the company was offering to give $4 per ton for beets during first year, and in after years $3.3 cents for each per cent. of saccharine properties of beets, which, according to the analysis of Prof. Harcourt, at least should average $0.33-1-3 per ton of beets. Now the privilege accorded the farmers were dwelt on, and explained by Mr. Gurvin introduced Professor Harcourt, of the Agricultural College.

Prof. Harcourt Speaks.

Professor Harcourt then took up the subject in the first place, he stated that he was biased by no interest in any company, and that the company ran all the risk and the farmers gained. The speaker then dwelt upon the nature of the world's supply of sugar, and stated that 90 per cent. of it came from the sugar beet, a product of essentials necessary for the successful establishment of a factory. Many

1. The surrounding country should be of a nature to produce good roots. Clay loam was thought were most suitable.

2. A plentiful supply of water, 4,000,000 gallons per day were required.

3. Easy means of transportation. In this place water was specially favorable.

4. A supply of available labor. This labor question should not delay any farmer from making contracts for the law of supply and demand would settle this all right.

The sugar beet has been especially cultivated for 140 years for its mechanical qualities, and now contains a high percentage of sugar. To get a sugar tare the sugar beet must be matured, and in this respect it differed from the ordinary root.

In reply to a question as to what was a good beet, Mr. Harcourt said that the best lose the strength of fodd in the same way as grass, and that when the best turned yellow the best was at maturity. Maturity should be the object aimed at. He thought that twenty tons to the acre was not impossible. Comparing the sugar beet to a highly bred animal, he showed that this beet needed high care, and stated that experiments during the past three years have shown that sugar beet of a very high quality as regards purity, can be grown in Ontario.

Experiments had shown that Peterboro had given the very best results, first place in Ontario.

In reply to a question the speaker said that last year per acre of cultivation, was, thought variable, about $40 around Berlin.

Those who took small contracts were highly pleased with the result.

The speaker gave the experiences of a number of farmers, from which it seemed as though small acreages paid well. At the meeting then been open and a number of questions were asked.

Q.—If beets were pulled at the end of October would they be all right?

A.—As long as the beets are covered with the leaf and frosted and thawing prevented, no harm was done.

Q.—Will men having big crops have no good percentage of purity and sugar as smaller contractors?

A.—In all likelihood they will not. Q.—Is land on beets be sown?

A.—The first part of May should be latest.

Q.—Is clover sod good to sow in? A.—Land well to be sow upon clover sod, fresh ploughed. Manuring should be done in the same crop. Fall ploughing and surface cultivation should precede sowing.

Q.—Do you recommend sowing on level or in drills?

A.—Entirely on the level.

Q.—How close together should the rows be sown?

A.—About 16 or 18 inches.

Q.—Would they need cultivation before thinning?

A.—Yes.

Q.—How close should they be thinned?

A.—About seven inches.

This answer was taken exception to by one of the men who had taken part in the local experiments, who thought seven inches too great.

Q.—What is your opinion of transplanting?

A.—Under ordinary circumstances it is not worth the trouble.

Q.—After the beets are grown, you recommend surface cultivation before the hoes are used?

A.—Not to be recommended, and is preferable to wait until after the beets are of a number and long enough to thin out.

Q.—What kind of fodd does the pulp make for cattle?

A.—In future this will be an important question. In some cases it is held and sold for forage.

Again it was stated by a friend that the farmer stand to lose nothing by taking contracts.

Mr. Elliott then spoke briefly and informal tone. He thought that for an Ontario farmer to spend cash for less than $30.00 and 15 second in the hundred the majority of the meeting thought the contract was favorable. Mr. Brown then told the people that contracts would go among the tropic sparely and asked that the farmers give the matter their serious thought.

This closed the business of the afternoon and the meeting then broke up.

ROSS MEMORIAL HOSPITAL

Change in the Rules Governing Visits to Patients.

A meeting of the Board of Governors of the Ross Memorial Hospital was held lately. The hours for visiting public ward patients have been changed. On Tuesday and Thursday of each week the hours have been changed from 2 to 4 o'clock to 3 to 4 o'clock, and on Friday from 2 to 4 o'clock and on Sunday from 3 to 4 o'clock.

The staff of town physicians will visit the hospital in the following order: Drs. Bergin, Ferguson, Peck, Wilson, McIlquhe, Jeffers, Simpson, Allan, Gillespie, Clarke, Bruce, Ard, White, Shier and Collison. Dr. Peck has been appointed Pathologist. Dr. Harvey has served for two weeks and Dr. Herrington started on the 7th, and will be in attendance until the 20th. We understand twelve patients are now in the Hospital for treatment.

She Has Appendicitis.

Miss Aileen McGrath, the eight-year old daughter of Mr. John McGrath was taken this week to the Ross Memorial Hospital for treatment for appendicitis. Drs. Wilson, Collison and Blanchard are attending. It is hoped that within a fortnight an operation will be necessary.

Railway Notes.

—In the six months from July 1st to Dec 1st the International Railway earnings show a gain of $20,000 over the corresponding period of last year.

—A unique incident occurred on the C.P.R. Wednesday morning. The engine of the morning train left the place Ottawa at 8.45 sharp, pulled out of the station and made the junction and ran "light" as far Navan. It was then found that the engineer noticed for the first time that he had left his train behind him.

Hockey Notes

—The hockey meeting last night at Doyle's restaurant turned out a flank. The players were pretty well represented but the town boys were in a minority. Objections were as to the officers. Some few days ago the bankers elected their officers and still want to retain them, which is most satisfactory to the town boys. However the bankers are willing to make some concessions providing the town boys will call another meeting and have another election of officers in their behalf. This was agreed upon. The meeting will be held on Monday night at 8 o'clock in the Benson house parlors. Every hockey enthusiast is requested to be on hand.

A Pleasing Entertainment

The McDonald Male Quartette, who appeared in the Academy of Music on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A., deserved a much larger house than they received. The poor attendance may be accounted for in part by the lack of advertising and the extremely cold weather, which prevented many from venturing out. The quartette numbers were excellent. Encores were cheerfully given and very freely given. Mr. McDonald, the leader and basso, is a fine vocalist, and he has an easy audience to need any commendation. He was in excellent voice, and his readings were very entertaining. Mr. DeKoff, the baritone, has a lovely voice and knows how to use it to the best advantage. Mr. Brown, the tenor, and Mr. Brown, second tenor, possess voices of exceptional compass and sweetness, which blend very nicely with the other voices of the quartette. Mrs. McDonald, the pianist, is a very talented musician.

Binder Twine Will be Cheaper.

The Curdage Trade Journal says that extensive experiments carried on by the Dering and McCormick Harvesting Companies indicate that the day is at hand when binder twine will be successfully manufactured out of flax straw. A number of carloads of binder twine made from flax straw of seed flax were distributed and used in the Northwest the past harvest. Reports from the field show this twine was used indicate that it was in every way superior to sisal and as well as the twine made from hard fibre. It is even said it makes a very strong twine, stronger by test than Manilla. The crop of flax straw was laid down in Chicago for one cent a pound, which would make the finished product so much cheaper than Manila that, if of equal use, it would specify run it out of the market. The acreage devoted to flax in Manitoba and the Northwest is being doubled every year, and this new use for straw will tend to make it a popular crop in the west, and it can be grown very sure today.

AN IMPORTANT BY-LAW

To Authorize the Borrowing of $20,000 for Local Improvements.

(Peterboro Review.)

A very important by-law is to be submitted to the people on January 5th. It was introduced at Monday evening's session of the Town Council by Ald. Best, chairman of the Board of Works, and is to authorize the borrowing of $20,000 for public work and local improvements. The expediency of the work to be undertaken is a matter for every ratepayer, and a brief outline is given here to enable ratepayers to form the sense of the system on George-st. and Hunter-st. Simcoe-st. from the bridge to Stewart-st. from the bridge to Stewart-st. is in a very bad condition, the injury of sewers by the deposit of sediment, by the absence of a proper separate system of sewers or drains. The raising of the manholes in the present system of sewers is also necessary. During the last year or two, it has been noted there were very uncomfortable evidences of the need of this work, and in fact there was considerable damage done to property. The proposal is to spend $20,000 in this work.

The question of good roads is one which has always been attended by more or less agitation in Peterboro. Although much good was accomplished during the last two summers, it is to be hoped that one object of the by-law will be to bring about a vast and sustained improvement in this very important department of municipal work. The sum of $10,000 is to be spent on putting down a more permanent system in some portions of the town than has hitherto been done.

The sum of $5,000 is to be spent on sewer rebuilding and repair of bridges.

A Valid Excuse.

Employer—"Late again, John! Don't you manage to get here in time?"

Employee—"I can't sleep o'nights, sir, and am apt to be late in the morning."

"Hm, sleeplessness. Why don't you consult a doctor and find out the cause?"

"I know the cause, sir; it is six feet long and two wide."

Make Your Christmas Purchases Early.

The signs are good for Christmas trade and the wises buyer is a premium bid purchases over at long period in order to avoid a rush. With many of course, this is not possible and then most necessarily be a rush at the last. But there are many who can at least buy for a few well in advance and thus will get the pick and help the others, and incidentally, by time by the time for rock. As was said in these columns last week, a good deal of the comfort of others, the hard-worked salesgirls and clerks, the employers will suggest the needs for early shopping and buying and who have the opportunity. The rush in the second, one can be made less annoyed and easy a poor, tired employee several extra degrees of the best be taken or the old proverb, "Bear and forbear." Be considerate of others, especially the workers in stores who are rushed to death, should make all who can do so early.

The Duties of Policemen.

Peterboro Examiner: The Town Council did well at its last meeting in the action regarding the undeniable assembly of young ruffians at street corners, who indulge in profane, profane language and foul talk to the discomfort of citizens. As a result a policeman was actually seen on far from the police station as the corner of Hunter and George sts. and a disappearance of the nuisance complained of shows signs of abatement. But why should it be necessary to have the Council call upon the policemen to do their duties? Some arrangement should be made whereby the strength of the police force's activity should be enlarged. This is something that is not expected to do than answer the telephone at the station and "Order in the Court." Some of the aldermen would take some interest in their duties but aldermen would be kept more on the move and consequently keep undesirable characters moving on the move. We are inclined to get into ruts and to be thinking of economically. No doubt policemen would welcome more encouragement from the public which would give greater variety to their work.

The Deliverator for January.

Among the noticeable features of The Deliverator for January is its new and more first class material that will continue throughout the year. The scope of the magazine has been materially widened and the new material material has been introduced into all the departments. Clara E. Laughlin begins a series of papers entitled "Mindy" in which she considers the problems and perquisites of romanticist Cyrus Townsend Brady is represented by one of his famous bishop stories. Interest is attracted to Mrs. Harr's power of love story. Thyra Varrick, and the novel dealing about Southern life in Illinois of the Past and Present Ella Burr Evans interestingly describes two famous colonial houses. Mabel Osgood Wright and Charles G. John H. Barry writes on the Stage as a Career for Women, and the article is strikingly illustrated. Mr. Frank French gives the second and part of his entertaining Reminiscences of New England Life. Track Athletics for Women by Christine Terhune Herrick presents some novel features of life in which women are interested. Mrs. Thomas W. Hyney discusses Child Health, a subject concerning which she is specially qualified to write. The Fashions are presented in their usual attractive and timely form, and Pathology display in the style is illustrated. Two Bits for Two Bits, Life, Care and Dressing, should claim the attention of every reader. The Editor then there appears the first of the "Want Hurryed Then" Stories, by Grace Mortlemyl Cooke, and the usual portrait, a natural history sketch, etc. The pages of illustrated cookery prepare a delicate novelty in a Chinese dinner, Mrs. Margaret Hall begins in this number a series of Practical Talks to Young Housekeepers, and the Departments of Fashion and general degree of interest and excellence.

CONCRETE FLOORS AND WALLS

AN INTERESTING ADDRESS BY MR. T. C. RAYNOR ROSE HALL, ONT.

Read Before a Farmers' Institute Meeting at St. Johns N. B.—As to Barn Building.

Concrete flooring is a synonym of an address given by T. G. Raynor, Rose Hall, Ont., before the St. John, N.B., Farmers' Institute.

Whenever a farmer is building new barns, or changing his stables, the question of the use of concrete for floors and walls is a live one.

In a country where lumber is comparatively cheap, it is not a duty to come into general use for making walls of barns, but for flooring it is a strong and durable, and cheap cost substance that can be employed, its first great quality is its durability. Properly put down it is practically indestructible. Then it is water tight, and will last for years, and is not liable to injure the animals, and this in farm practice today is a most important matter. Lastly 50 per cent. of the fertilizing value of the manure is in the liquid portion. By having concrete floors and using plenty of bedding the value can all be saved and put on the land where it will do the most good.

Material is a matter of close general or pure sand and cement. There are several kinds of cement. In Ontario they have natural rock cement, which is manufactured at Queenston and Thorold, and this, while not so strong as the Portland cement, is cheaper and does very well. In some sections the Portland cement will be the best to use.

Laying concrete floors does not require skill, but it does require a farmer cannot supply. First make a level surface, then lay down some two-inch lumber preferred. Then a two-inch plank bottom should be made in which to mix the gravel and cement. Place the gravel in a heap, and a size can to accurately measure the quantity of sand, and the cement are then put into this box in the proper proportions, and the cakes of, and the mixing of cement and gravel or sand thoroughly done with a spade. It should be sprinkled over twice all any rate, while it is dry, and sufficient water be added, then before applying the water the two sides of the box, then mixing the mixture in the form of a ring, making a hollow for the water to the floor, into this water should be added the rest of the gravel and cement turned from the outside to the ring to the centre. This will be called out again from the centre, and more water added until the mixture becomes of the consistency of thick porridge. The proportions in which gravel and cement can be used depend somewhat on the strength of the cement. With good Portland cement, one part of cement to six or seven of gravel could be used. The lower parts of the floor, but this should be covered with a veneer of one part of cement to two of clean sand. If an extra fine, hard finish is desired, use equal parts of cement and sand.

Laying the finished stable floor is good foundations should be prepared. It should be made level, and lay the addition of gravel or small stones thoroughly pounded down. The floor should be as required for the stable. It is best to have a straight drain in the middle of the gutter. The plan of one stable which is given in the illustration is 8 feet gutter two feet wide and eight inches below the level of the floor. The gutter is first made and the cement laid in it. The gravel could be put up, and the cement put in behind the boards, and the boards left until the cement gets firm.

It is a great mistake to use much as can be conveniently trowelled, any a piece four feet square, and then go on to another. All the studding necessary in the stable should be made and placed in set on flat stones and the cement put around them. Great care should be taken when laying cement to thoroughly pound it down. When the floor is finished it should be sprinkled with water, especially if the weather is dry, but should be done each day for a month. It will probably take from a month to six weeks for a floor to harden. Cement should be used when it is wet, and it will not become thoroughly hard for six or seven months after being put in. Large stones cap and should be used in the construction of a concrete wall, if possible, care taken to see that they are covered with at least two inches of cement over all the stones. A concrete wall one foot thick is sufficiently strong for carry any barn. This makes a thoroughly warm and dry stable with the floor laid down. A stone crusher is an excellent matter, and from which to make concrete. A barrel of rock cement will make 55 cubic feet, of four inch floor. Good qualities of Portland cement should be more than that.

By the use of corrugated sleepers, made like railway rails, it is quite practicable to make a floor of wood which would form the veining of the gravel below. The sleepers should preferably be made of iron and laid sufficiently close to make the floor fairly solid. Such a floor prevents rigid leakage through the floor (see length.—F. W. Hodson.

Experience has shown that the most important part of the problem is the right kind of the sand or gravel and the cement. Turning over the same twice and then it is good enough. The point is to bring every grain of sand or gravel in contact with the cement. Otherwise, if there are little parts of the mass where the sand or gravel does not come in contact, when a floor is laid, the bond being imperfect, there is liability to develop holes. Thorough dry mixing is most important.

Public Library Notes

The circulation of the Public Library have increased since March 1898, when the Library became full, from 2,414 to 3,848. This is an increase in less than four years of over 1400 volumes. For the four years previous to the opening of the Library the circulation was not much more than 900. From 1899 to date some 200 volumes have been donated to the Library by various friends, societies, governments and other sources. During the year the Public Library has had to refuse 1,200 applications for volumes, unless this would have been glaidly granted, on account of its already overcrowded shelves.

"The growth of the Library movement can be continued only if supplied by the following paragraph from an article by Dr. Hamilton, Librarian of Congress: The recorded cost of having 1000 volumes or over now number 3300, as against 600 in 1895, and but 2000 in 1876. They now contain more than one book for every two inhabitants of the United States, and many times that number for every inhabitant actively using them. In 1876 Day contained but 12,000,000 books for 44,000,000 people. They now issue to their readers for home use each year 48,000,000 volumes, as against 12,000,000 in 1876.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19

THE GAS CO'S. CONTRACT.

SOLICITOR HOPKINS THINKS THE TOWN IS FULLY PROTECTED.

Council Committees Met Saturday Evening and Transacted Considerable Business

Our town fathers met in committees Saturday evening in the Clerk's office. Town Solicitor Hopkins was in attendance.

Police and Lighting Matters.

Ald. McDonald called the special attention to an application for a gas lamp at the corner of Henry and Adelaide streets. The clerk and Messrs Burrows and Rosson the request was referred to the incoming Council.

The following accounts were considered and passed:

M. Adams, special constable...$ 1.00
A. Joyce, special constable... 1.00
D. Stevenson, special constable... 1.50
Geo Foster, special constable... 1.50
Wm Nelson, special constable... 1.50
Hugh Ross & Ferguson... 4.04

A letter from Magistrate Steers pointing out that defects in certain lamps in Victoria Ward, were due to other causes than circumstances frequently warranted—Referred to incoming Council.

Water Rate Collection Accounts for October and November were read, and on Chairman McDiarmid enquired of Town Solicitor Hopkins whether he was taking in connection with the non-payment of water rates, Mr. Hopkins said he had notified the Company that he 1900 was in arrears and unless he received an order making which the Council would take steps to have the water shut. Next day he had received an order from the Council to the local manager, enclosing one from President Burgess stating in effect that he was just completed his arrangements for the water rent, which would place the arrears in the clear.

Ald McDonald—That's about the 1000 time he has promised that!

Solicitor Hopkins—Do you think the street lamps are of 150 candle power, as a rule? I noticed they burned for 15 years, and I don't think we should accept less than 150 candle power with the agreement—long are not as good as what was in the old lamps, they burned good mantles, and we all know the lamps we find gave better light than the new lamps.

Ald McDonald—How do you propose to find out whether they do or not?

Solicitor Hopkins—Get an expert to test them; I think we have a capable man in town—Mr. Stevens.

Ald McDonald—Where in the contract is there a clause giving the town the right to tap their mains for the purpose of a test?

Solicitor Hopkins—Because I am absolute agreement to supply street lights of 150 candle power.

Ald McDonald—How can we secure an expert to work on wires the Company is willing to give its men its pay?

In reply Solicitor Hopkins read clause, setting forth the Company's duty to furnish a certificate from a government engineer as to the candle power of the light Mr Hopkins mentioned, was that the sense of the agreement was that lights of 150 candle power must be furnished. The clause was quoted by Clause 1 How would he get the light tested? Up to date we have not been asked to test, and I was very objected to by Mr Kerr on behalf of another proposition of a gas company, and that clause of mine was referred to have inserted in the proposed Electric Light Contract. It was a competitive clause, as if the Council wished to have it tested in the courts he had no fear of the result.

Ald Burrows—But Mr Stevens won't can be accepted as an expert under the conditions of the contract?

Solicitor Hopkins—I don't think the company will claim that the light, stripped of reflectors are 150 C. P. Only a man who knew we can make a 16 C.P. electric light and, by a simple device, put it 150 C.P. for a test on a particular point, yet the light is only 16 C.P. and is what is paid for?

Ald McDonald—It was stated here in committee last Saturday evening that before the contract was signed by Council the understanding was that we had the option of having the light tested by Prof. Long, Toronto University, when desired. The contract says, "Shall be approved by and be found to accept the order, billcate of a government inspector, in this case Mr J. K. Johnson, Toronto.

Manager Smith—Mr. Johnson is a Belleville man.

Ald Jackson—He is not the Dominion Government inspector?

Solicitor Hopkins—I can tell you this, gentlemen, we are entitled under the contract to lamps of 150 candle power, and I wouldn't pay a cent more for 150 candle power until we get them. That is the way to force matters.

Ald. O'Reilly—Then the company has failed to place new lamps with us, in the time specified.

Ald McDonald—There is just time—I think we have the lamps on the ship and can cancel the contract. In the light that we want to put up with for 15 years if increased by the candle power specified in the contract, will it then be satisfactory?

Ald Burrows—Thats the way that Council has acted in regards all industries; you encouraged the Gas Co., to come here and now, although they promise to record proper lamps in a short time you turn around and want to throw the contract.

Ald Jackson—Yes.

Ald Robson—Hasn't President Burgess promised to have more Monday and make improvements?

Ald McDonald—He has been promising that since January last.

The Solicitor said he thought if we are concerned we can cancel the contract in one month.

Ald Jackson—I don't wish to cancel unless measures of it the company will give us satisfactory assurances that in the near future they will supply 150 and 1500 c.p. lights of actual capacity. I am willing to forego heavy proceedings and grant them a reasonable time.

Solicitor Hopkins—If they will admit that the lamps are not up to contract and promise to put them in we will grant them a reasonable time, if not, we should be in a position in the courts.

Ald Robson—If the Solicitor was instructed to communicate with the company in the matter.

Solicitor Hopkins—If Burgess and Monday are in Toronto on business to see him.

Ald Burrows—We don't want any more business; the contract runs for 15 years and the company should be dealt with on a broad basis.

Solicitor Hopkins submitted Messrs Clark's report on the abstracts of the Collector's sureties. Their bonds were accepted on motion of Alderman Hore, Robson, Burrows and Mayor Hall.

Solicitor Hopkins held that the town was liable for the rent of rooms for the Referendum vote. Ald. McDonald didn't agree with that view but Council decided to pay.

The members of the Board of Health asked for more $42 each for attending 14 meetings.

The regular quarterly inspector Douglas for an increase of salary was referred to the incoming Council.

The offer of a Rochester shoe firm to locate a factory in Lindsay, on bonus 35 or 40 years, and a bonus $30,000 yearly in wages, if granted by town of $10,000 to be repaid in ten annual instalments, was laid on table for future consideration.

Ald. Burrows—We have a chance to secure a factory, and I am in favor of it. Mr. Sandford, of Kenora Paper Mills.

Ald O'Reilly—It wrote him twice, but never received a reply to one of the day. The transportation of pulpwood and goods was a still more big excuse. Everything practically in his factory or manufactured, which represents the bonus, as well as all kinds of groceries, hardware and a good deal of other stuff imported into the interior of the country, had to be taken from Lindsay by horse or oxen to and from tidewater. Teaming was the main industry in industry in all parts of the Province."

In the Report of Judge Dean he says it is stated that the sections were opened and finished from Bracebridge to Montreal in 1853; from Richmond to Perth in 1854; from Perth to Ottawa, in 1864; from Montreal to Toronto, 1856; from Toronto to Sarnia in 1858, and the original system of Provincial Government, in 1859, when the Victoria District was opened for traffic. The line from Detroit to North Bay was finished in 1885, in 1859, the Champlain road in 1863, the Belle River road in 1864 and 1865. With these additions the mileage was 1,277 miles, which remained unchanged with slight alterations until 1880. In more recent years, it absorbed the Great Western Railway, the Northern Railway, the Toronto & Nipissing, Bruce, the Toronto & Nipissing the Midland, and other lines. The total mileage of the system is now 4,128 miles.

Some of these had originally been built with the narrow gauge of three and a half feet. The variety of gauges was one of the curiosities of early railway history in the Province and. The original gauge of the Grand Trunk had several times been five and a half feet. There was a "battle of the gauges" in which Toronto resulted in the universal adoption of the five foot gauge, and of four feet eight and one-half inches.

An Advertising Pointer.

Merchants often deplore, and with justice, the tendency of their customers people to put off their holiday shopping until the last week before Christmas or at most, they can only climb over each other in a grand rush for what they want. And yet the dealer himself is responsible for the blame, for many of them leave the big catchy, persuasive advertisements to the last, thus crowding right along calling attention to holiday bargains, and at the same time arguing early buyers to secure complete assortments and avoid the rush, enough people would respond to lessen perceptibly the familiar annoyance of the holiday scramble, and to supply themselves in ample time with goods they needed for the anticipated holidays.

PROFIT

The matter of feed is of tremendous importance to the farmer. Wrong feeding is profit loss. Right feeding is profit.

The up-to-date farmer knows what to feed his cows to get the most milk, his pigs to get the most pork, his hens to get the most eggs. Science.

But how about the children? Are they fed according to science, a bone food of bones, flesh and muscle food if they are thin and weak and a blood food if there is anemia?

Scott's Emulsion is a mixed food; the Cod Liver Oil in it makes flesh, blood and muscle, the Lime and Soda make bone and brain. It is the standard scientific food for delicate children.

SUGAR BEETS IN CALIFORNIA

Some Phenomenal Yields

Rev G. W. Mills, who is known to many of our readers, is now a resident of Southern California, and last week we received from him a copy of the Hacienda (Venture Co.) Herald, containing the following item:

As the best harvest draws to a close each year, The Herald usually has an account of some one of our farmers big sugar beet yields, and this season we present the following figures kindly furnished us by Mr. T. S. McFarland, who is farming on the Rancho Santa Fe, town of, a tract of land comprising 35 acres in beets, which yielded an average of 24 1-2 tons to the acre, a piece of 8 acres certainly remarkable, yielded 35 tons net to the acre, carrying 14 1-2 per cent sugar. The other four acres harvested produced 41 tons net to the acre, at 14 1-2 per cent sugar content; at the factory rate paid of $4.50 per ton, this is $174 an acre. These figures are accurate, as the return proceeds by Mr. McFarland will great.—Ex.

EARLY DAYS ON THE C. G. R.

Successive Steps in the Building Up of a Great Railway

In connection with the announcement of the decision of the managers of the Grand Trunk to build a line to the Pacific ocean, it is recalled that it is fifty years since the original Grand Trunk Railway was granted by the legislature of old Canada. At that time but little railroad building had been done in Canada and the stage coach was the common mode of travelling in this country. Hon. Joseph Cauchon, then Minister and Public Life in Canada, says:

"The old-fashioned stage coach, still the chief mode of travel, the year changed to January 1, 1853, generally carried Her Majesty's mails, and its arrival was eagerly waited in the villages through which it passed, where everybody was up early the day. The transportation of passengers and goods was a still more tedious process. Everything produced in the farms or manufactured, which required to be conveyed to market, as all kinds of groceries, hardware and goods of every description imported into the interior of the country, had to be taken from Lindsay by horse or oxen to and from tidewater. Teaming was the main industry in industry in all parts of the Province."

In the Report of Judge Dean he says it is stated that the sections were opened and finished from Montreal to Montreal in 1853; from Richmond to Perth in 1854; from Perth to Ottawa, in 1864; from Montreal to Toronto, 1856; from Toronto to Sarnia in 1858, and the original system of Provincial Government, in 1859, when the Victoria District was opened for traffic. A RECORD CHEESE SEASON.

Over Five Million Pounds Sold on Peterborough Board.

The most profitable season in the history of Peterboro Cheese Board is that which has just closed. Mr. Geo. S. Fitzgerald, buyer for Hodgins, Gilmour & Montreal, gives outline the figures showing that the number of boxes shipped from the Board was 66,283, representing 5,123,894 pounds, or $777,151.50. Mr. Fitzgerald states that he shipped during the season 18,400 boxes or 1,420,000 pounds representing $164,810.30. Other buyers were sold to the trade from 800 to 1000 boxes. The sales of cheese for the year are over $900,000 above those of last year.

Mr. Fitzgerald has just returned from Montreal, where he was busy winding up the season's affairs with the buyers who will represent next year.—Review.

CAOL FOR THE INDIGENT POOR.

Peterboro Grand Jurors Refer in Sarcastic Terms to a Popular Custom.

The following extract from the presentment of the Grand Jury at Peterboro County Court deserves to be made a subject or pulpit comment.

Then we find another class of inmates who are in good not because of their evil deeds, but they have not the wherewithal to pay for better entertainment. In a word they are Caol, or Indigent Poor. The Grand Jury, know it is a customary thing for grand juries to urge upon the authorities, residents of the county, municipality, or township, the duty of society for a House of refuge for such inmates as mentioned, but this overlasting thing from juries has no effect only for the passing moment.

We, the members of this jury, desire to go on record as saying that there is not on the Statutes an act compelling municipalities to provide or maintain suitable places for the old and feeble, they may be left to shift for themselves.

Our Statutes provide for "Caol" have always with you; "Yes," we answer, "we have, and we will stick to them in the just Victorian way, we have no business to be poor, and if we do not like our surroundings, our surroundings in a fine, large house, Gaol, Gaol, Gaol, let them go there." We sincerely trust that this class of things may soon cease to exist.

MACBETH AT THE ACADEMY.

A Creditable Performance Witnessed by a Fairly Large Audience.

Shakespeare's play, "Macbeth," largely to a fair audience in the gallery was filled, but downstairs the attendance was a little slim. Macbeth, like many other Shakespearean plays, was full of tragedy, but nevertheless to those who have read the book it was very interesting and pleasing. The cast included such men as John Griffith, Warren Cassidy, and Charles Ralph, and twelve thirteen other actors. The first two have established a reputation in Lindsay as fine actors. John Griffith being leading man in Forest and Mr. Cushon in "Diadia." The play last evening was put on in the usual Mr. Griffith fashion, part of Macbeth, the murderer of King Duncan, the Scotish King, and Mr Conlon as Macduff, whose family Macbeth had slain. Mrs Macbeth, Louise Ripley as Lady Macbeth, the witch scene was very amusing, and so to kill the king, and Mr. Chas. Harvey as the King Duncan, was thoroughly well. The other members of the cast were all good, and the scenes were interesting scenes. The scenery was striking, and the electrical effects good.

The Weekly Post,
LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19.

BREEZY LOCAL BREVITIES.

GATHERED BY POST REPORTERS.

What is Happening in Town and the Country About Us.

—The town of Orillia is now drawing $1,000 per day from the Government for electric current developed at Rugged Rapids and supplied to the asylum.

—The Bathburn Co. received a carload of hard coal Saturday morning. The good news spread widely, and before six o'clock every pound was disposed of.

—Orillia Council has won in the first round of the suit entered by Mr. Patterson, contractor for the electric power plant, who is trying to collect a large sum for alleged "extras."

—Mr. Fremont Crandell left Monday for Winnipeg to dispose of some land in Alberta, purchased by him last spring at $5 per acre. Last week he received by mail an offer of $15 per acre for the same. Who says there isn't money in North-west lands?

—Sub. Independent: The death of Senator John O'Donohoe recalls the fact that he contested East Peterboro in 1872 with Francis Scott of Keene, and was defeated. The Senator was at that time a young speaker and a very active politician.

—On Sunday afternoon Mr. Herb. Brown of Fleetwood, was driving into town, and when near Cunningham's Corners, Ont., his team took fright at a dog and ran away, throwing the occupant out. The horses were brought to a standstill after running over a mile. The harness and cutter were badly wrecked.

—Peterboro Examiner: Lindsay Council instead of cumbering the civic statutes with perfunctory by-laws, would insist on something like an attempt at enforcement of existing by-laws, they would be serving the public interests.....The citizens of Kinloss may well sing amen to that sentiment.

—Kingston Whig: Every city should have a committee whose function it is to search out the poor children and see that Santa Claus remembers them. It doesn't take much to satisfy some little hearts.....We fancy that there in Lindsay, by the time the various church and Sabbath School Christmas entertainments have been held, very few children will have missed receiving gifts. Yet there may be some children in the house by illness, and it would be a kindly act if citizens would devote a little thought and trouble to the discovery of such cases. Perhaps any of the ladies connected with church organizations will remember little sufferers a visit from Santa Claus.

The Christmas Dinner.

In spite of the fact that the word "dyspepsia" means literally "bad cook," it will not be fair for many to lay the blame on the cook if they begin the Christmas Dinner with little appetite and end it with dizzies or nausea. It may not be fair for any to do that—let us hope so for the sake of the cook! The disease dyspepsia indicates a bad stomach, that is a weak stomach; rather than a bad cook, and for a weak stomach there is nothing else equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla. It gives the stomach vigor and tone, cures dyspepsia, creates appetite, and makes eating the pleasure it should be.

Harvey looks well, and like the majority of Lindsay boys abroad, is prospering. He holds the position of city agent for the New York Life Insurance Co. of Toronto.

—Mr. Wm. Thurston, of Bobcaygeon, was in town lately, and made The Post a friendly call. He was returning from Guelph, where he had been attending the Winter Fat Stock Show. Mr. Thurston says the attendance this year was the largest in the history of the show; the gate receipts amounting to over $300 more than last year.

A LINDSAY ACTUAL RESULT.

Policy No. 5,946; Name, J. Neelands; Date, Aug. 20, 1867; Plan, Life; Amt. $500; Premium, $10.60.

The following local example of the benefit of insurance in the Canada Life Co will make interesting reading.

Lindsay, December 9th, 1902.

W. B. Wisdom, Lindsay:

Dear Sir,—I have pleasure in testifying to the statement regarding one of my policies (No. 5946) in the Canada Life Assurance Co. I took out this policy in the year 1867 upon the straight life system, but allowing my profits to go to permanently reduce my payments. At the last division of surplus in 1900 the profits allowed upon my policy exceeded the amount of my premium and the company have been paying me the difference in cash each year since that time. This payment, I understand, cannot be reduced but may be increased at each future division of profits. I find I have paid the Company since the policy was issued the sum of $296.60 all told, and the policy is now fully paid up for $500.00, and bearing profits as long as I live.

I need scarcely say that I consider this result eminently satisfactory, and I shall have no hesitation in recommending the Canada Life.

Yours truly,

J. NEELANDS.

VICTORIA COUNTY COURT

AND GENERAL SESSION OF THE PEACE.

Three Criminal, Two Civil Cases, Dealt With—The Grand Jury Presentment.

Below we give a report of the cases dealt with at the County Court, which opened last Tuesday before His Honor Judge Dean.

The following gentlemen comprised the Grand Jury: Messrs. Geo. A. McQuade, Omemee, foreman; J. Armour, Victoria Road; Thos. Graham, Fenelon Falls; Alex. Horn, Lindsay; Myles Haygarth, Bolsover; Henry Hobden, Minden; Jas. S. Jordan, Woodville; Jas. Kilbourn, Lindsay; Maunder, Omemee; Wm. Reid and David S. Reid, Reabourn; and Jas. Thurston, Fenelon Falls.

Civil Cases.

Gray vs. McCron—This was a cause in which plaintiff sued defendant for damages for negligence on the part of one of his workmen while touring machine from lot 4 to 5 north. It exploded, causing serious injuries to plaintiff. The judge submitted a number of questions to the jury, as is customary in cases of a kind. The effect of these answers on the verdict of jury will be intimated by the Judge. Stewart & O'Connor, counsel for plaintiff; Bethune, Bethune & Peel for defendant.

Hemsley vs McKendrick—This was a case from Digby township, in which plaintiff claimed $200 damages for having been stopped from taking timber off certain lands he purchased from one of the defendants, the wife of the husband of one of defendants and the father of the defendant. The charge was one of collusion. It seems one of the parties had sold land belonging to his wife and two sons. There were four defendants in this case; and at the time of going to press it was not settled. Stewart & O'Connor for plaintiff, Bush O'Leary, K. C., and Wm. Steers for defendants.

Criminal Cases.

King vs. Jas. Sissom, alias Jas. Armour—Prisoner was defended by counsel; Mr. McSweyn elected to be tried by the judge, a date to be fixed by His Honor Judge Dean.

King vs. Jas. Sissom—This was a case in which defendant was charged with keeping a public gambling house. He was found guilty, and as he pleaded guilty to the law in future he was let off on suspended sentence. Mr. J. V. O'Connor appeared on behalf of defendant, and Mr. A. Ross for the prosecution.

King vs. Osborne—This was a case from Haliburton County. The defendant was charged with taking logs, poles, stakes and other property belonging to Mr. Thompson of Bobcaygeon, at Lochlin. The evidence was not sufficient to convict, so he was acquitted. McLaughlin & Peel for defendant; A. B. Devlin for the prosecution.

Grand Jury Presentment.

May it Please Your Honor,—The Grand Jury of our Sovereign Lord the King, assembled at the General Sessions of the Peace of the County of Victoria, begleave to draw the attention of the Legislature to the following:

They desire to thank your Honor for the discussion of the Liquor Act, 1902, and of the lessons to be drawn from the recent vote of the electors of the Province on the question of the Act being brought into force. As we now well know, the power of the Legislature to restrict the traffic in intoxicating liquors is limited, and yet it is sufficient to permit of the trade being greatly curtailed.

While the Grand Jurors are not prepared to say that the prohibition of the practice of treating, while the bar may be retained, is the only course that should be adopted in that end, they have no hesitation in saying that it would be an intolerable boon to the people of this Province to be relieved from a social habit that has brought very many men to a condition in which they are apparently helpless to extort free themselves from the hard and tyranny of their professed friends or find a way by which they can do, unmolested, the business of the same enslaving practice upon their fellows.

They would express the opinion that a reduction in the hours of the Lindsay-st. and Kent-st. crossings of the tracks of the Grand Trunk Railway, at both of which the public are exposed to great risks. There is a large volume of vehicular traffic over the Lindsay-st. crossing where many trains are moved and marshunting done, while the busy grade at Victoria-ave. and the obstruction of sight by the Grand Trunk Railway station on the siding at the west, causes great risk from trains going northward where the sidetrack of steam necessary to overcome the ascent in their opinion the greatest danger against all the crossings are imminent.

It has been the privilege of the Grand Jurors on attendance at this Court to make the first official visit to the Boys Memorial Hospital. We find it difficult to fittingly express their appreciation of the great necessity of the donor in providing such a splendid institution in our benefit of the people of the County of Victoria. There are already four very patients in the institution. The nursing proof of the need of its existence. The Grand Jurors are indebted to the Lady Superintendent for the courtesy extended them during their visit, and for the interesting information given them respecting the good work so kindly and readily given by her.

They have visited the House of Refuge, and have found the inmates, men and three women. The work carried on by the Board of Refuge is worthy of all praise, but it can not be denied that the care of the destitute in this County can be permanently provided for in that institution, and the Grand Jurors are convinced that an imperative duty rests upon the County Council to provide a House of Refuge.

The gaol has been examined and the building and premises are in the cleanest condition we have found in gaol. There are six males, two of whom are undergoing sentence for vagrancy; one is undergoing sentence for a conviction for stealing goods on false pretences, one is awaiting trial for burglary and one for theft, and one is confined for lunacy. There is one woman held for insanity.

They have visited the Collegiate Institute, and have had much pleasure in meeting the learned Principal and staff and meeting the students, but would express the view that it would be of the Institution calling for inspection by the Grand Jurors, if they would, therefore, they would suggest that in future the Grand Jury be relieved of this duty which precedent has laid upon them.

The officials of the Court have been most attentive and helpful to the Grand Jury in the discharge of their duties.

Geo. A. McQuade, Foreman.

Miss Winters' Song Recital.

Miss Mabel B. Winters gave a most enjoyable private song recital to about 150 of her friends in the Connaught last week. The stage was most tastefully decorated, and a fine Newcombe piano was supplied by the manufacturers for the occasion. Miss Winters rendered eight choice selections—"Irish Folk Song," Poetic; "O Dry Those Tears," Del Riego; "Violets," Ellen Wright; "Thou'rt Like a Gentle Flower," Liszt; "At Parting," Rodgers; "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," Saint-Saens; and "La Serenata," Braga. All were thoroughly fitted to give those present an idea of the compass and sweetness of her well-trained voice. Miss Cora Wallace gave two readings, which were well received, and Miss Cairns two violin solos, which were cleverly executed. Mr. Hamilton, organist of the Presbyterian church, gave a number of selections on the organ and accompanied the artists's accompaniments in a manner demonstrated his mastery of the instrument.

HIS THUMB TORN OFF.

Well-known Citizen of Kinmount Painfully Injured.

While Mr. Geo. Dunbar, of Kinmount, formerly proprietor of the Dettaun house in that village, was working with a block and tackle the other day his thumb got caught in the chain as power was applied. Before he could be released the thumb had been torn off, the ligaments being pulled away with it. Dr. Frost was summoned to attend the injured man, and hopes to save the hand.

THE DEER HUNTING SEASON.

Detective Greer Says It Ought to be Made Two Weeks Later.

The impossibility of having the open season for deer arranged to meet the individual views of every hunter keeps up the controversy. Sportsmen from all parts of the Province have expressed the belief that it would be wise to have the season two or three weeks later than it is at present, as the weather is very generally so warm that many deer killed the first two or three days were never brought out, the meat going bad. This view of the matter is now further strengthened by the reports of Provincial Detective Greer says that the open season ought to be made two weeks later, and run from November 15 to November 30. He also says that all the deer shot during the first few days this year, spoiled, and were never brought out. Lots of hunters, he says, killed four deer this season, the two they had killed first having gone bad, and the law allowing them to bring out two. One objection to making the season late is that the deer are more easily killed later in the fall as they stick to the runways and. Mr. Greer proposes that this by limiting the deer to be shot to one per man. "One deer is all any man wants, anyway," he said.

Chief Game Warden Tinsley, on the other hand, says there are many requests to have the season earlier. Last year, he stated, the weather became so stormy and rough in the woods that the hunters could not leave for days of the season. "So what are you going to do about it?" asked Mr. Tinsley.

GOOD ROADS TALK.

Fine Address by Provincial Commissioner Campbell.

LINDSAY RATEPAYERS LISTEN TO COMMON-SENSE FACTS.

Common Macadam Roads the Kind for Lindsay in Order to Make Use of Existing Facilities.

That the more thoughtful of our citizens are alive to the importance of the good roads question was made plain last Monday when about 150 representative taxpayers assembled in the Council Chamber to listen to an address by Mr. A. W. Campbell Provincial Road Commissioner and Assistant Minister of Public Works, who was present in response to an invitation forwarded by our Town Council. Mr. Campbell arrived on the morning train and devoted the interval to an inspection of the streets and the acquiring of information concerning the proposed new Court House building and granolithic walk construction since the date of his last visit.

The meeting opened about 8.30 Mayor Ingle presided and introduced the speaker, who was received with applause.

THE ADDRESS.

Mr Campbell said—A very pleasing, fluent and earnest speaker, and has the faculty of being able to quickly impress his hearers with the convictions that he has arrived at throughout what he is talking about. In opening he expressed his pleasure at again receiving a request from Lindsay Council, after a lapse of six years, to revisit the town and address a street meeting on the subject of street improvement. He said he wished he had been in the town a couple of times, but had had a fair enough opportunity until to-day to note any improvements that could be a result of his former suggestions.

Continuing, Mr. Campbell said, When I received, a few weeks ago, an invitation to come here I heard and read accepting; but I didn't hear that any of the other gentlemen had been carried out. I thought that perhaps it might be able to do some good by filling one of my other numerous engagements elsewhere, where the public seem to be more palate. When a second invitation arrived, however, I made up my mind to do it, in my duty to go wherever I am wanted and give the benefit of my experience—practically a lifetime—and tell you what I have found and seen in charge of your streets. These things have stuck me forcibly, and I am merely repeating my words, but perhaps they will sink on you and send so produce results. If your Council should be called on to note it down, my responsibility is at an end; if you carry into the grave then it is my duty to come here—if you want me—and lay out a plan to insure you the benefit of money to the very best advantage.

Progress of roads in Ontario.

While it may seem discouraging to some, to think that we have not yet passed without much progress having been made in road building, it is well that it should be all to realize that you have really been making no great advance for the last 25 or 30 years ago, when (last addressed a meeting) there were but a country walks, and in view of the increasing cost of roads and the decreasing ability of that material, I urged you to lay down a system on the advantage of cement over wood. Now, Toronto alone has spent in a long time mileage of good walks as can be found in any city or town in Ontario in that way. Again, six years ago I urged the adoption of tile drains, you had a very imperfect drainage system. I urged the adoption of tile because in order to have good roads and good crops it is necessary to have before the surfacing of the streets be undertaken. You now have about 11-12 miles of tile drains.

In your newspapers I noticed some discussion relative to Kent-st. West. It would have been a mistake to propose a 33 foot macadamized road on street before the sewer was laid. The street was in a very bad condition to receive attention, and there should be a proper drainage to go ahead with the improvement of those roads in the most business-like way—the only right way.

Making the roads.

There seems to be a great difference of opinion as to the kind of roads to be following in making a street good. It is a question that is puzzling an audience. My answer is, "How should a house be constructed?" Many considerations are involved that it is almost impossible to enumerate them. For what purpose is the house required? It must be planned everything in view. Then the specifications carefully, provide good material, and what is a good foreman or overseer to see that the specifications are carried out to the letter. The house must be planned according to the location, and high ground there need be little worry about drainage. If you want to have a good spot the first thing you should think of is the proper drainage, and the foundation—the drainage must be perfect. West Lindsay—Kent-st. West—is the thing of the importance of that road.

How should streets be made? With the same care that you display in arranging for the erection of the foundations of the fine residences and magnificent public buildings you are erecting here. Consider the character of the soil, the frequencies of the traffic, etc., include a system in the work, and construct closely the streets according to the traffic to which they are exposed.

Pavement Materials

Now there are various pavement materials competing for popular favor, and I have noticed by reports in your papers that the Lindsay Town Council is considering the question. Asphalt costs $2.50 a square yard, it is a very substantial pavement designed for certain classes of streets. Vitrified brick is classed as second to asphalt; when laid on a concrete foundation it is very durable where asphalt would not stand, and costs about $2 a square yard. Then we have macadam—crushed stone laid down in layers in a systematic way, the large stones at the bottom, varying to dust on the top; each layer being properly rolled. This is much more than any other material, at a cost ranging from 50c. to 75c. per yard, or about one-fifth the cost of asphalt. To make it waterproof and render it absolutely waterproof it is treated with certain processes and becomes known as tar macadam or bituminous macadam. Then we have pavement macadam—broken stone laid to a certain depth and a certain width. It can be placed on any of the very heaviest traffic, or for lighter wear. It will be for you to consider these materials in the light of your requirements. Asphalt is used in cities our streets where there is a great deal of traffic, as it has the property of being most durable where traffic is heaviest; it is disintegrated rapidly unless in constant use. It is expensive, but where the traffic warrants it is the most economical in the end. To lay asphalt in Lindsay would be and in addition to the first cost an expensive repair gang would be needed. Vitrified brick makes a very substantial and useful pavement, and could be used in Lindsay to perfect advantage, but the requisite quality of the traffic do not demand such an expensive method. Tar macadam if used extensively on country roads, where the material can be secured cheaply it would make as good a road as any other, but in any other material, but in Lindsay the conditions were not favorable. I asked to recommend a system for Lindsay I would say macadam—broken stone roadways. The class of stone, the depth, and width to be adjustment of the system, were matters for the citizens to discuss and settle. Kent-st.—the main thoroughfare—roughfare—a strong and durable pavement is necessary. In the last few years of expenditure is there in the form of a foundation that would carry the immense traffic to and from the G.T.R. station, in addition to the ordinary town and country traffic? There must be no doubt of interests, and everything that tends to make it safe is antagonistic to the best interests of any town.

When the leading streets have been made good, then it will be easy for your Council

Reach the back streets.

We can't change the lines of traffic—tracks will flow along the natural channels, which are Kent, William, Doyle, Cambridge, Lindsay and King or Queen-sts., or both. The improvement of these streets can be accomplished by town workmen in the spare time at any time, and even after which another batch of streets could be undertaken. In all the streets could be made good the next ten years where a marvellous change would be wrought. The cost would not be startling. With the exception of Kent-st. a width of 24 feet would be ample for the street; meanwhile and the residential streets might be reduced to a width of 16 feet. (Applause.) Take Kent-st. a depth of six inches of stone would be ample to carry the traffic on it the old stone would be used, and made use of. Stone only is a thing to be studied.

Before undertaking extensive street improvements without a steam roller I would be very loth to do anything. I had the money to spare I would like to see the Peterboro roller for an object lesson here next year. Lacking a steam roller the making of good roads becomes very expensive and you don't want costly methods. Some simple improvements can be carried out will answer. I am prejudiced in favor of those expensive methods have been followed here in the past. Stone broken, say, 6 Six inches of rock filled in and thoroughly rolled will wear better than two feet of broken stone on a poor foundation. It is better to have a concrete the road, and if the surface is not good to put a

Cut up by narrow

Mr. Chas. Silver—"Why not save the cost of a steam roller and make good roads cheaper than by any other method?"

Mr. Campbell—"They will come in time, but will make it easy to maintain good roads; we will still have the best roads in Ontario. A 12 or 15 ton roller is what you will need. As for crowning, in the case of a Lindsay street, the crown of the road, should be 12 inches high. Keep the sides

In Perth I told the people what I would do if I was in authority. I borrowed the Brockville steam roller and made a bargain with them to be lighted with the results that they were so pleased that they purchased the roller, and they purchased one at once if possible. The same thing occurred at Smith's Falls. Carleton Place was so pleased that they to have good roads is not to letting the cost of repair—a stitch in time saves nine. I made with a steam roller and a little broken stone can make good roads. Keep the sides at the cost of a couple of months' work. Lindsay, I think, can make the cost of the steam roller in the opportunities to the voted, as I estimate that the streets named can be made good for $4,000 to $5,000 is a small amount. I was here a few years ago and noted the condition of your streets, and have been thinking of them. In the last eleven years you have spent on roads and bridges—works about $10,000 a year, say $50,000. Half of that sum was spent on roads, and it should be less have made good, reasonable the streets I have named. Has it been? No, I fear, the money has been wasted in great part. A loan of $40,000 would be in twenty years made a payment of $2,000 yearly; you are now paying $1,000 annually to improve the streets named and have $2,000 left for back streets and plank walk repairs. You will spend the money anyway, and it would be more businesslike to abandon the haphazard wasteful method for the plan I have advocated. Send a delegation to Belleville, Kingston, Perth, Smith's Falls and Brockville to note what has been accomplished in those towns; they will see work done that has stood the test of years. By voting for the $40,000 by-law you will not be incurring a liability but merely making a change of expenditure, and you will be receiving for money that is now squandered on improvements.

Frontage Plan Not Suitable

The proposal made by some people that a block of property be assessed yearly has nothing to commend it. The section so improved would merely prove a burdening ground for the road fund by taking time for the poorer streets. Others are in favor of the local improvement plan. Good roads might be secured that way, but he failed to see any virtue in this plan in the case of a town; in cities, where the owners of fronting blocks of land set out to improve it for residential purposes, the frontage plan works all right, because the lots would not sell unless streets and walk are made, and the cost can be assessed upon the land to be sold. Wide and good property owners on Williams or Kent-st. pay the whole cost of improvement shared in and enjoyed by all citizens? If that plan were adopted the result would be a richer board of trade and the street or part most in need of improvement might remain unkept for years. The city absolutely fair and satisfactory way is to raise the money by debentures and to the work of extension, if the more important streets first.

Appoint Commissioners

After considerable opinion held in some quarters that retired farmers are opposed to public improvements, Mr. Campbell advised that the work be placed in charge of a body of Commissioners selected by the people, to include one of the Town Fathers of Council—say the Mayor and chairman of the Board of Works. These men should appoint a capable superintendent of experience, practical knowledge and lots of back-bone. Not acceptable he (Mr. C) would come here from time to time to offer advice the aid his experience could suggest. Surely if we take hold of the problem in this business-like way we can make good roads and continue making roads to make Lindsay an ideal town. (Applause.)

Questions—some questions had been asked and answered a vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Ald. Brown and seconded by Ald. Robson. The meeting came to a close at 10.40.

Increased Wages Asked by Railway Men West of Chicago.

LORD MINTO TO KING EDWARD VII

Although No Strike is Threatened Situation Is Considered Critical—Men say Trains Are Heavier and the Work More Onerous Than in Former Years—The Demand Made Saturday.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—Demands for a 20 per cent. increase in the wages of passenger and freight conductors and brakemen were presented Saturday to the officials of forty railroads running west from Chicago. The proposed increase affects 150,000 employes who are members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors. Accompanying the demands, notice was served that an answer must be returned by Jan. 5. Although no strike is threatened, the situation is regarded generally by railroad men as critical. The trainmen give as their reasons for asking for an increase in wages the fact that trains are much heavier now than in former years, and that more hours are required to run a given number of miles. It is asserted that the work of conductors and brakemen has been almost doubled.

ELI HYMAN BURIED.

No Further Authentic Information About the Extent of His Estate.

Toronto, Dec. 22.—Eli Hyman, the Hebrew broker, who died in Montreal while he was the possessor of an immense fortune, was buried on Sunday in the little Jewish cemetery on Pape avenue. The interment was witnessed by about a dozen persons, who were relatives, or people otherwise interested in the disposal of the estate. The funeral was very simple, but a large number of curious persons viewed the remains.

There is no further information as to the extent of old Hyman's estate. A bond for ten thousand dollars has been supplied to cover the succession duties on the big fortune left by the miserly beggar. Five per cent. must be paid to the Province. This will probably amount to $5,000. Half of the estate will be inherited by Mrs. Sophia Hyman, the wife, and the balance will go to the children. They are said to be in California. There are two girls and a son, the issue of the first marriage. This marriage has not been established, however, and the children will be forced to make the necessary showing. There is no record of such marriage, but many Jews in this city are sure the old degenerate had a family before he married Miss Hamilton, the wife whom he married with promises to develop a lawsuit, especially if a prior marriage is established and the present Mrs. Hyman cannot show a divorce.

SOLD WIFE FOR A WATCH.

Percy Township Man Consented to Her Marriage His Brother.

Cobourg, Dec. 22.—George A. Reynolds of the township of Percy, sold his wife to his brother Walter for a gold watch, and the latter agreed to purchase the household effects belonging to George and assume the responsibilities of the head of the house. Walter and Mrs. George Reynolds were married at Harwood, and a few days later both were committed for trial by John Miller, J. P., the woman being charged with bigamy, and her brother-in-law husband with having incited her to commit the crime. Walter Reynolds is about 20 years of age, and recently returned from Michigan, going to live with his brother. He fell in love with his sister-in-law, and as his brother didn't care, the attachment developed until a proposition of marriage was made. While George stayed at home with the two children, Walter and Mrs. Reynolds visited the clergyman. They now plead ignorance of the law.

IN A FEW DAYS.

Resolutions Passed by the Inter-Provincial Conference—Will be Published in Montreal.

Montreal, Dec. 22.—The resolutions will be published in a few days, but further I cannot say, some can be right given yesterday by the Hon. George H. Murray, speaking of the Quebec conference. He said that the conference would do double its share of good, and added that the question of federal representation of the lower provinces had not been taken up by the conference.

Mitner Nominated.

Brampton, Dec. 22.—The Liberals of Peel met in convention here Saturday. There was a large delegation from all parts of the county. The nomination of W. E. Mitner for the House of Commons, which had been agreed upon at a recent meeting of the executive committee, was ratified, Mr. Mitner accepting the nomination. A public meeting was addressed by the Premier, Hon. Geo. P. Graham, and by Mr. Mitner.

HAGUE OR ROOSEVELT

Arbitration Court Proposed in re Venezuelan Affairs.

COUNTER PROPOSITION MADE.

Britain and Germany Ask Him to Be the Arbitrating—Early This Morning It Looked as If President Roosevelt Would Accept Offer of Alternative Proposition—Official Announcement of Blockade.

Washington, Dec. 22.—President Roosevelt has submitted to the allied powers that the Venezuelan dispute be submitted to the arbitration of The Hague Tribunal.

The powers have replied with a counter proposal that President Roosevelt himself arbitrate the dispute.

President Roosevelt does not wish to act as arbitrator in this dispute, for as such, it is felt here, he would be alone judge, jury and constable and would be under the moral obligation to execute his own judgment.

The President feels that a reference to The Hague Tribunal would vastly strengthen the cause of arbitration. Still, rather than see the present dispute proceed to extremes, it is probable the President will reluctantly assume the duties of arbitrator.

A Misunderstanding.

Berlin, Dec. 22.—A semi-official statement made Saturday night says: "The invitation to President Roosevelt to act as arbitrator was agreed upon after a thorough consultation between Germany and Great Britain. An understanding has been reached by the two powers on the reservation attached to the offer, and the German note will agree with the British note on all essential points."

The Powers Agree.

London, Dec. 22—It is believed here that President Roosevelt's answer to the proposal made by the allied powers that he arbitrate the Venezuelan issues has been received in London. The strictest secrecy with regard to every phase of the negotiations is preserved, however, and it is impossible to make any definite statement, but such indications as are obtainable point to President Roosevelt's acceptance of the office of arbitrator.

A constant interchange of cablegrams is proceeding night and day between the United States Embassy here and the State Department at Washington. It is believed that the President's answer will be submitted formally to the Foreign Office on day. By Wednesday, unless some unexpected complications arise, it is believed the negotiations will reach a stage assuring a definite arrangement and obviating hostilities.

It must be said that the acceptance of the office of arbitrator by President Roosevelt would greatly surprise the Foreign Office, which always has been doubtful of the issue of arbitration negotiations on account of the belief that President Roosevelt or the United States was not willing to undertake the responsibility thereby involved.

Official Blockade.

Caracas, Dec. 21.—In the name of Venezuela President Castro has signified to the representatives of Germany and President Roosevelt to arbitrate the Venezuelan difficulty.

Official Blockade.

London, Dec. 22.—The official proclamation of the blockade of Venezuelan ports was gazetted Saturday morning and came into effective the same day.

Blockade's Do.

La Guayra, Dec. 22.—The blockade is on. A schooner belonging to a French mail line was seized by the British Saturday.

HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

G.T.R. Train Hands Did Not Send Back a Flag Train.

Montreal, Dec. 22.—William Robinson and Daniel Welsh, the two employ of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, were held for trial Friday on charge of manslaughter in connection with the collision at Bonaventure, the engineer, and Michael Devaney, the fireman, whose coats were due to injuries in the recent accident at Morrisburg. Ont. Robinson was the conductor and Welsh the brakeman of the train which collided with Murphy's train, and in the wreck all the remains of Devaney, held here Friday, were found, namely that Robinson and Welsh, when their train was stopped by the accident, had not sent back to flag the approaching train, which they were required to do by the rules of the road. The jury returned a verdict of manslaughter, and the accused were released on bail to appear for trial.

LINER'S CYLINDER BURST.

Deutschland Badly Damaged and a Panic Followed.

Plymouth England, Dec. 22—The Hamburg-American Line steamer Deutschland arrived here at a quarter past two yesterday afternoon. When she was nearing the Sicilli Islands a cylinder burst, and the starboard engine was badly damaged. It will cost from four months to effect repairs. One engine was rather badly scalded. The steamer left here at 3 o'clock for Boulogne and Hamburg. A panic ensued, but was quelled.

ANOTHER FARMERS' UNION.

Tara, Dec. 20.—A meeting of the farmers of the adjoining township was held here yesterday for the purpose of forming a branch association. Mr. John Bruce Farmers' Association of Canada, Mr. C. Swale, mayor of the Township of Amabel, took the chair. Addresses were made by the chairman, W. Smith, editor of The Sun, Toronto; Col. Belcher, H. T. Potts, John Douglas, James Rushton and others. C. Swale was elected president, A. McIlse, vice-president, Joseph Potts, secretary-treasurer, and one member from each township was appointed to form the executive. A good many farmers present joined the association.

PREMIERS' MEETING.

Subjects for Consideration of the Conference at Quebec.

A PRELIMINARY MEETING HELD.

The Trains Were Late—Actual Business of Conference Begins To-Day—Quebec's Representation in the Commons May Be Increased—Plan to Settle Subsidies Question—Increased Subsidies.

Quebec, Dec. 19.—The Intercolonial train, which officially arrived about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, caused a delay in the opening of the proceedings of the Inter-Provincial Conference. On board this train were Hon. Messrs. Murray, Prowse, and Longley, Attorney-General of Nova Scotia. A preliminary meeting was held last night; but the actual business of the conference will only commence to-day. Last night the delegates were the guests of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor. To-day Premier Parent will dine them at the Charlesbourg Club. They will also be entertained at the Government House by the Provincial Ministers and by the Quebec Board of Trade. The conference will probably last till Saturday afternoon.

Subjects to Be Dealt With.

The principal subjects to be dealt with at the present conference will be much the same as those discussed similar to those laid down in the Quebec resolutions of 1887. Chief among which are an increase of the Provincial subsidies from the Dominion, the adjustment of the representation and the indemnity received by the Provinces from the Dominion in lieu of lands granted them by the award. It was rumored last evening that Premier Ross will put forward a plan to submit to the conference for the settlement of the difficulties connected with the fisheries award, and there is no doubt that the question of the readjustment of the subsidies is uppermost in the minds of the functions of the Provinces have grew expanded since the amounts of the subsidies were fixed. The Provinces are now under a much greater expense than in the beginning of their schools, and for many other things. The revenues of the Provinces, on the other hand, has greatly increased since the subsidies were fixed.

To Settle Representation.

Then as regards the representation, it is believed that a readjustment of the representation of the Provinces in the House of Commons, on the basis of the Confederation Act, which is now the subject of arrangement. The relative proportion could remain the same as provided for by the terms of the British North America act.

It is also stated that in the event of the conference agreeing unanimously on some matter of action the solution will be given to the press for publication.

E. A. MACDONALD DEAD.

Ex-Mayor of Toronto Passes Away After a Year's Illness.

Toronto, Dec. 19.—After an illness lasting over a year, Hon. Edward Aimey Albert Macdonald, ex-Mayor of Toronto, died last night at his home, 35 Grenville street. He had been suffering from nervous prostration, and for the last month or two he was confined to his bed, gradually growing weaker, and he died about shortly after 10 o'clock.

The late Mr. Macdonald was one of the best known men in Toronto, as he entered public life at an early age. He was prominently identified in promoting big real estate and other enterprises and was largely responsible for the building up of the prosperity of the City of Toronto.

On three occasions, 1891, 1898 and 1899, he was the mayoralty nominee, but was defeated. In 1900 he was elected Mayor, defeating ex-Mayor E. F. Clarke and Ald. Hallam. In 1901 he ran for a second term, but was defeated by Ald. Howland. Since then he has not taken an active part in municipal or business, owing to a general breakdown in his health. Deceased was 45 years of age.

TRUE BILL FOR TREASON.

Trial Will For Treason Returned Against Col. Arthur Lynch.

London, Dec. 20—The Grand Jury attached to commission of inquiry of Colonel Arthur Lynch, member of Parliament for Clare, has found a true bill against the latter for treason. Lynch is now in Continent on the charge of high treason, the charge with the part he took in the South African war, where he is alleged to have commanded the Irish brigade, returned a true bill yesterday against the defendant. The Lord Chief Justice Baron Alverstone, in charging the jury, remarked that it was 62 years since a Grand Jury had to deal with a case of treason, which was the highest crime known in law. Col. Lynch's trial for treason will be resumed to-morrow Jan. 20.

JUDGE GRAY'S STRONG WORDS.

As the Commission Wanted to Know If a Reign of Terror Really Existed While Strike Was on the Strict Rules of Evidence Would Not Hind—Summary of Testimony Given on Thursday.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 19.—In the Coal Strike Commission yesterday in reply to the lawyers for the miners, who objected frequently to the admission of testimony on hearsay and some times objected because of irrelevancy of certain other testimony, Chairman Gray said the commission was not bound by any strict rules of evidence, but asked counsel to confine themselves in examining witnesses as far as possible to direct evidence. The commission, he said, wanted to know whether a reign of terror existed in the anthracite region, and it could not get that information if the strict rules of evidence were applied. "The coward who will go to the storekeeper," he said, "and tell him not to sell the necessaries of life to a poor woman usually seeks the obscurity that the law of evidence throws around him. If a girl is discharged from her position in a store, because she rode in a street car in violation of a strikers' order, while a street car strike was on, the coward who discharged her is coward enough to refuse to testify." He recognized, he said, why some merchants will not come forward and tell who forced him to refuse to sell necessaries of life to certain boycotted persons, but if he (Chairman Gray) were a storekeeper he would ask he would risk his all, in order to assist in breaking up the cowardly business."

Several non-union witnesses that were called, testified that they were assaulted on the streets, the children were beaten by other children and could not safely be sent to school, that the union requested storekeepers to refrain from selling goods to persons related to a man working in the mines; that they were spoken of and hung in effigy, and that life generally was made miserable for them and their families. Most of the witnesses detected strikers with the offences alleged.

The lawyers for the non-union men said that they had no witnesses forthcoming to prove that a reign of terror existed during the strike.

The commission will adjourn at noon to-day (Saturday), and will reconvene in Philadelphia on Jan. 5.

Roblin Thinks Financial Relations With Dominion Must Come Up.

Montreal, Dec. 18.—Premiers Roblin and Ross, Hon. Messrs. Prowse, Edward Island, and Attorney-General Longley of Nova Scotia, left this last evening for Quebec to attend the conference.

Premier Roblin said it was about agreed that the relations, financial and other, between the Dominion and the provinces, would have to come up for discussion, he said.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley said he did not think the matter of readjustment of the representation in the House of Commons would be taken up.

WILL NOT SELL THE LAND.

Government Refuses Preemptive Offer of English Syndicate.

Toronto, Dec. 18.—The proposition of an English syndicate to purchase 2,000,000 acres of land in New Ontario has been knocked on the head. Thomas Marks, the Commissioner of Colonization, stated yesterday that the Government would not sell certain lands offered, because they could only sell to actual settlers, and individual, and the promoters of the scheme had been notified to that effect.

Successful Boycott on Churches.

Lansford, Pa., Dec. 18.—During the coal strike several churches in this town and Summit Hill took side with the strike operators and forbade the men to go to work. As a result a boycott was declared against the churches presided over by these pastors. In Lansford four out of the five churches are under the ban. Every person who attends the services is cut dead. The ban of union men are requested to shun the churches.

In Summit Hill four of the pastors have joined the union and the churches are now closed.

THE BRITISH REPLY.

Will Tend to Arrive at Satisfactory Venezuelan Solution.

A SETTLEMENT BY ARBITRATION

According to Reuter President Castro May Be Considered Out of It as a Factor in the Arbitration—The Proposal to Arbitrate, Whilst Accepted by the Powers in Principle Has Strings on It.

London, Dec. 20.—Great Britain has sent a reply to the United States in regard to the suggestion that the Venezuelan question should be submitted to arbitration. The tenor of the reply, it is expected here, will tend to bring about some arrangement for a satisfactory solution, while safeguarding the rights of the interests of the powers concerned.

A note in Reuter's Telegraph Company, announcing that Great Britain has sent a reply to the United States, states:

"The statements issuing from Caracas, to the effect that President Castro has approved Minister Bowen as the sole representative of Venezuela are regarded in London as not in fact, if such be the action on the part of President Castro would be considered wholly beside the mark. The powers concerned will deal solely with the United States in the matter of arbitration. The Government of President Castro will not be consulted in any form, not even as to the terms on which arbitration might be acceptable to the powers."

The forms and conditions to be observed in any settlement by arbitration are still the subject of an expletive exchange of views between the powers and the United States prior to the embodiment of the several replies in one harmonious instrument. Until this is elaborated no definite arrangement is possible.

Germany Accepts Arbitration.

Berlin, Dec. 20 — The answer of Germany to the arbitration proposal on behalf of Venezuela, received through the United States Government, is its acceptance. This delivery of this reply to the United States for transmission to Minister Bowen is delayed for a day or two for tactical reasons, probably through the expectation that another solution may be found, possibly by President Castro yielding.

Secretary Hay Willing.

Rome, Dec. 20.—U. S. Ambassador Meyer visited Foreign Minister Prinetti at the Foreign Office yesterday and communicated to him a cable message from Secretary Hay saying the Secretary was disposed to consent to the investment of Minister Bowen with full powers to settle the Venezuelan question, if acceptable to Germany, Great Britain and Italy.

A String to Arbitration.

Washington, Dec. 20. — Secretary Hay has received partial responses from the Governments of Great Britain, Germany and Italy respecting the proposal to arbitrate the Venezuelan difficulty. Great Britain is favorable to arbitration with proper safeguards, Germany accepts arbitration in principle but lays a multitude of small adjustments to be made before entering into the agreement. Italy, as the junior partner of the allies, intimates that she is favorable to arbitration, but probably will be influenced by the action of the senior partners.

It is gathered that the attitude of the United States is for the present a waiting one, in the hope that the three allies will soon be able to agree upon the basis for arbitration.

The French Government has served notice that without abating her claims, the payment for which have been arranged, she also claims the right to have the claims of French citizens considered by joint tribunal.

Crop Failure in Finland—Condition Reported Worse Than in 1867, When 100,000 Persons Died.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 20—Four hundred thousand persons are reported to be destitute and starving as a result of the crop failure in Finland. The Anglo-American Church here has undertaken to feed and clothe the school children of four Finnish parishes, and Pastor Gapon says the conditions to-day are worse than those in 1867, when one hundred thousand persons died.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC RAILWAY

Application For Charter For the Proposed Line—Branches Projected—Winnipeg, Calgary and Regina to Be Tapped—Opposition to Aid to This Transcontinental Project in Winnipeg.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 20.—The Times says: There is no longer any doubt that the action of the White Pass and Yukon Railway in extending its general offices from Seattle to Vancouver, B.C., has been with the intention of transferring that property to the control of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and, by the transfer, placing the trade of the Yukon Territory in the full control of the Canadian line.

C.P.R. to St. Lawrence Service.

London, Dec. 20.—It is announced here on the highest authority that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has determined on opening up on the St. Lawrence route next spring. It is stated that the company will run a weekly service of cargo steamers from Liverpool and a ten-day service from Glasgow and Liverpool. Other important developments are contemplated.

AGAINST SUBSIDIES.

Winnipeg Board of Trade Heatedly Discuss the Granting of Aid to the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 20. — At a heated meeting of the Board of Trade yesterday afternoon, it was unanimously resolved to urge upon the Dominion Government to take immediate steps to remedy the grievous disabilities under which the people of the Northwest are laboring in relation to the question of transportation, and to take such further steps as would effectually prevent the recurrence of the present unbearable conditions.

At present the railways cannot handle the business offered them. There is now practically a complete grain blockade throughout the West, owing to lack of motive power, and the G. T. P. scheme is spoken of as a scheme that merchants cannot get, and their Christmas goods.

A resolution relating to the granting of Government aid to the Grand Trunk, was also passed, to the effect, "That no money donation or bond guarantee be granted to the Grand Trunk Pacific or Canadian Northern, and that the Government of Canada should forthwith proceed with the work of construction necessary to complete the present system of government railways by purchasing or building an extension of the Intercolonial Railway from Moncton to Lake Superior, as suggested by the present Minister of Railways, and in conformity with the report filed in which the Government of Manitoba attained office." The resolution will be further considered on Dec. 29.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

The Power the Old Canadian Line Asks For in Charter.

Ottawa, Dec. 20.—The Canada Gazette contains notice of the application for a bill of incorporation for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company. The route of the proposed railway is described in general terms as follows—From a point at or near Fort Cassiar, on North Dead Day, thence in a northwesterly and westerly direction through the Provinces and Territories of Ontario, Keewatin, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, Athabasca and British Columbia, or any other Province or Territory of Canada or North America, to the Pacific Ocean, at or near Port Simpson, or at or near Bella Bella Island, or such other point as may be hereafter determined, by way of the Skeena, Peace or Pine River Pass, or such other pass as may be found most convenient, and by such other more feasible route as may be hereafter more clearly defined, and to acquire to construct branch lines to Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary or other points, and acquire, construct, organize, connect with or otherwise deal in or operate, and make use of the line of any railway company in Canada. The Company are among the other rights desired—To build or acquire or operate steamships and ferries within Canada and beyond the same, to maintain and use wharves, docks, docking devices, warehouses, bridges, hotels, restaurants, and to acquire and develop water powers for the production and supply of electricity for any use, to locate, acquire and develop mines and minerals, stone, clay, timber and timber lands, to construct and operate telegraph and telephone lines for the purpose of the company's business and for public use, and to connect the same with any such lines already constructed, to acquire lands for park and pleasure resorts, to acquire lands and to aid settlers upon lands served by the company's railways; to deal in the securities of any Government, corporation or company, and to enter into contracts with any Government, corporation, company, or individual in respect of such securities or in respect of the construction, acquisition of railway, steamship, telegraph or telephone lines, or any public or private improvements in Canada or elsewhere.

From American Designs.

Glasgow, Dec. 19.—The Canadian Pacific has placed its locomotive orders, which was received by the firm of Nelson, Dick & Co., of this city, provides that the engines shall be built from American designs. The equipment arrouse timber and ties is much curiously to see how British workmen will handle American designs.

THE JURY ACQUITTED HIM.

Toronto Hotelkeeper Discharged After Trial For Knowingly Having Counterfeit Money in His Possession.

Toronto, Dec. 20—A verdict of not guilty was returned in the Criminal Sessions about 6 o'clock last night in the case of Thomas Hardwick, of Wilton avenue hotelkeeper, charged with knowingly having in his possession counterfeit money. He was sworn at the Police Court, Monday morning, on leaving the dock, was committed for trial, surrounded by his family, and friends who crowded about him to shake hands with him. The jury was out about two hours, but it is understood that they were agreed three quarters of an hour after they retired to consider the verdict. The prisoner's counsel, Mr. Dougall necessitated the wait till 8 o'clock. Hardwick was then released still under $500 bail each to appear for trial on the charge of knowingly uttering a counterfeit bill, which is their possession. In view of the finding of the jury in this case it is not likely that this charge will be pressed.

NIAGARA POWER THE STAKE.

Argument Between One of the Old Companies and a New Concern Which Wants Power.

Toronto, Dec. 20.—There was a formidable array of legal and scientific talent in the Chancery Chambers of the Parliament Buildings yesterday afternoon to see the Ontario Cabinet. They occupied the delegation representing the Toronto Niagara Power Company, which claims to have certain water power privileges at Niagara Falls, and the competing companies doing business there.

J. W. Langmuir, for the commissioners, stated the position of affairs, the new power company made an application for 100,000 electrical horse power, and the opinion was expressed that a majority of the members of the existing companies would not be injured by granting the new power, provided, however, the company did not develop power beyond the 100,000 horse power. The commissioners were fortified in this opinion by a report from Mr. Ross, who also stated that the subtraction of 11,000 horse power would not be injurious to any company.

Then followed a long argument between the representatives of the Canadian Niagara Power Company, the company and the new concern. The former had the field, and seemed to be seriously interfered with, perhaps, to a great extent, ruined, if the new comer got what it was asked for. The latter held just the opposite. The Ontario Power Company's representatives had nothing to say. Their property was not affected in any way or the other.

Mr. Chancellor Ross said that both sides had stated their case, and the Government would get the opinion of disinterested parties.

FARMERS FROM SCOTLAND.

Nearly 170 Experienced Workers Arrive in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Dec. 20—Yesterday afternoon a party of 170 people, who had been in Scotland with the object of bringing to the Canadian Northwest a large party of Scotch agricultural workers, arrived in the city with between 160 and 170 experienced farm laborers. The demand, however, exceeds the supply.

Acting Commissioner Moffatt has received orders for 160 laborers from farmers for these men. The applications begin at $20 a month and accompanied by a remittance of $25, which sum will be deducted from the earnings of the men. In addition to this Mr. Adamson has received nearly a hundred more applications, and remittances from farmers who will be disappointed.

NON-UNION SIDE.

Stories of Violence Around the Miners and in Mining Districts During the Great Coal Strike.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 20.—Non-union men; some of their relatives and others to the number of 30 appeared before the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission yesterday and told their stories of alleged boycotts, intimidations, dynamiting and violence in various forms during the late strike. Each witness called was a sufferer in one form or another as the hands they alleged, of union men. Four witnesses said attempts had been made to blow up their houses one house was badly damaged; many of the witnesses were threatened with bodily harm; several were beaten, one shot in the leg and every one stoned, boycotted or hung in effigy. The school teacher testified to having lost his position because his father did not strike. One man said he was refused to join a Catholic Temperance Society and another boy was expelled from a local lodge of the Ancient Order of Hibernians after membership of twenty-six or twenty-eight years, because they were classed as strike breakers.

An Anarchist Killed.

Philadelphia, Dec. 20.—Miss Voltarina Le Clercq, a noted anarchist and a teacher of languages, was yesterday shot and mortally wounded by Herman Hedwig, a jealous pupil. The woman is dying in a hospital here. Hedwig, who is a Russian, disquitted love is said to have prompted him to the shooting. The young man was the following: "We were sweethearts, I loved her, she broke my heart, and deserved to be killed."

Rally in the Police Court.

Toronto, Dec. 20—Robert O. Hall, the ledger-keeper of the Bank of Montreal street branch of the Bank of Commerce charged with embezzling the Dominion Express Co. out of $200, was arraigned in the Police Court yesterday. T. C. Robinette, K.C., appeared for the young man, and pleaded not guilty to the indictment. Hally was remanded till Monday, without bail.

Quebec Conference Held at Ancient Capital in Camera.

ONTARIO VIEW WELL RECEIVED.

Two Sessions of the Premiers Held Friday—All the Delegates Were Present—None of the Resolutions to Be Given Out Until They Have Been Officially Received in Ottawa—The Break-Up.

Quebec, Dec. 20—All the delegates of the Interprovincial Conference were present at the meeting yesterday at 11 o'clock, and remained in session for about two hours, but nothing of the proceedings was given out. In fact, it is said that none of the resolutions to be adopted will be furnished the press until they have been officially received at Ottawa.

Received With Applause.

It is understood that the memorandum sent by the Premier of Ontario, embodying the views of his Government on the questions to come before the conference, was the first thing by the Secretary after the President's opening remarks at the morning session yesterday, and that it was received with general approbation.

The Board of Trade is tendering the delegates a banquet, which will probably take place at the Kent House.

The Premier Parent entertained the delegates and a few other friends, twenty-five in all, to lunch at the Quebec Club yesterday afternoon. Among others present were: Hon. Charles Pitapatrick, Hon. Mr. Garneau, M.L.C., Ald. George Dangoy and Ald. Gouin, the latter of whom was named secretary of the conference. The premiers met again last night at 8 o'clock. They will meet again for the last time this morning at 11 o'clock.

The delegates intend to leave Quebec Sunday by the C.P.R. and I.C.R.

A POPULAR CANDIDATE.

Enthusiastically Unanimous Nomination of Mr. A. G. Mackay by the Liberals of North Grey.

Owen Sound, Dec. 20—The Liberals of North Grey yesterday nominated Mr. A. G. Mackay to again contest the riding for the Legislature. There has never been a more enthusiastic and harmonious nominating convention in this riding, and Hon. E. J. Davis, who was present, said that in his long experience he had not seen a more harmonious in any constituency in the Province. Mr. Mackay's popularity was strikingly demonstrated by the fact that when his nomination had been moved and seconded, the cry was raised, "Are there any other nominations?" and at once the chairman of the hall came cries of "No! No!"—and there were no other nominations. Mr. Davis made a spirited speech in favor of the Government's administration of Ontario affairs.

THE BYE-ELECTIONS.

Polling on the First Wednesday in January—North Ontario, Dec. 31, and North Grey Seats to Be Filled.

Toronto, Dec. 20—It is understood that the bye-elections to fill the seats recently vacated by the members for North Perth, North Norfolk and North Grey, will be held on Wednesday, January 7th. The nominations will take place on December 31st. Two of these seats, North Perth and North Norfolk, were carried in the Conservative interest at the last Legislature, and North Grey was held by a majority of 28 in North Norfolk in the previous Legislature both these seats were held by supporters of the Government. In North Grey, which was held by a Conservative in the last Legislature, a Government supporter was returned in May last by a majority of 5.

Britain Will Not Place Any Further Importing Restrictions Without First Notifying Lord Strathcona.

London, Dec. 20. — The Board of Agriculture, which controls the situation, has not, report to the contrary, placed any further restrictions on the importation of Canadian cattle, nor will any steps to that end be taken without first informing Lord Strathcona, Canadian High Commissioner, of the grounds upon which it proceeds, and has heard everything that Canada has to submit to the contrary.

New Cabinet Minister.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 18 — Edward P. Morris, a member without portfolio, of the Colonial ministry, has been appointed Minister of Justice in Premier Bond's Cabinet, in succession to W. H. Horwood, who has been appointed Chief Justice.

CHAPTER I.

I HAVE a partiality for balls and receptions and invariably try to make it a practice to be in the vicinity when one is in progress. There are always so many people coming and going that a stranger often passes unnoticed and escapes attention. It is an excellent time for inspecting basement windows, cellar doors and outbuildings.

As a general way servants are more careless on such nights about locking up, and the hostess and her guests always bring out their best jewels and leave them loose on bureaus and mantelpieces after retiring. It may not have struck the casual observer that people sleep much more soundly after a ball than ordinarily. They are a longer time in retiring, but when everything is finally quiet about the house it would take nothing less than a pistol shot to rouse them. I suppose they are completely exhausted and arrive the excitement of the evening do not dream of burglars.

One March night I waited until after 9 o'clock for one of these festivities to draw to a close. It was cold and raw outside in the shrubbery, and I grew impatient at the lateness of the guests in taking their departure. The house was a large, old fashioned mansion just outside of the city limits, and from its general air and appearance I knew that everything within was in the shape of solid silverware and family heirlooms was contained in it. Preliminary to the business of the day, the house would, I thought, bring all these relics from their hiding places and show them to her guests.

It was anticipation of a rich haul that kept me from giving up the job in disgust, for I was tired and exhausted with several nights' unlucky ventures, and my patience seemed sorely tried.

When the lights finally went out, I breathed easier and felt my courage returning. Everything promised to run smoothly. I had succeeded in disposing of the watchdog earlier in the evening and had discovered an unfastened window opening into the cellar room in the cellar, which I believed the servants would not think to lock so late at night.

I waited a good hour after the last flickering light had disappeared. Then I crept softly up to the house, and, concealed in its shadow, listened for sounds. There was none, except these strange, almost inexpressible voices which seem to come from nowhere in the dead of night. I do not know that anybody has ever noticed them, but I have always noticed that they were like the breathing of the earth—if such a thing were possible—the pulsing, the regular, rhythmic pulsations.

I crept along the side of the house until I reached the basement window, and, finding it unlocked, as I expected, I softly opened it and looked in. It was not positive that the window opened into the cellroom, but from the general appearance of things I felt reasonably sure I was right. Not to make any mistake or mistake in the darkness, I lowered my bag of tools until it struck something which gave forth a crash. Not wishing to drop the bag back and forth, I succeeded in identifying the object as a tin pan.

As I was a little to one my dark lantern outside, I lowered myself cautiously into the cellar. Instead of the cellar I found myself in the dairy room of the mansion. The door from newly made butter, fresh milk and cream chose gave me such an overpowering appetite that I had to satisfy it before I could go any farther. By groping around on the shelves I succeeded in getting a pretty fair supply of food—milk and cream in abundance, good cheese, several slices of cake, some cake and cold meat.

[illegible] my dark lantern, I [illegible] the door leading from the dairy room to the basement laundry was not locked, and I quietly entered the latter place. I now ventured to open a little the slide of my dark lantern, and by means of it I found the stairs leading to the ground floor. The servants' quarters were above me, and to avoid arousing any one I removed my shoes.

The house was spacious and roomy, and I had to take many wrong turnings as I proceeded, so that I might find my way back again without blundering. It is a poor general, I have always thought, who burns his bridges behind him. More than one has carried half of mine has saved me from unpleasant complications.

When I passed from the kitchen into the dining room, I was greatly surprised not to find any solid pieces of silver. Even many of the expensive pieces of brie-a-brac that are usual to such houses were gone. It looked as if the hostess had anticipated robbery and had stripped the tables and mantelpieces of every small article of special value.

Although disappointed, I made my way upstairs, hoping to find some loose jewelry at least on the bureaus. There were signs of the feast and entertainment all about the hall and rooms, but I was unable to find anything that repelled to my tastes. I passed from one bedroom to another, with about the same result, and I could hear the regular breathing of the occupants of the house, and a distinct sense of the world old me that one man was a good sinner. So long as that rhythmic sound continued, I felt safe, and I was never alarmed.

After making a detour of the rooms I finally entered a small chamber that was used for storing linen and trunks. It occurred to me that possibly the missing things were packed away in this room. I closed the door behind me and turned on the slide from my lantern.

As I did so I was suddenly startled by the bright ray of some light shooting out of the darkness. Instantly I grasped my revolver and directed my light toward the spot. The result of this movement was to produce a queer combination.

I saw that I was looking into the mouth of a revolver held in the hands of a man who was inspecting me by the aid of a dark lantern similar to my own. My own revolver was covering the place where his heart should be.

The discovery must have been simultaneous, for we both flashed the light of our lanterns into each other's face and gazed long and silently. Neither were a coward, and the unexpected eyes there was cool, deadly resolve written. It would have been disturbed for either to seem that the life of the other would have been instantly sacrificed. I waited a full minute or two for the man to speak.

"Well," I said finally, unwilling to bear the strain of silence longer, "you seem to be ahead of me tonight, and I must congratulate you upon the neatness of your work. I haven't found a thing behind you."

The man was not inclined to answer at first, but I continued in a reassuring voice:

"We may as well call a truce. It would be folly for either of us to shoot. I don't want to get you in trouble any more than myself."

I had been struck by the fine, handsome features of the man, but when he spoke in a well modulated, musical voice I was further puzzled. He did not look like one of my set.

"What kind of a truce do you want?" he asked. "You see I have you covered with my revolver and could kill you in an instant."

"But you fail to notice mine," I answered. "A very slight pressure of the trigger would send a bullet through your heart."

I thought he turned a little paler, but he did not waver in his steady gaze.

"I admit that and accept the situation. But tell me what terms you propose for your truce."

"Simply these: We should go into partnership at least for this place. I have had as much trouble in getting into the house as you, and I have run just as much risk, but you got ahead of me and made a complete job. I admire the way you have done the work. Even I couldn't do it better, and I don't think you belong to the class I'm—

"Never mind that," he interrupted impatiently. "Stick to your terms and be quick."

"Well, to come straight to the point," I added, a little nettled at his abrupt ways, "I propose that we divide the plunder you have collected. For your extra trouble you take two-thirds and I one-third. Is that fair?"

He remained silent a moment and then said:

"If I agree to such a bargain, nothing prevents you will ever be said of tonight's work?"

"Not a word."

"And you will never recognize me if you should happen to meet me on the street or anywhere else?"

I did not like this part of the bargain, for I believe that every one should be placed on the same level in such a business and that one man should not set himself up to being better than another, but I hastily assented, with the exception of one slight qualification.

"Not unless we happen to meet under similar circumstances again. Then I might recall to you this meeting."

"I don't think that is likely to occur," he replied firmly.

Then in a firm, measured voice he added:

"Well, I'll trust you. I will give you one-third of all I have secured. I believe that you will keep your part of the agreement if I keep mine."

There was honesty written in his face, and, would have trusted him to the extent of pocketing my revolver, but again he got ahead of me. I stood there covering him with my weapon half a minute after he had put his pistol in his pocket. I was tempted to make him give everything to me under penalty of death seized me for an instant when I realized that he had placed himself in my power. But that same rich, musical voice suddenly recalled me to my bargain.

"Here, take this bag outside with you, and we will divide the thing where there is less chance of detection."

"Have you been all over the house?" I asked in a little confusion.

"Yes, all over. There is nothing worth taking left."

He moved toward the door and started to open it. He turned an instant and asked:

"How did you come in?"

"Through a cellar window," I replied.

"A clumsy way when you could have entered by the front door."

"Do you mean to say"—I began.

"S-s-s-h, don't speak now. I'm opening the door. Follow me."

I never felt the power of a man so strangely before. I attributed it to the fact that I was in the presence of a master who put my feeble accomplishments entirely into the background, and yet I had prided myself upon my successes!

We walked stealthily down the stairs and out of the front door to the lawn. He carried a pick larger than mine. When we reached the shelter of a clump of trees, we halted again.

"It is getting late, and it will be light soon," my strange companion said. "We must separate and divide the booty."

In the same quick, masterful and, if I say it, honest way he made a division of the spoils, and I felt more than once told me that one man was a good sinner. So long as that rhythmic sound continued, I felt safe, and I was never alarmed.

THE CAMEL'S HEAD

"Where the camel's head goes his body follows," says an Oriental proverb. It's the same way with disease. A small ailment will give an entrance and when disease once has a place in the body a large number of ills may follow it.

The opening for disease is often found in a weak stomach. When the stomach is "weak" the body also becomes weakened by lack of nutrition, and disease attacks the heart, liver, lungs, kidneys and other organs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the weak stomach strong. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition and so enables the body to resist or throw off other diseases.

Men and women who are sick invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free, and so obtain advice and the opinion of a specialist on their ailments. All correspondence strictly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"For the past two years I have been a very sick woman," writes Mrs. Chesley, of 108 Wood Ave., Cleveland, Ohio. "I tried medicines from doctors and no avail. At last I decided to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When I started in I could not even touch a very unpleasant taste to my mouth. Was troubled with a very bad stomach and could not relish food. I had severe headaches and nothing would rest me. I felt so nervous I could not attend to my work. Could not walk a dozen stairs without the assistance of my brother or sister. I am now taking the fourth bottle and am happy to say I feel like myself again. I can do my work, walk stairs and perform my duties as well as any one. Everything seems to be brighter, and I am thankful that I did not give up hope."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," there is nothing just as good for dyspepsia or debility.

"I was cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

"Excuse me, ma'am."

"I don't know," he said slowly. Then to me:

"Do you know anything about horses?"

"Yes, sir," I replied quickly. "I've had a good deal of experience as groom and coachman."

This was partly true and partly false. I was a groom, but I was left me, and if you want to apply for the position call around at my house tonight. It is the first house on the left down this street."

He pointed out his residence, but I was so taken aback by his affability and readiness to engage me that I nearly lost the words of instruction. I recovered sufficiently, however, to recognize the place before they moved on.

I heard their "good day" as one in a dream, and probably for the first time in my life politeness failed me. I actually forgot to thank either of them.

"Throughout the interview he had been playing a part with wonderful success or he had failed to recognize me. I was inclined to accept the latter as true, and he fell somewhat in my estimation. To forget a face so soon was a mark of inferiority in one of our profession could well afford.

CHAPTER III.

THAT night I spent on the place of Charles Goddard where I found myself as familiar with his history as systematic pumping of the coachman would permit.

"An easy man he is to get along with," Goddard answered, volunteered. "There ain't the likes of him anywhere else in the country. An' the sweet miss is just the same. Sweet as sugar, my wife says, if there ever was one."

"You mean the lady he's engaged to?" I replied, with a leading tone and in the mansion that was robbed the other night?"

"Exactly! Miss Belle Stetson, the only lady that's worthy such a man as my master!"

"How long have they been engaged and when are they to be married?"

"Now you're goin' too fast. I didn't say they was engaged, did I? And if they ain't engaged I don't know when they're goin' to be married, could I? Some say they're engaged, an' others say they aint. How do I know yes or right?"

The man was only waiting to reveal more of the relationship between the two young people, and I catered to his natural weakness by encouraging him to proceed.

"Yo must be a stranger around these parts indeed if you don't know what ye ask me," he continued, with a slurp of the shoulder in reply to my questions.

"I wouldn't be a-telln' it to every one, but seein' you're a friend to one of the family I don't mind speakin' plain-like to ye."

He puffed noisily upon his black pipe, securing one smoke upward in dense clouds. His name was Hiram, and he claimed to be an Irish American; but, while he had lost much of his brogue, he had retained all the loquacity of his first ancestors.

"Mr. Goddard comes from one of the oldest families of this country, an' old Dr. Stetson—God bless him, he was the finest man in the world—was a bit behind the Goddards. I've often heard the old folks argufy about their ancestors. The doctor's family came in on the Mayflower. I don't remember much about the Goddards except what I've heard the old doctor say, but she must have been a pretty fine ship. She brought the doctor over—no, the doctor's grandfather or great-grandfather. I don't just remember which—an' he always said that was enough glory for any man. The doctor's family was proud of it, an' he always descended direct from kings an' emperors. They couldn't agree among an' they just made up long enough to pick a new guard. I've heard tell how they'd talk pretty disparagin about the politics of the country till they got up quiet around Bunker Hill, an' in five minutes they'd be shakin' their sticks in each other's faces an' calling one another liars.

"But this didn't seem to make no difference with their children. They just played together like brothers and sisters. When they was no bigger'n up to my knee they'd be about lovin' one another an' about getting married. The old doctor and Mr. Goddard laughed at this and forgot to quarrel sometimes about their ancestors jest to see the little ones makin' love.

"They seemed to be born for each other, an' everybody said they'd get married somedey. But when Mr. Goddard died somebody said his son had inherited his disease an' that he wasn't long for this world. Nobody seemed to know jest what the disease was, but they said it was incurable an' something not to be spoken lightly of.

To be continued.

The Canada Life Assurance Co.

A Business Proposition.

We offer you a better investment than Government Bonds

Better for three reasons.

1st.—Canada Life 5 per cent. Gold Bonds yield a much higher rate of interest than Government Bonds.

2nd.—They are paid for by instalments—thus placed within the reach of men without capital.

3rd.—They are insured. That is, should the investor die after paying only one instalment on his bonds, all his future payments to the Company would be immediately cancelled and the benefits of his investment would at once become available.

Add to all these advantages the very material one that the investor shares in the surplus earnings of this leading Company, and you have a very attractive offer for safe and profitable investment rarely equalled. A handsome booklet, giving a full explanation, will be sent on request.

Torpid Liver

Is sometimes responsible for difficult digestion, that is, DYSPEPSIA.

When it is,

1 What headache, dizziness, constipation,
2 What fits of despondency,
3 What fears of imaginary evils, conduce with the distress after eating, the sourness of the stomach, the bad taste in the mouth, and so forth, to make the life of the sufferer scarcely worth living?

Dyspepsia resulted from torpid liver in the case of Mrs. Jones, 320 N. 17th St., Philadelphia, Pa., who was a great sufferer.

Her statement made in her 77th year is that she was completely cured of it and all its attendant aches and pains, as others have been, by a faithful use of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

That acts on all the digestive organs, cures dyspepsia, and give permanent vigor and tone to the whole system.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 26, 1902.

JUDGE DEAN'S REPORT READ SATURDAY NIGHT.

Communications and Accounts—Town Solicitor Hopkins Comments on the Chalmers Investigation—Mr. Sinclairs Surety Bond for Contractor Pilkie.

Our town fathers met Saturday evening in adjourned session. Mayor Ingle in the chair. All Councillors was the only absentee.

Communications.

From Provincial Commissioner Campbell, informing Council that he would arrive in Lindsay Monday morning and address a Good Roads meeting in the evening.

From Town Solicitor Hopkins, submitting copy of the letter sent him by the Gas Company relative to non-fulfilment of contract, and President Burgess' reply to same, stating that the town's demand would be considered at a meeting of the Board of Directors, to be held on the 29th inst.—Referred to Police and Lighting committee of new Council.

The Chalmers Investigation.

Town Solicitor Hopkins submitted the following report relative to the above matter:

Lindsay, Oct. 20th Dec., 1902.

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Lindsay.

Gentlemen,—This investigation, as you are aware, took place before the Judge on Friday 5th December inst., when Mr. Chalmers was present and again claimed that he was interested in the Combe tender for granolithic walks and pavements in Lindsay, and Mr. Combe resigned all his interest in the tender, as the proving of this charge alone meant a recommendation by the Judge for Mr. Chalmers' dismissal if he had not resigned, as neither you nor the Judge have any power to inflict any penalty or punishment; but I feel interested in advising proceeding further, with the investigation, which would have enabled very considerable expense, an opportunity, which however, publicly given to any person or witness to do so.

I deem it my duty to inform you that in preparing the case I was unable, from the books and papers at the Clerk's office, to check would the money ordered by the town had been used for, and that the lack of proper order vouchers had occasioned the certifying of an account by the Commissioner as proof for payment on account of cement which the Town had not received I am satisfied there was no intentional wrong, as the cement had also been paid for by the Town Commissioner, but this error could not have occurred had proper orders been given, and I would recommend that the Council issue proper written orders being given for all material, and duplicate orders in the books kept. I may say that the Janitor tells me he receives no orders.

I would also regret what I said at the enquiry that if officials of towns were engaged in or in any way mixed up in any business of a private or similar character, it is bound to create suspicion, and I now feel more strongly, and that the practice should be prohibited and discouraged. The Town Clerk should be more like a bank, and parties not allowed to lay the cornerstone of wrong, proper care cannot be taken of the Town's property.

I enclose herewith bill of my costs and money's paid out, for my witness fees, etc.

A Batch of Accounts.

The following accounts were read and referred to the proper committees, for report for council:

H. J. Fox, [illegible]	$ 2.50
Barr Bros. [illegible]	62.21
Light, Heat & Power Co.	19.71
The Canadian Rubber Co.	10.17
Light, Heat & Power Co., as-[illegible]	242.00
Keys & Morrison, fire hall heating contract	450.00
Waterman-Warder	2.60
Contract Record	6.00
G. H. Hopkins, year's account to Dec.	152.40
G. H. Hopkins, expenses, Chalmers investigation	192.71
The Rathbun Co.	15.25
W. W. Dean, Chalmers investigation	30.61

Ald. Barrows—"That bill of Dean's is a preposterous one. We pay him $800 salary and $216 commission for work that any ordinary man would do for half the sum."

Ald. Kingston—I agree with you.

From D. C. Trow, Block Knot Inspector, reporting 1,000 Block Knots, 1,000 plum and other fruit trees infected—Spiled.

From Town Commissioner Challes, submitting his statement of work done on roads, walks, etc., during the year.—Board of Works of new Council.

That Stunted Enquiry.

Clerk Knowlson read the report of His Honor Judge Dean on the Chalmers investigation, held Dec. 5th. The document, with evidence attached, was referred to the Board of Works.

For the Sake of Principle.

Ald. Barrows, referring to the Council's refusal at last meeting to release Mr. D. Sinclair from his liability as bondsman for Contractor Pilkie, said that stand would, if persisted in, expose Council to a charge of gross unfairness.

Ald. Jackson—"We are holding him up for no good in order to benefit the town, just as we would hold any other person. We are acting on principle."

Ald. Barrows—"Well, principle is generous and cause in a while. Mr. Sinclair wants to run for the Council."

Ald. Robson thought the Council should release Mr. Sinclair if it could be done legally. He moved a resolution to that effect, which was seconded by Ald. Barrows.

Mayor Ingle—"Put the matter was settled at last meeting.

Ald. O'Reilly—"Yes, and I'm badly mistaken if Ald. Barrows did not then promise to refer the matter to next year's Council—now he switches around and wants his very opposite."

Ald. Barrows denied the statement and Ald. O'Reilly asked the Clerk to search the minutes for the statement of the supporter, but they were not recorded.

Ald. O'Reilly—"We must remember that we have had no respite from Mr. Pilkie. Neither Mr. Barrows nor his uncle or Mr. Sinclair did so. The latter gave us the reason for asking to be released that he was entering into partnership with his son, and one of the conditions was that no member of the firm should become security for anyone. The Council had recently lost Mr. Sinclair's bond would not interfere in any way with the proposed partnership. If Mr. Sinclair had stated in his letter that he desired to be relieved because he wished to run I would have voted to release him.

Ald. Morris—"I don't understand the merits of the question, but I am in favor of allowing everyone fair play, and if Mr. Sinclair wants to be released without loss to the town, I'm in favor of doing so."

Ald. Jackson—"Mr. Sinclair's request was before us Ald. Barrows, didn't you and myself vote that we hope remain thru' Mr. Sinclair intended to run."

Ald. Barrows at this point rose and denied Ald. O'Reilly's statement that he had voted for or seconded a motion to refer Mr. Sinclair's request to the new Council. It was a fabulous assertion made in unparliamentary language.

Ald. O'Reilly said he was certain that his memory had not misled him, as he Ald. Barrows' cousin, on his grammer, his father—a working man—had given him an opinion of his education as then with the exception of those who could not afford to send their sons to College. Perhaps after all it was better to possess ordinary education, with your sound brains thrown in, than to have a college degree and wooden head.

At Robson's resolution was then declared out of order by the Mayor.

Reading of the minutes brought the meeting to a close.

Curling Notes

—Games Saturday night: J. D. Flavelle 15, J. C. Harstone 11; R. H. Cuthbert 13, G. H. Baker 6; C. V. O'Connor 19, G. H. Hopkins 8; Rev. J. W. Macmillan 13, W. H. Stevens 8.

—Only one game has been played so far for the Fox Cup, viz. the game between Rev. J. W. Macmillan and Mr. L. V. O'Connor. Mr. O'Connor won and his rink goes into the second draw.

—The drawing for Dr. Tatton's Medal and for the President's Red Hone Stones has been made and may be found in the record book at the rink, also the drawing for the Club Medal and the two men games. These matches should be commenced at once and pushed through.

—The club was very pleased to have visit from Rev. Dr. Kennedy, of the Peterboro Club, on Saturday evening. He regrets that the games in their building are about completed. They will have six sheets of ice, the same as Lindsay. This would allow of games twelve rinks aside, between the two clubs, if they could be arranged.

—A few changes are being made in the drawing for Christmas Day. The Little v. O'Connor game is changed to the afternoon, and the Lindsay men's two games takes its place in the forenoon. It is expected that Christmas Day will be a busy day from morning to evening at the rink. The Curlers' Office entitles to visit the rink that day and watch the games. Should any one be a good deal interested in turns before Thursday the games schedule for that day will be found to be played in the evening.

—Four more rink games were played Saturday night. Two of these, the Flavelle-Harstone and the Hopkins O'Connor-Hopkins game—were doubleheaders, and as both games were won by the first Vice-President's alleged big stock took an upward trend. A fifth and sixth game between the same men were played and the Vice-President was now in a position to claim a win over the second Vice-President. Only a few games now remain to finish in this other series. The President's side is eight up against the first Vice-President's side, and the second Vice-President's side.

—For the Fox Cup competition for the Ontario Tankard the drawing has been made for round 1 as follows: First Draw—1, Beaverton vs. Lindsay; 2, Port Hope vs. Peterboro Granites; 3, Oshawa vs. Kingston; 4, Port Perry vs. Oshawa Second Draw—1, winner of 1 vs. winner of 2; 2, Bye. Third Draw—Winner of 1 vs. winner of 2. These games are to be played at Port Perry, the earlier officers will not this winter have the pleasure of seeing those Tankard games.

Hockey Notes

—Tickets have been issued by Mr. Lewis the treasurer, for the Lindsay, Hockey Club and those desirous of joining the club should see him at once.

—Dr. Walters has been appointed an official referee for the Trent Valley League. That our rinkers could not have selected a better man for his position.

—Newton Pulle have written for a game to be played in their village with Lindsay on New Year's day. This would be a big attraction for the executive this week.

CALL TO REV. J. W. MACMILLAN

WINNIPEG CHURCH SEEKS THE TALENTED PASTOR OF ST. ANDREW'S, LINDSAY.

He Refused an Equally Advantageous Call from Vancouver, B. C., but Will Likely Accept This One.

The expected has happened, and the members of St. Andrew's congregation, Lindsay, are carrying long faces. Some of them spoke Christmas times because of a haunting fear that they are about to lose their beloved minister, Rev. J. W. Macmillan. It has been generally known that in the course of the last few years the congregation has had at different times calls to important congregations in other parts of the Dominion, and when, a few weeks ago, it became public that he did not intend to accept an invitation to go to Vancouver at a tempting stipend, the news was received by his congregation here with lively expressions of pleasure and satisfaction.

While Rev. Macmillan's letter of refusal was speeding westward on its way to the Coast, the congregation of St. Andrew's, Winnipeg, were busying themselves about calling about for a new minister. Their choice fell on Rev. Macmillan, and was made unanimously and unanimous. In view of fact that St. Andrew's minister had previously been present to take a prominent part in the negotiations with the Northwest Missions, and that he is known to be deeply interested in the work of Christianizing and civilizing the West, the members of the congregation feel that at last they are about to have their long cherished wishes in this regard, and that although their minister has not yet given his decision, they are sanguine of success in inducing him to accept the invitation to called in which he is deeply interested will influence his decision.

Winnipeg Presbytery Approves.

The following extract from the proceedings of Winnipeg Presbytery are reported in the Free Press, of Friday last, in connection with the above:

Prior to a note meeting of the Presbytery of Winnipeg, was held in Manitoba College, Wednesday afternoon to consider the call from St. Andrews church to Rev. John W. Macmillan, of Lindsay, Ont. Rev. John Hogg was appointed to preside as moderator, and the others present were: Revs. Dr. Bryce, Dr. Patrick, Dr. Kilpatrick, Dr. Wilson, C. H. Stewart, C. W. Gordon, D. Munro, Mr. John Stewart, Mr. John Patterson, commissioner from St. Andrew's representing the Kirk session; Mr. R. H. Scott, representing the board of management, and Dr. Chesnut, representing the congregation.

Principal Patrick reported that he had received a letter from St. Andrew's congregation, and referred to the very large attendance and the absolute unanimity and enthusiasm of the meeting as peculiarly gratifying. He stated that the standing vote it had been declared to be unanimous with that Rev. J. W. Macmillan, of Lindsay, Ont., should be the pastor elect of St. Andrew's church. An earnest desire was shown to get a minister who would meet the requirements of the congregation of the city, and of the west. From all that he had heard the better selection could hardly be made. No one who had spoken to him had expressed anything but the most cordial satisfaction and gratification at the proposed call.

On motion of Rev. Dr. Bryce, the report of Principal Patrick was approved.

People are Unanimous.

Rev. Dr. Bryce presented the documents showing the action that has been taken by the congregation, the call having been signed by 311 communicants and concurred in by 103 adherents. The communicants vote stood between 300 and 600 names; he believed that 100 of the adherent members would sign if given the opportunity of signing the call.

On motion of Rev. Dr. Bryce, seconded by Rev. Dr. Kilpatrick, the call was established as a call from the congregation, the mover spoke of the sympathy of the Presbytery with St. Andrew's congregation, and said that Mr. Macmillan would be a great acquisition to the city pastorate and to the church. The Presbytery decided to ask Rev. Warden, Rev. E. D. McLaren, and Rev. J. A. McDonald to support the call before the Presbytery of Lindsay.

The four reasons given by the congregation for preferring the translation of Mr. Macmillan should be sufficient, and should be passed by the congregational meeting; and a fifth reason should be added by the Presbytery, on motion of Rev. Dr. Bryce, namely, the great sympathy of Mr. Macmillan for home missions and the important part he has taken for the advancement of the Northwest.

It was understood that the congregation would send a representative to the meeting of the Presbytery of Lindsay, if it should be communicated, it was agreed that Mr. Macmillan accepts the call arrangements will be made at the Presbytery meeting of Presbytery on the second Tuesday in January, for his induction.

SYLVESTER BAND CONCERT.

A RICH TREAT FURNISHED BY LOCAL TALENT.

Our Bandsmen Won the Hearty Praise Of a Large Audience

Thanks to the enterprise and public spirit displayed by Mr. Leonard Sylvester, of the Sylvester Mfg. Co., in interesting himself in band affairs, Lindsay and vicinity, our citizens may again take pride in the possession of a fine musical organization, and we have the promise of ability, in the near future, to take rank with the leading bands in the province. That we are the equals of the large audience that gathered at the Academy last Friday evening to listen to the fine musical program arranged for the first concert given under the auspices of the new organization.

The band lined up on the stage, to members strong, under the leadership of Mr. Roenick, formerly of the Bowmanville Organ Co's band, who was secured by Mr. Sylvester last summer to take charge of the band, whose fitness is clearly demonstrated in the progress the members have made under his tuition. The band rendered three very difficult numbers during the evening, and their work was almost faultless—so good, indeed, that we are prepared to predict that the band will be complete without the aid of outsiders in the new organization.

"The Second number on the program was a song by Miss Alda Sylvester, "The Mission of the Violet." Her clear, sweet, soft powerful voice was heard with delight by everyone, and she had to repeat the selection. No musical program will be complete without her, unless it—numbers this young lady as one of the attractions. Mr. Allin Brown, a former pupil of the leader of the Citizens' band, now of Toronto, contributed greatly to the success of the concert. He was down for a couple of recitations, but, unable to double his contribution, and even then left his auditors yearning for more. He is a great favorite, and will always be welcomed in Lindsay.

Miss Winter's—another sweet Lindsay vocalist—rendered a beautiful song, which, in the hands of a less gifted songstress, rendered a charming love story, and was encored, but declined acknowledgment.

Mr. Halliday, comic vocalist, of Peterboro, created a good impression on the band gentleman's visit to a Lindsay audience in that character. His first number, "I'm always Taken for Somebody Else," was a recall, when he gave the semi-serious Big Ship the Victorian, which good effect. His two numbers in response to the recall were also encored.

A very pleasing and well executed clarionet solo was rendered by Messrs. Primeau, Roenick, Young, Pearce and Pulle of the band. The attack was sharp and well sustained, and the phrasing well executed.

A delightful variation was introduced in the Big Ship by Misses Laidlaw and Begbie, under cover of light refreshments, and by J. K. Begbie. The movements of these young ladies were graceful and the ladies were enthusiastically applauded and recalled. The program would not be complete without the Irish dancing addition.

Another charming number was the singing of "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden," by Messrs. Ward, Ward, Ward, Brown, Sylvester, Spier, Work, Pulle, Kirk, Ellis, Ward, Work, Simpson, McAlpine, Walker, Jarkin, Cowell, Pearce, Ward. The boys were very becoming fancy costumes, and the song was rendered with a vivacity and aroomas of expression that delighted everyone. Too much called they sang the chorus of "The Good Old Summer Time" for an encore effect.

During the evening the imperial Guitar Club, a Lindsay organization, rendered a couple of pleasing numbers.

COUNTY COUNCIL NOMINATIONS.

A Spirited Contest Assured in No. 2 Division.

The nomination of candidates for No. 2 Division of the County Council, comprising Lindsay and West Ops was held Monday in the Council chamber from 1 to 2 p.m., Mr. W. O'Boyle, reeve, only being in the town citizens were present. The proceedings were quite lively.

J. H. Hopkins, proposed to W. S. Taylor, seconded by Jas. McLean.

Joe Graham, by Jas. Donnelly, seconded by J. D. Flavelle.

Robt. Bryans, by Alex. Doxall, seconded by John H. Geary.

As only the two last candidates can be elected, there will be a lively contest for first and second place. It is expected that the fight will be between Messrs Graham and Hopkins.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC. 26, 1902.

LINDSAY AND THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

The official notice of application to parliament for a charter for the Grand Trunk Pacific, published in The Gazette last week, states that the line is to start from Graverhurst. It will go by the shortest route and easiest grades to Sudbury, and thence to Port Simpson, on the Pacific, with branch lines to Winnipeg Regina, Calgary and other places. No precise route is indicated, for that will be decided by careful surveys.

A point of special interest to Lindsay, is covered by the reply of a leading official of the Grand Trunk to the question whether the West-ern traffic to the seaboard over this new system would not be carried by a direct line from Montreal and Quebec, from Sudbury through the Ottawa region. He answer was that "it is the intention of the company to utilize the Midland division from some point near Gravenhurst, via Lindsay to Port Hope or Belleville, there to join the double-tracked main line." This will leave Lindsay on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific. It has for some time been generally understood that the Midland division from Midland bay to Port Hope or Belleville, would be double-tracked and improved in grades and other respects up to the main line, or 20th century standard, to provide adequate facilities for handling the grain trade from Georgian Bay to Montreal. An additional reason for making these extensive and desirable improvements will be found in the Pacific plans of the Grand Trunk. No doubt the section between this town and Toronto will also be improved so, if not equal that is very highly needed. As the Grand Trunk improvements are to be pushed on with all possible speed, it is quite evident that the work on the Midland will be started on a large scale during the next year.

The unexpected extension of Grand Trunk enterprise will render necessary the work of construction of an independent C. P. R. line from Midland to Peterboro, in order to escape to the C. P. R. a due share of the enormous grain trade that takes to the water at the head of the great lakes. We have good reason to believe that the C.P.R. have decided that Midland is the best Georgian Bay port for this grain trade, and it is the most convenient and most easily connected with their main Toronto-Montreal line. It will provide the easiest grades—and that is an all-important matter in the hauling of long grain trains. We believe that Midland-Lindsay-Peterboro section of the C.P.R. will be built on the merits of a grain route, quite independent of the route that may be taken by the C.P.R. line from Sudbury to Toronto. The present announcement is that the C.P.R. will build from Kleinburg on the Toronto Grey and Bruce division, through Barrie and Parry Sound to Sudbury —for the C.P.R. must now have a line of its own from the transcontinental line to the capital of the Province, and for business to be taken by Ni-agara and Buffalo.

Then if the Canada Central — to which we referred the other day—is carried on, there will be a great deal of railway building in this county and through to Sudbury in the next two or three years. It would be interesting to know who are the actual promoters of the Canada Central. We should guess Mackenzie and Mann, if the Sudbury-Lindsay-Toronto section were the only section; but the Canada Central crosses the prairies and the mountains to the Pacific. It may be "Jim" Hill; or perhaps J. Pierpont Morgan? It is not W. Sweard Webb for that owns Napoleon of railways paid $100 a seat for several seasons at the Yale-Harvard football contests, and probably cannot now finance a Pacific scheme. It is a genuine project, for the firm of solicitors would not be connected with a paper concern. No doubt the desired information will soon be made public. It will come out at the next session of Parliament, anyway.

ONTARIO FARM STATISTICS.

Farming is the backbone of our provincial industries, therefore farmers will find special interest in the following figures taken from the annual report of the Bureau of industries of Ontario for the year 1901.

The value of the average rate of wages paid farm laborers during the last twenty years shows how considerable has been the enhancement of value in this respect. Last year the average amount paid, with board, for yearly engagement, was $165; in 1900 it was $155; in 1899, $149; while the average for the last 20 years preceding 1901 was $157. Without board, in 1901 the figure was $263; in 1900, $248; in 1899, $235, and between 1882 and 1901 the average was $230 for those engaging by the month during the working season, without board the rate was $17.78 in 1901, $16.57 in 1900 and $15.38 in 1899, while the average for the twenty years from 1882 to 1901 was $16.78, while without board the figures were respectively, $27.05, $25.73, $24.93 and $26.19.

Regarding farm values and rentals, the average value of farm lands in Ontario during 1901 was $24.76 per acre, of buildings, $9.59; of implements $2.53; of live stock, $5.48; total, $42.36. Average rent per acre occupied, $1.77; cleared, $2.46. In 1899 the average value of the land was $24.06; buildings, $8.85; implements, $2.39; live stock, $5.48; total $39.28. Rent was $1.88, $2.24, cleared.

A computation of the average prices at thirty-two well distributed market points, of the most important farm products, shows the wide fluctuations which have taken place in the value of commodities fall wheat, average price for the latter six months of 1901, was 64c; spring wheat, 66.8c; barley, 45c; oats, 26.2c; peas, 65.8c; beans, $2.25; rye 49c; buckwheat, 43.4c; corn, 47c; hay, $8.50; potatoes, 26.1c; wool, 15.4c. In 1895, fall wheat was 69.9c; spring wheat, 69.8c; barley, 40c; oats, 29.1c; peas, 54.8c; beans, 94.7c; rye 45.6c; buckwheat, 36.8c; corn, 22.4c; hay, $7.07; potatoes, 20.5c; wool, 20c. Average prices for these products between 1882 and 1891 were: fall wheat, 79.7c; spring wheat, 81.2c; barley, 44.8c; oats, 31.3c; peas, 57.5c; beans, $1.01; rye, 51.6c; buckwheat, 37.7c; corn, 25.5c; average for ten years, 1892-1901; hay, $9.03; potatoes, 32.8c; wool, 17.9c.

ABOUT ABOLISHING THE BARROOMS.

(Toronto Star).

A demand is to be made on the Ontario Government to abolish the bar, and the proposal is one that will have for its support the moral sentiment of the country. Whether it will be made such an advance as public opinion warrants. We do not believe that the public sentiment is enough support to justify its adoption, and equally we do not believe that the vote polled would justify the abolition of all bars. Important as we consider the vote polled in Toronto, we do not think the people of this city would be in favor of so large an experiment.

When the number of licenses in Toronto was cut down from 200 to 150, a safe step was taken, and not a voice was heard in favor of further retrenching that step. The benefit of the reform has been apparent, and no long argument is needed to convince the people supporting the law and the other half dishonoring it. The Government could not consistently observe with a mandate at the polls to make such another advance as was made in 1900, namely, a plan whereby the number of liquor-sellers throughout the province would again be reduced. In Toronto 50 bar-rooms and licenses should be cut off. The outcome should all go. To this we think, almost the entire population will give support, as being a sound, safe measure to take at the present time. The proposal, however, to abolish the bars altogether will cause a long struggle, a doubtful conflict, with the application of no immediate reform whatever. Let the Government do that which can readily be done, and more thereafter as experience advises.

Six or eight-roomed "hotels" in Toronto is an absurdity. Almost any house in the city could meet the requirements of the Act; and such "hotels" are saloons, and nothing more. They should not have licenses. Such hotels in Toronto were given only to hotels, and if a house could not qualify for a hotel license unless it had twenty-five rooms, that would be something like a sound plan. We hope to see the Government take this course, and take it vigorously. Also increase the license fee, and devise a means by which the increased value of licenses should accrue to the city of province.

MR. ROSS TO THE ELECTORS.

Premier Ross has issued a thoughtful and fearless address to the electors of the province in view of the bye-elections which will shortly take place, and upon the result of which the fate of the Government may be said to a large extent to depend. He makes out a splendid defence of the Government against the reckless charges which have been hurled at it by Mr. Whitney. He says:

Out of the 4,101 deputy returning officers appointed, chiefly from the ranks of the Liberal party, no suspicion of fraud has arisen against any of them, except in one polling subdivision in the township of St. Vincent, in the North Riding of Grey. Where, then, were the personators that Mr. Whitney conjured up? We have not heard of one, except, in North Perth, who voted for the Conservative candidate, and where there the ballot stuffers? Not a single ballot has been shown to have been marked except by an elector, during the whole election. The number of spoiled ballots was so few as compared has come from a single voter out of 1,000 that it may be said that no ballots of this kind were tampered with. Why this fear? Was he afraid the men have no public spirit, adopt the methods of his own party in the Dominion, and be induced to make false and reckless charges for party purposes?

The misdeeds of the Conservative party are well known. Mr. Ross being called to the fact that four conservative candidates, viz., Messrs Sam-ple, Conservative, Bay in North Grey Carscallen, in Lennox, and Lennox, in North York, had sworn to recklessly expend from $500 to $700 each from the Central Conservative Fund.

The Premier follows up his exposure of Conservative corruption by recalling attention to the latest results of the forward policy of his Government, which has put at one time prominence reform legislation as the result of the expression on the public mind of the electorate of the Province. The entire pronouncements is well written and is sure to produce a wholesome effect upon the electorate.—Brantford Expositor.

Fractured His Wrist

Mr. Jas. Kennedy, an employee of the Kennedy, Duvil Co., met with a painful accident on Monday. He was engaged in loading Mr. Bert Harrison and some other men, were driving to the firm's camps in the vicinity of Janetville. In unloading a bill the sleigh slipped to one side of the road and Kennedy by some means fell off, alighting on his left hand and fracturing the wrist. He was brought to Dr. White's, where the fracture was reduced on.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In November United States domestic exports fell off $18,000,000, but imports less than in any November in five years.

The increase in the value of settlers's effects coming into Canada this year is about $2,000,000 over 1899 were $2,895,956; for 1902, $4,580,000.

The State of New York, with a population of 7,264,183, has an national guard of 14,468 men. Canada, with less than six million people, has a militia force of over 35,000.

Messages have passed by Marconi's wireless system between Lord Minto and King Edward. The distance from Table Head, Cape Breton, to Cornwall is about 1,200 miles. Everything Marconi is on the way to success.

Toronto Telegram: A truce to this talk about reforms in the Yukon. A district twice as big as Ontario, with Sifton candidate must be entirely satisfied with the sort of government it is getting, and does not deserve anything better.

The Owen Sound Sun, Independent, thinks the recklessly outrageous charges made against Mr. McKay, the Liberal candidate in North Grey, and which the Tories made no attempt to justify, will bring him at the coming bye-election. They ought to help him. Taken in connection with the Tory course in the matter of Mr. Ross's case that slander is the principal weapon of the enemy, and honest electors despise a slanderer.

Hamilton Times: "There will probably be a redistribution bill this session. Mr. Whitney's evil willings have been extracted since the last one was talked of, and although he may hiss it little, his bite is not longer dangerous. One of these days the Tory horde, kicked out six years ago by the people, will be called to give up to the chosen of the people the sheep of the province. The senate is no longer to be depended upon to frustrate Liberal measures."

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, has introduced a bill for the levying a duty off coal from Canada whenever the Canadian Parliament shall take the slightest step against the trusts. That is an offer of practical reciprocity, and it should be accepted by England would then buy coal from Nova Scotia, Vancouver Island and from the Crow's Nest, and California and Oregon would buy from Vancouver, Nova Scotia and Alberta. Premier Laurier Quebec would get their supply from Pennsylvania and Ohio. There would be a saving all around, and both countries would have the duty collected on coal. By all means let us have reciprocity in coal, and once a beginning is made the addition of other items to the international free list may be expected to follow.

EVERY ADVANTAGE!

This Store Gains is Yours

Take this statement in as broad and sweeping a sense as the words themselves will allow. The Wakeley & Ford business has this own peculiar character—

FIRST, LAST AND ALL THE TIME,

It is governed by public desire, comfort, convenience, and the wishes of the chopper is its first thought, and that these wishes may be carried out in perfect satisfaction, its second.

Of course, while the world wags, errors must creep in to mar man's highest ideals. But in this store we try to correct all mistakes, and make every wrong right, and then crush the root of the evil, so that the continued error cannot exist. It was these and other good principles that inspired the name—

THE SAFE SATISFACTORY STORE

The mercantile reciprocity which we have established between manufacturer and consumer by being able, through the plan of our Syndicate buying, to open and keep open a broader and deeper channel of communication between them and their vast tributaries, enables us to gather and distribute more merchandise than any single retail Establishment hereabout. Then by buying and selling for cash only,

We can and do sell for less than most stores in and about Lindsay.

This channel also enables us to coastantly keep in touch with the choicest and latest productions for the shoppers' selection. The prettiest, newest and best of any new-born novelty will be found here.

Every day the store is full of things of interest for man, woman and child,—of interest because of quality, variety, beauty and price economy.

When teachers and parents co-operate, as they should, home work will not be abused.

Sidewalks and roads generally were covered with a coating of ice about half an inch in thickness, and what was more unpleasant, resemble feat. Many fell by the wayside, but only a couple of trivial injuries were recorded.

M. J. CARTER, Lindsay

HONORED BY HIS EMPLOYES

THE PRESIDENT OF THE KENNEDY & DAVIS MILLING COMPANY

Now Carries a Costly Gold-headed Cane, Suitably inscribed.

On the evening of Dec. 20th Mr. Robt. Kennedy was asked by one of his employees to go over to the granting room of the painting department, where a gentleman wished to see him. Upon entering the building Mr. Kennedy was very much surprised to be greeted by loud cheers from about fifty of his men, who had previously gathered there to express to him in a practical way their appreciation of the uniform fairness which characterized all his dealings with them. Mr. Kennedy was asked to take a position in the centre of the room, when the foreman read the following address:

Robt. Kennedy, esq., Lindsay:

Dear Mr. Kennedy—This season of years and good will settles in the heart and turns the mind into thoughts of kindness. Moved by this spirit, we, your employees, wish to express to you our esteem for you, personally, and to assure you of our appreciation of your thoughtful kindness in our mutual dealings. To show thereof we ask you to accept the accompanying cane, coupled with the hope that you may be long, and keen, our good will always fresh in your mind. It may be for the before you need it as a staff to lean upon. —Signed on behalf of the men, Geo. Burton, C. Dagenais.

After the reading of the above address Mr. Kennedy was in doubt as the men for this expression of their kindly feelings towards him. He complimented them by saying he was proud to be their employer, as he believed from his knowledge of every way of any staff employed by any other firm in town. He appreciated the gift, not so much for its money value as for the expression of the relationship that existed between them and the firm. He said he was always glad to see his men progressing, and expressed the desire to do for them in the future even better than he had done in the past. He valued the gift, more than he had received it from the rich, because they had given it out of their hard earnings. In conclusion he expressed the hope that nothing would arise in the future to mar the friendly feeling which now existed between them, and hoped that he would never have occasion to use the cane as a rod of correction.

Another Presentation.

After all assembled had enjoyed a treat prepared for the occasion, Mr. Burton, foreman, was asked to step forward, when Mr. Hussey read the following address:

To Mr. George Burton, Foreman, Kennedy & Davis Milling Co., Lindsay:

We, the workmen employed by the Company under your immediate orders and superintendence, have pleasure in place on record an unqualified expression of the high esteem, respect and regard we entertain for you. Your genial disposition, respect and regard for the feelings of others, have endeared you our respect and gratitude.

We beg you to accept this easy chair as a slight token of the esteem and respect we have now feebly attempted to express, hoping that after your daily labors you may often find this a source of comfort and rest as you sit by your own fireside and remember the occasion of the gift. — On behalf of the employees, Wm. Blessey, Duncan Flower, Wm Conlin, James Miller, George Graham, James M. Kennedy.

Although Mr. Burton was very much surprised he replied in a very suitable manner, thanking the men for their generous gift. He spoke of the kindly feeling which had existed between them, and said that, although he had been foreman for these different firms, never had such gifts were employed, yet his present position was most congenial, because of the character of the men and their employer.

The crowd then dispersed after singing the old time song, "For He is a Jolly Good Fellow," and wishing each other the compliments of the season.

The Christmas Farmer's Advocate.

The Golden Fields are waving, The sun gets golder and golder, A sleeping Empire's waking, An Empire's day is breaking, A modern Empire's making, A mother Empire's dread.

The above lines were written by Cy. Warman, the clever American author who makes his home in Canada, for the beautiful Christmas issue of the Christmas Farmer's Advocate, of London, Ont., to which the readers of that every popular periodical have been treated. Some idea of the magnitude of the issue may be seen from the fact that it actually required over 101-2 tons of paper to print it! Some 30 or 40 specially written articles on every phase of agriculture by hundred themes. By the most eminent writers on the continent, in fact, in Great Britain, upwards of 100 photographs and reproductions of many of the best of modern painters. It is an unique production, every page discloses something of interest and value. We congratulate the Farmer's Advocate on its success, and the farming interests of this country on having such a splendid exponent. With a large competent staff, thoroughly understanding the practical needs of all departments of agriculture, the Advocate has laid plans for 1903 that make it indispensable to the man who wants a reliable and high-class farm paper at a very modest outlay.

ANXIOUS TO SETTLE.

President Castro Clothes U. S. Minister Bowen With Power

BLOCKADE EFFECTIVE SATURDAY

Answers Expected at Caracas by the Governments of Great Britain, Germany and Italy to the Arbitration Proposal of Venezuela—Notice of Arbitration Board on Venezuelan Soil.

Washington, Dec. 19.—President Castro is anxious to settle the matter with full powers to effect a settlement with Great Britain, Germany and Italy, and Mr. Bowen simply awaits the consent of the State Department to undertake the task, assuming that the nations named are willing that he shall undertake this work. It is stated that the official phase of the Venezuelan difficulty has been given a new turn.

Sir Robert Giffen's Views.

London, Dec. 19—The Times yesterday morning gave great prominence to a letter from Sir Robert Giffen setting forth the British Foreign Office view regard to assisting Italy and Germany against Venezuela. Sir Robert contends that the blockade will be useless against a foreign state, that the seizure of the customs will be tantamount to annexation and that it is dangerous considering the peculiar relations of Venezuela to the United States.

No Decision at London.

No answer has yet been sent or decided upon to the proposal of Venezuela for arbitration proposition. The Cabinet has not yet considered the question or discussed the matter. The question of a guarantee for the fulfilment of the stipulations arrived at remains the great point in the Government's view in the way of the acceptance of an arbitration.

It is not apparent that anything definite has resulted from yesterday's Cabinet meeting regard to the transmission by the Government of the proposal of the Venezuela's request for arbitration.

Charge d'Affaires White was in touch with the Foreign Office throughout the day. He transmitted a long despatch to the State Department at Washington, but this communication is not believed to contain anything in the nature of a definite decision.

All negotiations are being conducted with extraordinary secrecy. It is thought probable that Mr. White's despatches to Washington contained confidential enquiries from the British Government with regard to the secretary's offer to take the responsibility of Venezuela carrying out the terms of the Anglo-German Protocol. Prussia is in a position to say that Great Britain is making strenuous efforts to induce the United States to guarantee Venezuela's compliance with the terms of arbitration.

Inquiries made at the Foreign Office yesterday in the House of Commons bring out no response. The announcement that President Castro had entrusted United States Minister Bowen with full powers to arrange a settlement was received at the Foreign Office with much interest, accompanied by the remark: "So Mr. Bowen is to be the arbitrator?"

The despatch which contained this announcement was immediately taken to Foreign Secretary Lansdowne, apparently conveyed to the Foreign Office omens the first definite news that such action had been taken.

VENEZUELA'S REPRESENTATIVE.

United States Minister Bowen Authorized to Effect a Settlement.

Caracas, Dec. 19—It has been learned from an authoritative source that the allies yesterday notified the Venezuelan authorities of the raising of the blockade, to become effective Saturday, Dec. 20, at 3 p.m., of the ports of La Guayra, Puerto Cabello, Coro, Maracaibo, Carupano and Dorcelina.

Lopez Baralt, Venezuelan Minister of Foreign Affairs, has transmitted to United States Minister Bowen a document signed by President Castro, authorizing the Minister to act for the public and counterpaged by himself as Minister of Foreign Affairs, in which Mr. Bowen is recognized as the only representative of Venezuela in the matter of effecting a settlement of the present difficulty.

According to the terms of this document Mr. Bowen may act without restriction, and he is to use all means possible to protect the interests of Venezuela. The document was subjected to correction Wednesday night, and was signed late in the day before delivery. The State Department at Washington has been notified of the transmission of this instrument to Mr. Bowen.

Events have not yet depended upon the result through the State Department, of the answers of the governments of Great Britain, Germany and Italy to the proposal for arbitration advanced by Venezuela, those answers are expected to-day. Venezuela's favorable reply to the proposal seemed strongly desires that a confer-Britain, Germany and Italy to the place of the Ambassadors of Great Britain, Germany and Italy to the United States then be held in Washington, and Minister Bowen has cabled to Caracas Dec. 23 for the United States on board the Red D. Line steamer Caracas, which is due to reach New York Dec. 29. Mr. Bowen will meet the Ambassadors at Washington. No meeting to discuss terms of settlement is to be held on Venezuela soil.

Take Captures Sch. Victoria.

La Guayra, Dec. 19—The German cruiser Falke which at 3am anchored off this port, on Dec. 17, in advance of Lake Maracaibo, yesterday afternoon captured the schooner Victoria. After cutting down her main mast, thus disabling her, the Falke abandoned the vessel. The action has caused great indignation among the Venezuelan and enlistment runs high at Maracaibo where the people have been parading the streets, uttering cries against Great Britain and Germany.

BRITISH PROROGATION.

The King's Speech an Unusually Lengthy One—References to War With Venezuela—South African Prospects.

London, Dec. 19—Parliament was prorogued yesterday afternoon by royal commission. Only a score of members of the House of Commons were present when Black Rod summoned the lower House to the House of Lords to hear the King's speech, which was an unusually lengthy recapitulation of public events since January, including the action taken in connection with Venezuela, regarding which the King said:

I regret that the constant complaints which my Government found it necessary to address to the Government of Venezuela in regard to administrative acts injurious to British subjects and property during the last two years have been persistently disregarded and that it has become necessary to take measures, acting in concert with that of his Imperial Majesty the German Emperor, to obtain for my subjects redress for complaint against the Republic, to which I shall now address.

Bright Outlook For South Africa.

The speech refers to the conclusion of the South African war, and adds: "Open negotiations with Portugal offer hope that material prosperity greater than any the Portuguese East Africa Colonies have yet experienced will result from the settlement of all questions of the population may live together in friendship for each other and loyalty to the crown."

Many Subjects Dealt With.

Parliament dealt with the postponed coronation, the colonial conference and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's tour; which, together, are expected to be of the utmost value, both in respect to their immediate effect and as precedents in the future."

Other topics touched upon were the expedition against the Sultan of Mullah and the cooperation of Italy therein, the treaties between Chili and Argentina of the British boundary question, and the alliance between Great Britain and Japan, which, I believe, will be of advantage to both countries and contribute to the maintenance of general peace in the extreme east."

The parliament was prorogued until Feb. 17.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The Vale Railroad Company Wins Its Suit Against Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants.

London, Dec. 20—After a long trial in the King's Bench division of the High Court of Justice the case of the Taff Vale Railroad Company against the Amalgamated Society of Railroad Servants, involving many questions of the legal importance to trade unionism, resulted yesterday in a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs. The latter complained of malicious molestation, picketing, intimidation, during the strike of 1900-1900. The judge reserved his decision on the question of damages until the next sitting of the court.

Danger Now Passed.

Washington, Dec. 22 — Secretary Wilson believes that the danger of the spread of the foot and mouth disease from New England to other States has passed. He says in a few weeks every animal affected or exposed to the disease will have been destroyed.

ALLAN LINER SIBERIAN'S STORY

Three Schooners, With Crews Aggregating Twenty-Three Men, Are Missing—A Government Tug Has Gone in Search of Them, Although It Is Feared They Have Been Lost—Other Wrecks.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 18—The Allan liner Siberian arrived here yesterday afternoon. She encountered various gales, which swept her decks and smashed her lifeboats.

Three schooners, with crews aggregating twenty-three men, are missing, and the Government has dispatched a tug to search for them.

Perhaps Six Lost.

Fears are entertained for the safety of the schooner Ballity, which left North Sydney sixteen days ago for Charlottetown. She has not yet arrived at her destination, and it is feared that she has foundered with the captain and crew of six men.

Schooner Carried to Sea.

A despatch from New Chelsea, N. S., states that during a freshet on the East River to-day the ice broke and swept the schooner Belle from her moorings and carried her seaward. The vessel has a cargo of potatoes and oats. The captain and crew reached shore in safety.

Crew Went Down.

Picton, Dec. 18—A schooner, supposed to be the John R. Noyes, went ashore at Salmon Point Tuesday night. A lifeboat was despatched to the scene of the wreck yesterday, but was late. The vessel went to pieces and the crew, if on her at all, are all lost. No signs of life had been noticed aboard. The Noyes left Oswego last Thursday with coal for the Hubbon Company, Deseronto, Ont. Considerable wreckage came ashore yesterday afternoon and among other things a piece of the schooner with "John R. Noyes" on it.

Score of Men Missing.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 18—The steamer S. E. Martin, a lumber carrier, with the schooner Charles Spademan in tow, are reported missing. The Martin had a crew of twelve or fourteen and the Spademan a crew of ten or twelve. The boats left here December 12 for Port Huron.

Caught in the Ice.

Detroit, Dec. 18—The steamer S. E. Martin and log tow, the schooner Charles Spademan, are in the ice in Lake Erie, about ten miles below the mouth of the River. They are not believed to be in any immediate danger.

Barge Goes Ashore.

Watertown, N. Y., Dec. 18—The coal barge Lake Stevenson of the Ogdensburg Coal and Towing Company, which broke her tow in a terrific gale on Lake Ontario ten miles off Point Vincent, Tuesday night, after drifting all night, went ashore at Stony Point, yesterday afternoon. Five men is safe at Henderson, and it is believed the barge may be saved. The barge, including the action taken in connection with Venezuela, regarding which the King said:

I regret that the constant complaints which my Government found it necessary to address to the Government of Venezuela in regard to administrative acts injurious to British subjects and property during the last two years has been persistently disregarded and that it has become necessary to take measures, acting in concert with that of his Imperial Majesty the German Emperor, to obtain for my subjects redress for complaint against the Republic, to which I shall now address.

Many Subjects Dealt With.

Parliament dealt with the postponed coronation, the colonial conference and Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's tour; which, together, are expected to be of the utmost value, both in respect to their immediate effect and as precedents in the future."

Other topics touched upon were the expedition against the Sultan of Mullah and the cooperation of Italy therein, the treaties between Chili and Argentina of the British boundary question, and the alliance between Great Britain and Japan, which, I believe, will be of advantage to both countries and contribute to the maintenance of general peace in the extreme east."

The parliament was prorogued until Feb. 17.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The Vale Railroad Company Wins Its Suit Against Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants.

London, Dec. 20—After a long trial in the King's Bench division of the High Court of Justice the case of the Taff Vale Railroad Company against the Amalgamated Society of Railroad Servants, involving many questions of the legal importance to trade unionism, resulted yesterday in a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs. The latter complained of malicious molestation, picketing, intimidation, during the strike of 1900-1900. The judge reserved his decision on the question of damages until the next sitting of the court.

Danger Now Passed.

Washington, Dec. 22 — Secretary Wilson believes that the danger of the spread of the foot and mouth disease from New England to other States has passed. He says in a few weeks every animal affected or exposed to the disease will have been destroyed.

A PACIFIC BLOCKADE.

Premier Balfour Says Such a Thing is Preposterous.

STATE OF WAR WITH VENEZUELA

Arbitration Is Urged—Citizens of Caracas Ask President Castro to Yield—Britain Will, as Far as Possible, Sugarcoat the Nauseous Pill and Treat the Ships of All Neutral Powers Alike.

London, Dec. 18.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Healy, Irish Nationalist, asked if the United States assented to a blockade which would exclude neutral warships.

The Premier replied:—"Neutrals are not consulted when you are in a state of war with a third party."

"Is war declared?" asked Mr. Healy.

The Premier replied:—"Does the hon. member suppose that without a state of war you can take vessels from a friendly nation?"

Replying to further questions, Mr. Balfour said he had nothing to add regarding action taken beyond what was contained in his previous statement on the subject. Papers on the subject of the blockade between the United States and Great Britain.

Mr. Balfour's statement made in reply to the desire of the Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, for information on the Venezuelan situation.

After referring Lord Lansdowne's statement in reply to the same in the Lords Tuesday the Premier continued:—"The blockade will be carried out. Great Britain has no intention along different portions of the coast, and although the fleets will have the same objects they will not act in concert. We never had any intention of landing troops in Venezuela or of occupying territory, even temporarily. We do not think it desirable on either military or other grounds. All the complications arising such a blockade have been carefully considered and will be published in due time for the information of neutrals. The government is almost anxious that these operations, the necessity for which we deeply regret, should be as little inconvenient to neutrals as they possibly can be made. No distinction will be made between the vessels of the various neutral powers. We think it is quite likely that the United States will think that they cannot be such a thing as a "Pacific blockade," and I, personally, take the same view. Evidently, a blockade involves a state of war."

Mr. Balfour concluded his statement by saying he could make no announcement as to whether offer of arbitration from Venezuela will be accepted by Great Britain.

President Castro Is Willing.

London, Dec. 18—A despatch to The Daily Mail from Willemstad, Curacao, dated December 17, says the Venezuelan rebels are approaching Valencian. The inclination of Castro is urging President Castro to resign.

It is rumored in Willemstad, says the correspondent, that President Castro is hiding.

It is reported that British marines have landed at Ciudad, Bolivar, on the Orinoco.

Appeals For Arbitration.

Caracas, Dec. 18—It has been decided that the Venezuelan ports shall be arbitrated, and the discussion of terms of settlement is now going on. United States Minister Bowen undoubtedly will be one of the arbitrators. There is considerable fears that coercive measures will follow the establishment of the blockade.

U.S. Will Not Kick.

Washington, Dec. 18.—There will be no effort on the part of the Government to resist a war blockade of the Venezuelan coast as against neutrals ships. Custom requires that due notice shall be given of the blockade and that it be made in connection with the declarations that have been made in the British Parliament by authorized representatives of the Government, will, it is understood, be observed as to all neutral nations in the undoubtedly friendly sense in which it is actually exist. This might, in the end require the issue of a proclamation of neutrality by President Roosevelt, but, if such it is stated, would not be timely now.

Attitude of South America.

New York, Dec. 19—The following are summaries of replies to despatches addressed by the Associated Press to its correspondents in the most prominent South American and Central American States, asking for the position of each Government on the Venezuela situation.

Peru—Newspapers favor collective action by the South American Republics in support of Venezuela. Government will not take any action.

Bolivia, Salvador and Ecuador—Same as above.

Argentina and Chili—Public sympathy with Venezuela.

Brazil—Absolutely indifferent; no sympathy for Castro.

Colombia—Public has no friends in the Government, but sympathy in with Venezuela on general grounds.

Spain and Germany Not Alone.

Caracas, Dec. 18—The Spanish Minister to Venezuela, Senor Gastor de Ayala, and the Belgian Chargé d'Affaires, Baron Van Der Hoyde, have presented a joint note addressed to Venezolan Minister of Foreign Affairs in which they state that the claims of other foreign powers are paid by Venezuela, that the Government given these powers be accorded to Spain and Belgium.

Pardon For 58 Students.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 20—The Czar has granted amnesty to the students who were banished for rioting on his name day. His Majesty's telegram to the Minister of the Interior, which is equivalent to an Imperial decree, pardons fifty-eight students who were banished, in addition to sixty-two students previously pardoned.

R. O. Hally Charged With Stealing $200 From Dominion Express Co. by Exchanging Bogus Cheques.

Toronto, Dec. 19.—Robert O. Hally, ledger-keeper at the Parliament street branch of the Bank of Commerce, was taken into custody last night on the charge of stealing $200 from the Dominion Express Company. Hally, according to his own story, is but 16 years of age, but looks much older. He is a son of a prominent boot and shoe dealer living at 12 Churchill avenue. Until a week ago when he went to stop at the Iroquois Hotel, he lived at the home of his parents. He denies his guilt.

On Wednesday afternoon a young man of respectable appearance went into the Dominion Express Company's office at Yonge and Wellington streets and called for four money orders for $50 each, payable to the order of Richard Hamilton of Hamilton. In payment he accepted cheque on the Parliament street branch of the Bank of Commerce, signed by J. H. Harvey, was given to the young man went away, taking the money with him.

Yesterday morning a little before 10 o'clock he was back at the express office. He explained that he had sent the orders to the person in whose favor they were made, but the recipient could not cash them for the reason that he could not get identified. He produced the orders and wanted his money back from him. The money was paid over, and a few hours afterwards the cheque was found to be forged. It was thought at first that the cheque was marked with a bogus signature of a bank on which it was drawn.

At about 5 o'clock W. J. Mitchell, cashier of the Canadian Express Co., went to the Parliament street branch of the Bank of Commerce to see if J. D. Harvey had an account there. He had a talk with the manager, who summoned Hally into his office and the conversation ensued.

Mitchell, it is said, at once recognized Hally as the man who had passed the cheque on him and told the manager so. James Walsh of the Dominion Express Co. was summoned in order that there might be no doubt about the identification. Mr. Walsh also recognized Hally and detective Davis was called in to place him under arrest.

Hally stubbornly denied all knowledge of the bogus cheque.

SALARIES SOARING.

Principal Hartstone and Three Assistants Granted an Increase

BY THE BOARD OF EDUCATION LAST TUESDAY.

Francis st. School Can be Made Fairly Comfortable at Small Expense, Says Mr. Stapples—Resignation of Mr. McWatters.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held last Tuesday in the Council chamber, at 8 o'clock. The members present were Chairman T. Stewart and Messrs. J. D. Flavelle R. Kennedy, D. R. Anderson, P. G. Pikie, Stapples, W. Hargraft, J. Macmillan, Blanchard and Rev. J. W. Macmillan; absent, Messrs. John Kennedy, Carew, Hartley, J. Deacon and D. Jeffers.

The Quiet for His.

Secretary Tripp read a communication from Mr. McWatters, in which the latter tendered his resignation as a member of the Board.—Laid on Table.

Strict vs. Loose Methods.

Chairman Stewart said that at last meeting of the Board the question had been asked if the schools would close for the Christmas vacation on Friday, 19th, or on Monday, the date fixed by the school regulations. No decision had been arrived at, yet teachers and school trustees had to have gotten the impression that the schools would close Friday.

Mr. Stapples—"I think we might as well close Friday."

Mr. Stewart—"I don't know about that; we met last year and agreed on several times every year — on Thanksgiving day for instance. I think it is our duty to teach the teachers something when we get the chance, and it would be a valuable lesson if we let it be understood that in the matter of holidays we intend to be guided by the school law."

Mr. Stapples—"We might as well dismiss the schools Friday, because very few pupils would attend on Monday."

Rev. Macmillan — "Yes, Monday would be very restless day; the number of pupils from outside points had not the right to expect to be present."

Mr. Stewart—"It may be the wisest thing to do in this case, but do not approve of the principle."

Moved by Mr. R. Kennedy, seconded by Rev. Macmillan, that the Collegiate Institute and Public Schools close Friday, 19th inst., and remain closed till after the school vacation.—Carried.

Francis st. School.

Mr. Stapples, chairman of the managing committee, said he had visited Francis st. school and had discovered that the water complained of by Mr. Anderson at last meeting had been caused by snow drifting in at night through an open ventilator. He didn't think it would be worth while going to the expense of putting in new windows, as suggested, as the teacher complained more about the cold floor than anything else. With a new floor laid on top of the present one, felt paper between, and another storm window, he believed the room would be fairly comfortable for a time. It would be a mistake to undertake expensive repairs, as a new school will have to be built in the near future.

Mr. R. Kennedy—"A new floor of basswood will cost $22 laid down; give $24. Don't will never answer long as the other."

Mr. Stapples and Mr. Pikie were authorized to have the above improvements made during the Christmas vacation.

The Question of Salaries.

Moved by Mr. D. R. Anderson, seconded by Mr. J. D. Flavelle, that Mr. C. H. Hartstone, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, be re-engaged for 1903 at a salary of $1100—an advance of $300—and that Messrs. Stewart, Hartley and Collins be re-engaged at a salary of $1200 each—an advance of $200 each.

In amendment of the motion Mr. Anderson said he felt for some time that the Board should make the increases mentioned for three reasons: 1st, because Mr. Hartstone is receiving only $1400, the lowest salary paid in the Province to the Principal of a school of similar standing. He understood that $1700 was paid in Pembroke. 2nd, because of the increased cost of living everyone knows that it costs now considerably more to live than it did a few years ago. Mr. Hirstone has been with us a long time, and the school has progressed under his superior guidance. 3rd, because Mr. Hartstone's tried and capable assistants, while not underpaid to the degree he considers Mr. Hartstone's case, were also affected by the increased cost of living, and they were entitled to a small increase.

Mr. Flavelle said he seconded the motion with a great deal of pleasure. The Board had been occupying the undignified position of paying its principal a smaller salary than was paid to the principal of any similar school in the Province—in a matter of fact, only six of the inferior schools were paying as low a salary. We all know and the fact is recognized all over the Province, that Lindsay Collegiate Institute has a very high standing. The increase manner in Mr. Hargraves, who had been with us 15 years, was well merited, and the good work of his assistants was deserved some recognition. It would be very strange if some of them did not feel compelled to seek elsewhere the recognition they were entitled to—the Board had failed in the past some extent in the matter of paying salaries in a weak Principal, and there should be no hesitation about paying a strong man a fair salary.

Mr. R. Kennedy said he agreed in the main with the remarks of Messrs. Anderson and Flavelle. He believed the Principal should receive $1000; but he was in favor of increasing the salaries of Messrs. Stewart, Hartley and Collins $100 each.

Mr. Stapples—"Why do the never and seconder favor so great a difference between the increases? I am prepared to vote for an increase of $100; to Mr. Hazstone.

Mr. Anderson—"As I explained, my idea in making Mr. Hartstone's increase $300 was the being 15 salary somewhere near the figure paid elsewhere, and being above the average salary paid in schools of the same class.

Mr. Flavelle—Mr. Stapples will be interesting to the Board to know exactly what the views been neutral report that we have been paying Mr. Hartstone little more, he is not the man for us, or we have not been treating him fairly. That pay is the main we want last, and it is the continued success of the school. We have not been underpaying the other teachers to the same extent, and we could fill any of their places easier than we could fill that of Mr. Hazstone. We will be doing scant justice to our principal if we give him an increase of $200; we are doing fair justice to the others in granting them $50 each."

Mr. Stapples—"We must be guided somewhat by the financial condition of the town—we can't always be as generous as we would like to be, and it should not be forgotten that Mr. Hartstone was paid less than the other teachers."

Mr. Macmillan thought that Mr. Stapples' difficulty would be avoided if a vote was taken on each school to ship. The captain did not labor yet hard as any member of the crew, but upon his report a great deal depends. He was responsible for the safety of the ship and all on board, and although he might consult with his mates when porpoising over the chart upon which the ship's course was laid down, he had been looking into the conditions prevailing in the Collegiate Institute, and he realized that a man who was underpaid for the work he did was not in as good a position to do the work as he would be if he was paid what he considered his services were worth.

Mr. Blanchard—"I do not think we are justified in advancing Mr. Hartstone's salary more than $100, and so for the other teachers we cannot afford to make them."

Mr. Pikie—"It is certain that Mr. Hartstone is materially advance in the cost of living, and the increase is not sufficient."

Mr. McWatters took the same view as Mr. Anderson, and contended that the town was hardly in a position to stand any increase in low school rate.

The discussion referred to Mr. Hartstone's pronounced qualifications as a teacher and his pronounced executive ability—qualities which the Board should be prepared to take into account in the matter of salary. Some objected to the several increases strictly from the financial point of view, it was urged that the town had a large debt, but we spend money for necessities, and we should not begrudge less than some. Good people and other public utilities are unpopular, but in his opinion education should be the last place to begin cutting down.

Mr. Stapples—"I have no desire to disparage the work being done by the Principal, but I feel we can't afford the increase."

Chairman Stewart—"If $200 seems a big increase we must remember that that matter of a larger salary follows. The work of obtaining pupils—the increase should have been given some years ago. The Principal ought to receive as high a salary as is paid in other schools of the same class. The position demanded the possession of peculiar qualifications in addition to actual teaching knowledge, and experience had proved that Mr. Hartstone possessed the requisite qualities in a marked degree. Higher education is the imperative need of Canada, and the citizens of Lindsay will be doing well if they assume their share of the obligation. While the salary rate is a little low, it should remember that our system of education would be much dearer and inferior to equate than at present."

A vote was then taken, and the motion was lost, the following being carried, Dr. Blanchard and Mr. Stapples being the only dissenters:

"The resignation of Mr. McWatters be then accepted, after which the Board adjourned.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

THE ANNUAL MEETING HELD ON THURSDAY THE 18TH.

Interesting Address by Mr. W. O'Connor Toronto—Election of Officers—Work if the Local Society Set Forth by Dr. Herriman.

The annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held on Thursday 18th, in the Council chamber, and was largely attended. Dr. Herriman, president, occupied the chair, and there were a number of our leading citizens in attendance at all the good public work, and who have done a great deal in helping the poor and unfortunate children in this district.

At o'clock the president of the local society, Dr. Herriman, took the chair and called upon the Rev. Mr. Strike to lead in prayer. After this Mrs. Sharpe, the secretary, read the minutes of last meeting, and also presented her annual report, which were on motion adopted. It was the eighth annual report, and was a most encouraging and concise one. Mrs. Crew, Treasurer, presented the statement of the receipts and expenditures of the society during the year, showing a balance of $21.80 on hand. On motion the report was adopted.

Officers for 1903.

The following nominating committee were appointed to elect officers for the ensuing year: Dr. White, Rev. Mr. Strike, Rev. Mr. Tyrer, Mrs. Workman, Mrs. Sharpe, Mrs. Well, Mrs. Crew, Mrs. Cowan and Mr. McWilliams. This committee adjourned to the vestry to prepare the ticket, and Dr. Herriman entertained the audience by giving a very interesting address touching on the good work done by the society. He did not believe in being a jailbird should not befall these poor unfortunate waifs and should be handed over to the Children's Aid Society and cared for.

The committee reported the following as their choice for the various offices, which were adopted: Dr. Herriman, Vice-President, Mr. Kelly, 1st Vice-President, Mr. Knight, Mr. Kitchener and Mr. Sellwood, Sec., Mrs. Sharpe; Treas., Mrs. Crew; Council, Revs. Marsh, Spencer, Strike, Bingham, Tyrer, Deacon Casey, Macmillan, Messrs. Hodgins, Grieve, McWilliams, Braithwick, Macklemore Walden, Whitesides, Bradley, Mills, Cowan, Pikie, Sinclair, Miss Hornsbee; Auditors, Mr. A. Campbell and J. C. Ellis; Solicitors, Mr. L. V. Cosens, M. A.; Mr. Kelly, Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Sellwood.

On account of the lateness of the train Mr. O'Connor, of Toronto, Assistant Superintendent of Neglected and Neglected Children, arrived in the meantime Miss Workman, Victoria st., favored the audience with a pleasing instrumental selection after which Mr. O'Connor was introduced by the President, and for over half an hour he entertained the audience by giving a very interesting address dealing with the good work that is being carried out by the Province for the society.

Children's Aid Society, said Mr. O'Connor, is a good-speed primarily for the child, and good for the community. We are paying attention to the improvement of the out of-private-school, which is a very good work, but we ought to give more attention to the out of school. That can be done in no better way than by extending the work of Children's Aid Societies. The motto of these societies ought to be "The best way to reform a criminal is to prevent the boy from ever being a criminal." When a child is being raised in an environment of evil we can expect it will almost probably be well develop into a burden or a menace to society. If such children are removed from their present surroundings, and allowed to grow up naturally, we save the cost they would cost us in the minutes of our policemen or jails and make of them a benefit to society. The government of Ontario pays over one-half a million of dollars each year for the administration of justice. In Toronto the municipality bear the expense of police force, jails and courts. The work of civilizing not only saves the child, but also prevents the expense of the criminal maintenance would otherwise have been. Even in the country districts there is work for Children's Aid Societies to do. We have and some of the most degraded people from the country, yet the neighbors were so kind to them, in the consideration that they did not see the injustice of it. Men did not appreciate the danger to their own children of example Lindsay will be a good place for such a society.

Too much credit is given to heredity. Children are what we make of the head. "You cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear." But you may make a respectable leathern one, and not many of us can truthfully be blamed to sikken jeans. The vices and weaknesses of parents have an effect on the formation of their children's characters, but not nearly so much as training and environment. Place the child of vicious, degraded parents in good surroundings and he will accommodate himself to those surroundings; place the young child of good parents in evil surroundings—how many times will he some out unscathed? We have children to remain in conditions under which we would be a miracle if they did not grow up to be criminals—we have to punish them for their wrong doing.

Theology is a dangerous question in which to speculate, but it is fairly safe doctrine to say that men will be judged according to the opportunities they enjoyed. It is no argument to say that a child is born in a place his moral responsibility, to say that he should be held because training and circumstances were too strong for him, and he was too good for the same reason.

Other Features.

After this Mr. Cunningham, of Toronto, gave an exhibition of magic lantern views, rendering the pictures of the Hon. J. M. Gibson, founder of the Children's Aid Society, Superintendent; Dr. Herriman, and many others showing children in their pitiable condition in big cabins and their large proportionately to the money taken care of by the Society.

Those views were interesting throughout.

During the evening Miss Workman and Mr. J. P. Morris each rendered pleasing selections, which were much appreciated. Votes of thanks were tendered to Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Cunningham, also to Mr. Halls, representative of the Newcombe Piano Co., for kindly loaning the piano, and to Miss Workman and Mr. Morris. The meeting then dispersed.

A LETTER TO SANTA CLAUS.

The Youthful Sender Evinces an Unselfish spirit and Deserves a Visit from the Fairy Gift-giver.

Yesterday the sanctum of The Post was invaded by a lovely little miss of about seven summers, who held in her hand a square envelope, knowing that it contained a personal item, the editor reached for the minutes, when the following address, written in a childish hand, was drawing critical spirit met his eyes:

SANTA CLAUS,
The Post Office Lindsay,
Ontario.

When questioned the child explained, in a voice trembling with excitement, that the letter was the first she had ever had ever written to Santa and he wanted to post it at once "because I want it early—early." We promised to see that the letter reached its destination in time. As the letter was not sealed we took the liberty of copying it word for word for the benefit of our readers.

"Lindsay, Dec 17, 1902.

Dear Santa Claus—I would please bring me a pair of hocky skates, one hockey stick, lantern, a pair of mogiones, and a steam boat, and if you would bring me a hockey ball and a puck, and if you would go to the stable and bring Dolly and Dapple and bring my brother Earl a sled, and bring him a doll that squeals and a little stocking full of different kinds of candy, and bring Nid a hocky stick, a puck in the box and some candy canes in the box and magoane and candies nut and other things.

And my sister Blanche a doll carriage and a doll jack in the box and a doll and a doll that will open and shut its eyes.

Curling Notes.

Mr. John Kerr, captain of the Scottish curlers, is the author of a work on the rosarin game, and can tell long Peter Bruce (pied-up-the-wick" off King Edward's guards at Balmedie.

—Toronto Telegram: Shall the Scotchmen play all their outside games in Toronto? Some people feel that the various curling centres of the province should visit Toronto at a stepance. It would be real nice to have a spell of curling in honor of Queen City, with a series of games and banquets and receptions, and it would also have claims. Toronto is not the country of a year, but it is the city that she is in the habit of doing much to entertain the visitors from the country occasions. Consequently, as the Scotsmen are the guests of the province rather than of Toronto the outside clubs should invite the Scotsmen as to where and how they should meet the visitors. Toronto curlers would urge to the trouble to arrange a bonspiel they (whatever) not a bad one, and it would be unfair to tinart a bonspiel on them.

—"Don't think those Scotch curlers won't wet the ice when they get to curling. They may not be as well up on the fine points of the game as Canadians and may not have the same knowledge of turns and nurrow; but they play the driving game, and have running shot after shot, and those sounding shots break the heart of many a skip. Dunbar, the Winnipeg curler, plays the driving game, and let me tell you he's the most formidable skip in the West. Look out for the Scotch. But from this distance it looks as if they are bringing an entire outfit of skips, and if that be the case you can some of the chickest Scotch arguand around the rinks and boat ments served out. For one man who feels will be firmly convinced that he knows the game better than the man who is directed to do the thinnes the game better than everybody else—and there will be very agree on the shot that should be played. Oh, there will be lots of fun if Tom Sayre are all skips."

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY.

Report of the Year's Work.

The following statement was read at Thursday's quarterly meeting of the Children's Aid Society by the Secretary, Mrs. E. E. Sparrow:

Mr. President and members,—Herefords your Secretary the greatest of pleasure in the annual opportunity of presenting to you the 8th annual report of the C. A. Society of the County of Victoria.

According to Burns, "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn" and the Secretary has yet passed those words no painted a sad and true picture that still confronts us on every hand. Daily the day is not far distant when, as a result of the labors of the Prov. Govt. of Ontario, it may be truly said that "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands glad," and the name of the Hon. J. M. Gibson, father of the Children's Protection Act in the Ontario Legislature, will be held in grateful remembrance—we will even venture to say that in this day there is more more Heaven-ordained act on the statute of the Parliamentary Province of Dominion. We hear some mourning over the weakness of the Empire. Is there a grander opportunity for empire building than by properly caring for the wards of the state?

A short time ago a little baby, only a few weeks old, orphaned by the death of her young mother, was offered to our local society on account of the inability of the father and unwillingness of its nearest kin to care for it. The child was not accepted as a ward of the society, but through the medium of the Provincial Department for Neglected, Dependent and Delinquent Children, and with the aid of the local press, the child was placed in a good home, was adopted by loving foster-parents, and is looking a treasure in that home. Three other babes have been placed in a similar manner in this town and community.

In reporting this work done by our local society in the past year we are able to say that a goodly amount of good work has been accomplished. We cannot compare the work of the closing year with that of any previous year, for the reason that considerable of the time of our meeting in former years has been taken up in discussing and trying to find a suitable home for our wards, and four of the most neglected and destitute of our children have been rescued and are now enjoying the comforts of good homes. Three waywards and incorrigibles have been brought under the influence of the prompt and able assistance of Chief Operative Hall, and Chief Constable Brock, of Toronto. Falls All are now doing well under the supervision of the Industrial Superintendent and our society.

Our statistical report is as follows: 6 meetings have been held during the year, the average attendance being 7; number of children returned to the society 3; number of children replaced by the society, 4; number of children returned from foster parents, 2; number taken under guardianship or adoption, 1; number placed out by the society, 7; total 11 children have been directly cared for. A Burnaby boy also received some attention.

Evidently there is not so very much destitution in this locality, and poor as is fairly good condition, but there is one great evil before us that will rapidly and surely have a bad effect upon many of the youthful ones in our midst, if not immediately curtailed or prohibited, and this evil is the cigarette. Sad to say, our town and county are being rapidly contributed to the Victoria Industrial School by reason of boys whose crime is the cigarette.

Before closing our report we beg to mention the good will which is accorded our society towards our work by all classes in the community. We have recently received from the County Council a grant of $75 and have on hand $31.53. After expending $76.38 during the year, there is still a balance. Several articles of useful clothing have been donated us by friends in town.

Found His Wife Dying.

Mrs Robert Boots, wife of Reeve of Amherst township, died last Only Thursday last. She was in her usual good health when Mr. Boots left the house at an early hour to drive to Odessa. On his return an hour he found her unconscious and she died before the doctor reached the house.

ROSS MEMORIAL HOSPITAL.

Two Cases of Blood Poisoning and Difficult Operation.

There are some seventeen patients at present in the Ross Memorial Hospital. Among them are two cases of blood poisoning. A couple of weeks ago Alfred Forth, made to Engineer Rock Yarnold, of the G.T.R., knocked some skin from the back of his hand. He paid little attention to the wound until the hand became swollen and painful, and when a doctor was consulted it was found that blood poisoning had set in. Mr. Forth is now under treatment at the hospital and is in a serious condition.

The other case is that of Oliver Kallet, a simple scratch on a finger being the origin of his trouble. Prompt and effective treatment has prevented fatal results. For a couple of days it was doubtful whether he would pull through or not.

During the past week a skilled operation was performed at the hospital for the relief of Mrs. Ward, by the removal of a cancer from the breast of a young lady resident of the town.

Good Form.

(Columbus Journal.)

Mr. Finky—Miss Shagalough wears a very short skirt, doesn't she?

Miss Flighty—Well, she has a better right.

Mr. Finky (half aloud—Um—it is pretty fine. I admit, and her left, too!

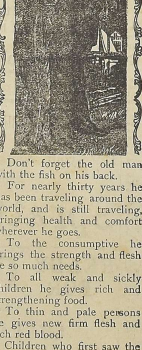
An Ancient Strike.

Probably the oldest on record is that of the bakers engaged in baking the shewbread for the Temple, which they had to do two years before the destruction of the building by Titus. The Temple authorities engaged a number of journeymen from Alexandria to take the place of the striking bakers, but the comers not being initiated into the secrets of the craft, the shewbread of the Jerusalem bakers had to be consumed.

Pensions for Old Employees.

(Montreal Witness.)

In establishing an old age pension system for its employees the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. has given another proof that its reputation for business wisdom is not undeserved. Government is responsible that men who have served them long and faithfully are entitled to a pension for old age, and some of the great employ thousands are now adopting the same policy as Bazaf and Russian employers do. Men on their advance in years feel the need of provision for the future. This is the idea that underlies the work of the Society of Pensions, the many forms, and directors of big companies would rather, by their generosity, enlist it in their service. Thursday, at the president of the C.P.R. says in his address, it holds up among the employees a feeling of permanency and security, quite an enlarged interest in the company's welfare, and a desire to remain in and devote their best efforts and attention to the company's service. That these results will be attained, there can be no doubt, for the plan appeals to the strongest human motives, and the men in operation of all connected with the company by making every man in the employ feel that his welfare is part of our business. This is a service which can be rendered by large institutions like a railway or a company whose permanency can to a great extent be counted on but which should be done for private firms and insurance companies, which in this country seem to open to some extent, unworked field of enterprise.



Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back.

For a early thirty years he has been travelling around the world, and is still travelling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings new strength and flesh he so much needs.

To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

To pale and pale persons he gives new firm flesh and rich red blood.

Children who first saw the old man with the fish are now grown up and have children of their own.

He stands for Scott's Emulsion of pure cod liver oil—a delightful food and a natural tonic for children, for cold folks and for all who need flesh and strength.

PETERBORO NAVIGATION RETURNS

An Increase in Number of Lockages and in Financial Receipts.

Navigation records for the past season on the Otonabee River and Rice Lake show that it has been a very successful one, much more so than that at any time during the history of the locks. Navigation opened on April 10th, the first boat of the season being the "Beaver" with a barge, and the last boat was the "Water Lily," November 22nd. During the month of June, July and August, and first half of September, the total number of passengers on excursions, while after that there were other passengers of grain brought up from points on lake and river, as well as wood, lumber and live stock, the latter being principally cattle. The total for the year by Mr. Collins, lockmaster, show that there was a grand total of 801 steamers, 174 barges and 25 rafts in a total of 1000. Of the 174 barges, 40 were loaded with cordwood, which is a good showing, for it was supposed the traffic would have died out in any other point on Trent Valley waters. The financial return for the season during the last twelve years are interesting for purposes of comparison and are given herewith: 1890, $19,835; 1891, $21,811; 1892, $18,747; 1893, $18,16; 1894, $811.15; 1895, $28,118; 1896, $24,158; 1897, $25,[illegible]; 1898, $407.57; 1899, $15,186; 1900, $326; 1901, $350.51; 1902, $501.74.—Review.

CHRISTMAS JOY.

"What means this glory round our feet?"

The Magi mused, "more bright than noon?"

A star descended, and it paused, and voices chanted clear and sweet, "To-day the Prince of Peace is born!"

"What means this star?" the shepherd said, "that brightens through the rocky glen?"

And angels, answering overhead, Sang: "Peace on earth, good-will to men!"

'Tis eighteen hundred years or more Since those voices thrilled the night, dumb;

We wait for him, like them of yore;

Alas! he seems so slow to come.

But, lo! the Christ-child, cradled low

No time or sorrow can shut out,

The truth that those angels sang, shall blow

To perfect fruit to come to him.

All round about us it not shall shine

A light like that the wise men saw,

We are looking for the same sign

To that sweet life which is the law.

So shall we learn to understand

The simple faith of shepherds, then,

And, with humble minds and hearts, sing "Peace on earth, good-will to men!"

—James Russel Lowell.

L. C. I. Notes.

—The Collegiate Institute has received from the Ontario Government a sample seal of metric weights and measures, with chart. The set is valued at $20, and is specially valuable to the Collegiate because of the instructions it is to give in the metric system adopted in Canada. The Collegiate is indebted to Treasurer McCarthy for presenting this gift, by having made application to the Department at Ottawa, as the latter accompanying the gift states.

Fun for Young and Old.

St. Andrew's church was crowded last night on the occasion being the annual Christmas tree and entertainment in connection with the Sabbath school. Rev. Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Macmillan opened the evening's proceedings by leading in prayer, after which a very pleasant program was rendered. Mr. W. E. Campbell and Miss Edna Williamson, as Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, gave a very pleasant "Talk" on the "Growing Old." Mr. N. B. Mossop, in representation of Santa Claus, rendered "Dear Friends, I Have Missed My Calling." Miss Lizzie Ward and Master Ward, choruses given by fifteen small boys and girls, and a duet by Misses Ward, exceedingly delightful. The "Messenger Boy" by Master Ward, and a duet by two of the numbers, Master Scott's "Ragtime Band" and "Mr. Mercury," was well received. After the distributor of presents took place.

The Reciprocity Question.

(Sportsman (Weekly Sun.)

Does anyone deny that the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 was beneficial to Canada? Did it in any way compromise her political independence? Did it not, on the contrary, put an end to a strong secession movement which had been sent on foot by commercial distress consequent on exclusion from the markets of the continent? Was not its termination owing to the hostile feeling of the governing classes in England towards the Americans at the time of the Civil War, felt as a blow to the commerce and industry of the country? Is it now sought, in effect, as the restoration of that treaty, which monopolizes on both sides of the line, it is said, even directions who have invested Canada, are struggling by appeals to all sources of international antipathy and jealousy in their own interests to avert it?

Among other devices, it is sought to frighten the people of this Dominion by the bugbear of a tariff reform by importing into it that of the American Republic, which has no more to do with it than the question of wireless telegraphy. It is to be feared that the Alaska Boundary, has been allowed to play a similar part not only in the game of the monopolists, but in the policy of a Government perfectly cognizant of the obligations of the old pledges and the demands of its new allies. Let the Alaskan question be settled on its own merits. Let Canada be treated as a class are particularly suitable for distribution from the pulpit, in the matters of fact capable, as a rule, of being positively stated, the historical and geographical inquiry. Unfortunately we have just refused arbitration to the Transvaal. The answer that the Transvaal got was that it was a matter of pride, to give the whole case away, by appointing a Commission, which drew out the Boers, and finally, by unfairness having been, as the Commission of Inquiry, Chairman, Sir Edward Blake, maintained, utterly and demonstrably baseless.

AN INVESTIGATION

As to Why Girls Prefer Shop Work to Housework.

(New York World.)

The Wisconsin State Labor Bureau has been collecting reasons why girls prefer work in factories and stores to household service. Inquiries were sent to 760 persons. Among the answers were these:

"If ladies would only give girls a little respect, kinder treatment, better wages, and let them live independently outside of the place of work."

"I went from the factory because wished to be treated like a human being."

"The reason I won't do housework is because I will not be treated like dirt and always spoken to roughly."

"I love housework, but, like the rest of other girls, I want to be put it under present conditions."

"None of the girls I know would do housework, because a girl who works in a factory is looked upon as a kitchen drudge, always on duty and treated with little respect."

"I am treated better in the factory in every way and, moreover, I am no longer obliged to entertain in the kitchen or receive my friends at the parlor door, since I can do as I please with my own people."

"There is no room in any of these replies of any insinuation on the part of servants that they feel themselves a member of the family. They desire as little to be in the kitchen under as they wish for intrusion upon their home. But they complain, and with the fact of social distinction is traced upon them at every turn. Perhaps the Wisconsin answers, which would probably be given in any other State, suggest that upon the untutored mind of the house there is a large burden of responsibility for "the servant-girl problem as it is.

"The fact that I was a good musician, was the means of saving my life during the flood in our town a few days ago.

"How was that?" asked the young lady anxiously.

"When the water struck our house my piano floated out into the flooded street and floated down stream until it was rescued.

"And what did you do?"

"Why, I accompanied him on the piano."

"To-morrow."

"Manana" is the Spanish word for "tomorrow." It is said that Spaniards use it more than any other word in the language, and you know what happened to Spain. Perhaps there is no one thing which does more to prevent success than putting off life then the habit of putting things off until tomorrow. MERRY WEDDING BELLS.

Robertson—Burgess.

The comfortable home of Mr. John Burgess, Dunsford, was the scene of a joyous gathering on Wednesday, 17th inst., when his daughter, Miss Lizzie, one of the charming young ladies of the section, became the bride of Mr. John Robertson, son of Mr. Wm. Robertson, Township of Victoria County Cheese Board, and one of the leading farmers of South Verulam.

The ceremony took place at 4 p.m. Rev W. J. Creighton, Church of England clergyman officiating. The wedding march was played by the pretty sister of the bride, Miss Burgess. The fair bride, who was given away by her father, wore a handsome dress of Cashier Venetian cloth, white silk waist trimmed with applique, veil and flowers, and a bouquet of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white chrysthemums. The bridesmaid, Miss Maude Robertson, sister of the groom, was dressed pretty in a suit of Cashier Venetian cloth trimmed in a lighter shade of brown, earthenware. The groom was assisted by Mr. E. Burgess, brother of the bride.

The artistic arch of evergreens under which the ceremony was performed and the profusion of decoration in the several rooms, excited the admiration of the guests, and of the general public. The wedding dinner was a delightful affair, and the party indulged in a long sit at the laden table. The speakers were Messrs. Robt. Kennedy and A. Fisher, Lindsay; Mr. Littgow, Bobcaygeon, and Mr. Thos. Robertson, father of the groom.

The presents were numerous and costly. The happy couple left Lindsay on the 9 o'clock morning for a two weeks' trip to Toronto & Huron County and return pick a bearing with them the best wishes of a very large circle of friends for their future happiness, in which The Post cordially joins.

Hockey Notes

—Varsity's senior hockey team will make a tour of Eastern Ontario next month. The first game will be played in Port Hope on Jan. 5th, and the next in Belleville on the 6th. Games will be arranged with Picton, Napanee, Morrisburg, Cornwall, Smith's Falls, Perth and Peterboro. The trip will last about a week.

His Bronchos were Fidgetty.

Mr. Seward Armstrong is owner of a fine span of bronchos. On Thursday, while he drove down Williamst., they got rather the start of him. He seemed inclined to take the Grand Trunk route, or perhaps the C.P.R. Hope, but at the station Seward succeeded in stopping them long enough for a minute or two it looked as if a Christmas visit was going to be cancelled by a shunting engine. One of the horses was somewhat cut up and the cutter damaged.

Are You Interested in Best Sugar?

Mr. Wm. Flavelle has received a letter from Mr. T. E. Bradburn, of Toronto, secretary of the Board, to inspect the best sugar factory in operation in the Province, situated in Victoria Co., and Lindsay citizens, are certainly not intitled to take advantage of the opportunity to secure valuable information on the sugar industry. The special train will leave Lindsay at 9.30 a.m. Returning about 9.30 p.m. Round trip fare $2.00, good on any regular train on G.T.R.

Lindsay Still in the Rut.

The village of Bobcaygeon has joined the ranks of the progressive municipalities that insist upon the return of the collector's roll on the legal date Dec. 15th. Lindsay Council has been talking about adopting the same rule for years, but the vote-catching instinct in some of our aldermen has always been too strong to permit of the carrying out of the business principle. The remarks of the Independent sum up the matter worth reading. The old aspersion that "Lindsay is a place to go to do with the general stupidity way of carrying on business, it was come day, go day, God send Sunday, if a man has a chance to meet any old time was good enough. If a man had a meeting to attend it was of no consequence whether he came three an hour or two late, and as a rule he could not give a satisfactory reason why he got there or not. Public affairs should be conducted with promptness and exactness, and the desirable effect will be felt upon the whole community.

The Weekly Post

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, DEC 26, 1902.

BREEZY LOCAL BREVITIES.

GATHERED BY POST REPORTERS.

What is Happening in Town and the Country About Us.

—The Baltimore boy who has 23 fingers and toes is another victim for old Jack Frost. The ordinary boy in winter can't keep drawing on 10 fingers and 10 toes.

—A north ward man managed to get 18 head of the best steers and other eligible at $5.50 cates the $5 equal now is placed at $16,000.

—St. Andrew's Sunday School holds its annual Christmas entertainment in the church this evening. The children have prepared a cantata, and two Santa Clauses have arranged to be present.

—The coal mine now talks a good deal like the husband who asks his wife "What do you want money for anyway? What have you done with that quarter I gave you week before last?"

—Use Lever's Dry Soap (a powder) to wash woolens and flannels,—you'll like it.

—Many "touching" missives are being mailed to Santa Claus these days by the youthful members of our community, and mail skywards by the chimney route. May all of them be answered to the satisfaction of the writers.

—Believile aldermen are actively at work in Toronto. Wise arranging for the holding of the municipal elections they stipulated that the returning officers should not allow scrutineers to be polling agents because the spell would be objectionable to lady voters.

—The town of Uxbridge has for many years been enjoying the benefits of a proprietorship Public Library thanks to the late Dr. Gould, who donated the building for the purpose. The library numbers about 6,000 carefully selected volumes, as compared with 3,800 in Lindsay Public library.

—A goose-bone weather prophet says a severe spell will close in month and will extend into the first half of January. That means, of course, close bleak and stormy and all of February will be simply awful, the but weather extremely well into March. And the cool man just shows up his prize a few days before Christmas.

Coughs, colds, hoarseness, and other throat ailments are relieved by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Ice cat effects ten cents per box. All druggists.

—Mr. Victor Mann, formerly operator on the staff of the Winnipeg Free Press, and one of the dastardly manipulators of a key-board at Oswego, arrived in town last week to spend Christmas with his father and his parents. He is a graduate of The Post, and received a warm greeting from his old comrades.

—Chief Big Canoe, of Georgian Island, spent a week conferring with the chiefs of Rama, to take action in passing Indian claims to Rice Lake, up to the south end of Lake Nipissing, thence by Ottawa River back to the Talbot River at Lake Simcoe, a number of lakes and connecting rivers, which they now have surrendered to the Crown.

—The town of Orillia is making a successful demonstration of the benefits of municipal ownership of public utilities. The revenue from the electric light and waterworks plants last year was $11,859, whereas for 14 years of this system it was over $16,000. Operating expenses last year were $8,757, while this year they have been only $4,957, including nearly $2,000 of an overstart from last year.

—The December thaw has been exhibiting symptoms.

—Mr. W. McWatters, baker, of the north ward, is in the field for alderman. See card in another column.

—Don't give a fancy pen-wiper for a Christmas present. A dainty one that can be used will be much more warmly appreciated.

—Let us be thankful for small favors. The old idea that we are unhealthfulness of overmuch hope is being cut out this winter.

—Some counterfeit money has shown up in town. Look out for it—the imitation is good, but the genuine article has a grassy feeling.

—Another St. Louis beauty bumped into a two years' sentence Thursday, and the Missouri penitentiary is rapidly degenerating into a millionaire's club.

—The various breakfast foods now for sale on the Canadian market owing to be taken up by the annual bulletin of the Inland revenue Department, at Ottawa. The report will be quite serious surprise.

—A public test of the new automatic electric apparatus connecting the firemen's sleeping apartments in the new fire hall horse stall downstairs, with the automatic system operated from the alarm boxes throughout the town, was made Saturday evening at 5.30.

—Whitby Chronicle: We are more than pleased to see Dandyville, Township of Lindsay, on his north train again. He has been so long on the line that we feel a chum and we know he will make one feel that we are among strangers. The fact that this popular official is back on his post again is conclusive proof that he was not to blame for the recent collision at Whitby. The trouble arose in the dispatcher's office.

OPS TOWNSHIP LEGISLATURE

THE FINAL MEETING HELD MONDAY OF LAST WEEK.

Considerable Business Transacted—Reeve McLean Complimented by His Colleagues.

The closing meeting of Ops Council, was held on Monday, December 15th. Present: Reeve McLean, Deputy Reeve Armstrong and all members.

Minutes of last meeting each member received a statement of the township for the year, which were duly examined, and a resolution passed for payment to enable the treasurer to distribute them in the financial.

The accounts consisting of ninety-seven in number, were passed.

Sessional Allowances, etc.

Sessional allowance and mileage, commission on school moneys and days' services, were summed up as follows: Div. 1, Reeve McLean, $50.10; Div. 2, Deputy Reeve Armstrong, $40.00; Div. 3, Robt. J. Patterson, $72.00; Div. 4, John Sluggett, $81.00; Div. 5, Peter Hawkins, $71.40.

Communications.

From Thos. H. Gibson, Toronto, in reference to brickyards, quarries, etc., operated in the township.

From O. H. Hopkins, on behalf of Mrs. Hanlon, re Drain No. 1.

From S. J. Fox, M.D., account for large fee to Messrs. Sluggett and Hawkins.

From the Clerk of Manvers, enclosed $24.00 on account of bridge work, and another small accounting and balance.

John Robinson, owner of N. E. ½ lot 23, con. 4, was informed by Clerk, dress the Council, and said he wanted to some guarantee that an outlet would be made across lot 20, con. 5, to take away water diverted on this place. The Council told him the engineer would be notified in case the owner of said lot will refused to act in the matter.

Wm. Hodgins applied for the election bill posting, and was appointed.

Drains and Drainage Matter.

Jos. Hutchison and Wm. Jackets, owners of lots 25 and 26, con. 1, desired to know what assistance the Council would give them in drainage by which the boundary between the land Emily would be much benefitted. They were partially agreed on the work and were not disposed to call on the Engineer if Ops and Emily would assist them. Reeve McLean had gone to view the land and said that if they would dig a sufficient depth to provide a lead on Emily side of the boundary, and ask the owner than $35 for the work Ops would pay them half that sum on completion. Mr Hutchison agreed to do so, as he was confident that Emily Council would pay the other half.

Mare Wire Fences.

Mr. Jas. Corley, owner lot 20, con. 4, said he intended to build a wire fence along the east end of his farm next spring if Council would pay him the 65c. bonus, and would remove the rails immediately to prevent drifting. The Council on motion instructed him to do so, and promised to give the bonus when the work was be completed, as required by the by-law.

Mr. E. H. Hopkins was present, and said he was about to construct a fence bonus by building a wire fence on the south side of his farm. He said the fence being staked and wire, 65c. would not pay him, owing to the drifting of snow in winter and that place he was on action requested to give the bonus on the ground of the expense of the township, with the hope that the Council would by a wire one next spring.

Mr. E. H. Hopkins desired to know if the Council wished him to build a wire fence in place of the fence of his farm on both sides of the road. He said he was prepared to do so and material required and he was rather too much to pay for one year.

Mr. J. W. Sluggett, accounting for Mr. Hopkins, stated that Mr. Hopkins would be willing to build a wire fence on the south side of his farm, if the work is completed and certified by the work is completed and certified by the Council.

Financial Statement.

Mr. Sluggett, the treasurer, submitted his annual financial statement of receipts and expenditures, which was on motion of Messrs. Patterson and Arkey, accepted, and the treasurer was instructed to make a notice printed for distribution.

Mr. Jackson's Claim.

Mr. John Jackson, collector, said he was pleased and disappointed him, in consequence of the Council, he was yet out, and he desired to know if Council would accept the Roll and return that amount against the lands of the delinquents. Rather than put those in arrears to case the Council extended the time until the 24th inst., and instructed Mr. Sluggett to pay the balance and return the Roll to the Treasurer on or before the 24th inst.

Will Think it Over.

On motion of Messrs. Sluggett and Arkey, the Clerk was instructed to write Mr. Hopkins re Mr. Hamilton's drainage grievance, and to say the Council would give it due consideration.

A Couple of By-laws.

A by-law to levy a tile drainage rate on the west ½ lot 4, con. 7, and a by-law to name election boards and appoint deputy returning officers, received third reading and passed were passed, signed and sealed.

The following accounts and bills were next examined, passed and ordered: Jas. McConland, cons. of Hall, $4.50; Jas. Agnew, fencing gravel pit, $20.00; Brown Jenkins, filling Hartley gravel pit and grading road, $12.00; Geo. Hughes, balance on culvert tile, $6.60; Jas. Cushing, for refund for material lumber, $3.00; Patrick Leddy, drain, $3.00; Robt. Thurston, refund overpaid tax, res. 6, $4.70; Wilson & Wilcox, printing, $12.75; Geo. Griffin, gravel, $2.70; Jas. Greer, supplies, Towers family, $3.00; John Sluggett, culvert, tile, $2.00; Jas. Ferguson, repairs Beech No. 5 Referendum, $4.00; John Outshine, Beech No. 4, $4.00; McSwain & Weldon, legal services, $7.75; M. E. Tinning, notices, $1.00; Arkey, $21; Geo. Smith, Engineer, on acct., $25.00; Thos. Calvert, services, S. J. H., $5.80; Alex. Petrie, ditto, $5.00; Thos. Allen, ditto, $4.00; Chas. Hiney, ditching 4th con., lot 8, $6.00; Alf. Hopkins, wood, Thompson family, $3.00; W. F. O'Boyle, Clerk, postage, $2.00.

Excused Assessments.

The business of 1902 was therefore cleared closed, and although it was 7 p.m., the Reeve on motion gave place to Mr. Sluggett, while Messrs. Patterson and Arkey in most speeches expressed the pleasure and satisfaction they had experienced during the several sessions of the year, and thanked Reeve McLean for the unfeigned courtesy and sound, impartial, and practical manner all had occasion. The discomfort and annoyance caused by with throughout the year attending to the business, were counterbalanced by the harmony and good-will that prevailed at the Council board.

The Reeve in turn thanked the members for their appreciation of his services, and for the intercourse had always shown in the general well-being of the township. It contented not who composed the township Council, so long as the spirit actuated for their best efforts in contributing to the good of the township, and keeping the tax rate within reasonable bounds. Although he had had considerable experience in township matters he did not merit the praise given him, for he felt there were more able to preside over members as good as any he had met with. He hoped they would again accord unanimous aid to the re-elected.

LICENSE INSPECTOR SHORT AND LINDSAY HOTELS.

(To the Editor of the Weekly Post.)

Sir,—I noticed with pleasure that one of the Council gave notice the three strong men of the Council that the number of licenses in this town be reduced to seven, and the "dough eaters" wanted to make it seven?" Surely the town as a town is so far behind that we want to keep saloons going simply for the license fee? I would think, for instance, that Lindsay, Peterboro, Toronto and Hore would realize that we would be actually money in pocket if the cattle trade would go to a low figure as possible. I am not one who believes in prohibition, for I believe in regulation, and I know how it can possibly be carried out. There are a certain number of people who will drink, and I believe it is better all that you can do to stop it, and it is folly for the rabid prohibitionist to try to make it a law. Such being the case, I long ago came to the conclusion that the more reduction in the number of places of drinking habit the better we will be able to control it. If the law, even as it stands, were properly enforced there would not be nine-tenth the misery and evil that now exists.

Where do we get the money? Surely at 7 p.m. till Sunday morning? It is not the fact that half nearly every saloon in town is there, as has been formed at 7 p.m. will be there from—and will—till morning time is on hand all day Sunday? Do people think that those who get from $10 to $14 on Saturday, are all sober? Some people have not one cent to rub against another on Monday morning, and yet they have spent some thousand? Why are they? Well, whatever the reason, it exists, and not a mere people-lover only thought it, but a prohibitionist, and that is going on inside should happen to view—I this not the law? If so, why are hotelmen permitted to do things that they know that law-breaking is made easy? Is our Inspector aware of what is going on? If he is not, which is by no means, I fear, he should be more alert, and see that such acts are not allowed to continue?

For I said before, I am not a prohibitionist, and I don't know that I would have a right to prevent any man having a drink if he wants one, but when that man drinks so much and wastes so much time that he cuts upon me, through taxes and charities, to help keep his family or the asylum, and his family whilst he is there or out of work, then I claim a right to say when he shall stay and how much he shall drink. It seems to me, therefore, that the town should have no more hotel-saloons at the outside, and that the license should be made to import. The sooner hotelkeepers are taught that they will have to look to other means than their bar for their chief support the sooner we will have hotels worth the name. I sincerely hope that our candidates be asked to declare themselves on this question. Let us recognize the fact that we are bound to have a bar in every village or other, but let us cut the number down to three at the very outside and then see that they keep the law, and if broken that the penalties be strictly enforced.

Before closing I want to ask that all those in favor of good government each a vote for Mr. McWatters. I do not personally know the gentleman, but say that the liquor men think vote with the Noyes? Most of necessity be a good man, both morally and from a business point of view. Put him in at the head of the poll, just to show where we stand. Now, Mr. Editor, can you not get the candidates to declare themselves? —Yours, etc.,

JAS. DONALD

To-day's Market

The market was well attended last Saturday by farmers and citizens. Every inch of space in the market room was occupied. Chickens were more in evidence than other poultry. Outside, dressed beef and pork, was offered and the display was large. Prices ruled about the same as last Saturday.

"KEEP A-TRYIN" SIGNBOARDS.

(By Roy Farrell Greene.)

"My boy," said Uncle Hiram, "you'll soon be starting out,
To drive o'er Life's long roadway, and of truth be doubt,
Will purse you completely, be be which you'd best pursue
Of branching ways, when roads fork out, as they're inclined to do.
Each bears the equal marks of well-worn travel, like as not,
And so, you're undecided which he'll better choose to trot,
But I've learned the route, my boy, and this much I'll confess—
The 'Keep a-tryin' signboards mark the highway to Success.

"Success is such a pretty town—to reach it all men strive,
You'll find the road, though, grown up with briars, if you drive
For many seeking shorter cuts through Dilly-dally Lane,
Get so far off the highway that they find it never again!
You'll find, as on you go, many roads that cross your way,
Take Chance's Road, just Waiting ville, it's far the better way,
But I'm sure after route would lead you, if you mind impress—
The 'Keep a-tryin' signboards mark the highway to Success.

The road that runs through Waitin ville has prospects bright and fair,
When first you start, but farther on, it leads through swamps of Care,
And, after that, you'll have to climb the weary hill of Debt;
Then, still beyond, there looms in view the Valley of Regret
And so, my boy, when starting on the road of Life ahead,
The route your Uncle Hiram chose I trust you'll make your own,
And heed the plain directions, if you'd quite avoid distrust;
The 'Keep a-tryin' signboards mark the highway to Success.

Arkey, the Clerk was instructed to write Mr. Hopkins re Mr. Hamilton's drainage grievance, and to say the Council would give it due consideration.

If so, why are hotelmen permitted to do things that they know that law-breaking is made easy? Is our Inspector aware of what is going on? If he is not, which is by no means, I fear, he should be more alert, and see that such acts are not allowed to continue?

For I said before, I am not a prohibitionist, and I don't know that

THE KING CLOTHIER

Merry Christmas

Greeting!

To our many customers and friends we extend with cordial greeting, the compliments of the season—a Christmas full of cheer.

WE have had unusual cause for gratitude. Customers have fairly taken us by storm, so much so, that if we had tried, we could not possibly have done more trade.

We appreciate the confidence reposed in us, and acknowledge with pride the preference shown this growing store.

CHRISTMAS ENCORED

In appreciation of the generous Christmas trade of the past week, we will offer even greater and more extraordinary inducements during this holiday week. Between now and the New Year, the biggest bargains of the year will be found in Overcoats, Suits, Hats, Underwear and Furnishings of all kinds.

This week will be the harvest time for late buyers. We are so far ahead of any previous year's business that we can afford to give shoppers a generous series of price-saving opportunities during the last days of 1902.

Sincerely yours,

A. J. GRAHAM,

East of Benson House THE KING CLOTHIER.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Toronto Star: Rockefeller has given another million to Chicago University. His generosity touches us all very deeply when we think of the gulch until the hole in his capital is made up.

The American Bicycle Trust stock, which two or three years ago sold at $100 a share, is not now in demand, and the other day a block of it changed hands at 50 cents a share. This is the concern that was going to develop the world. But it could produce its selling stuff and save its advertising appropriation. No matter how good a thing is turned out nowadays the sale must be pushed, and advertising, is one of the means to be used. It pays to use it freely.

It is worth noting that the Toronto Board of Trade has decided to take steps to represent to the British Government that the war between Boers on wheat and flour is working badly against Canadian millers in favor of British millers. It seems that it will pay to mill wheat in England rather than in Canada, and the Canadian millers will suffer. The Toronto Board of Trade is a powerful advocate of protection, the most effective advocate of what that class will bring industries to this country. The Toronto Board of Trade is, we know, professedly loyal. Why, then, does it not concede to the Mother Land, the Empire, the liberty of making the same milling duties of duties which it advocates here?

The Scientific American calls attention to the fact that they are digging peat in Massachusetts, working coal dust in briquettes in Ohio, and converting fuel of sawdust, molasses, tar, pitch, resins, leaves and a lot of other neglected materials. All things come to those who wait, according to the old French proverb, but we are of the opinion that it should remarked on taking office in 1896 after eighteen years in the cold shades, "Yes, but sometimes one has a decent long time to wait." People are saving to wait and freeze while these wonderful inventions are coming along.

Hon. Thomas Greenway, addressing the Winnipeg Young Liberal Club, advised the connection of a railway to Hudson's Bay as of more utility than two transcontinental roads. He said all the grain purchased during the last two months is still in the elevators, and there are thirty million bushels remaining in farmers' hands. While it is desirable to ship the wheat out by different routes, it is the most necessary to get it out. There should be a direct railway from Winnipeg to Duluth. He would oppose all public men who preached protection.

Again the Canadian Church has been called to pass with one of their faithful workers, and this time it is from sense of the world, in the person of Mr. Fox, who has been teaching school here for some time. The church has lost an earnest hard-working member, the League a willing and faithful servant, the organ the town of an accomplished hand. KIRKFIELD

(From our own Correspondent.)

From the Globe of Saturday, Dec. 6th. A very pretty and quiet wedding event took place on Wednesday morning, Dec. 3rd, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. B. Moore, Richmond-street, when their eldest daughter, Lizzie Hilborne, was married to Mr. Thomas Ward, of Lindsay, R.R. 3, Kirkfield, Rev. J. A. McDonald, of Melville Presbyterian church, officiated. The wedding was a very quiet one, only the members of the immediate families being present. The bride looks sweet and pretty in her dainty gown of white organdie and bridal veil, which had been worn by her mother on her wedding day. The bride's going away gown was of gray cashmere and silk, and she was given away by her father, her bridesmaid wore a blue Venetian lace dress with pink silk trimmings, a gift of the groom. Mr. Turner is well known in Lindsay, where he was born and brought up, and first winner of the William J. Morrice travelling fellowship at Presbyterian College, Montreal.

The members and adherents of the Presbyterian church held a supper and entertainment on Friday evening, 12th, in the new Lindsay Opera House, when the Rev. Mr. Turner, and his wife, the organist of the church, which was used for the occasion, were tendered a formal into a cozy tearoom, with its numerous small and nicely decorated tables scattered about, from which coffee and cake was served by a bevy of young ladies. A large number were present to welcome and congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Turner, and the reception was a most delightful and successful affair.

The ladies of the Ladies' Aid are holding a bazaar this week in the Sunday-school hall. They also in connection with the Epworth League, will give a concert given on Friday night under the same auspices, when a special programme will be contributed.

Mr. Joseph Kennedy is visiting with friends at Islay.

The Misses Mary and Tena McPherson and Mr. Samuel Jeffs attended our concert last week.

Mr. John McMillan spent the past week with his sister, Mrs. F. H. Smith.

The examinations held in the school on Friday afternoon was a fine success. There was a large attendance of ladies, of which we hope to see more through, followed by a very good little programme, which began promptly at 8 p.m. in the evening over three hundred people listened to the finest program ever rendered in our school room. At 10:30 p.m. the audience retired to fill the chair, which duly was occupied by Santa Claus. It is impossible to do justice in words to his programme, suffice it to say, however, to the perfect rendering of the Mikado, Mikado's Lullaby, the Jap girls and the Soldiers' Drill by the girls, the masterly impersonation of the Darkey, Sandy Mac, and the Indian school songs, the music by Messrs. Armstrong and Bell and Miss T. McFadyen, and last but by no means least, the comic songs by Mr. Sharpe of Lindsay. Fine addresses were delivered by Rev. M. Leslie and Mr. E. Jackson, the latter a teacher of New Brunswick. Connected with the program was a Christmas tree well laden with choice presents, at 10:30 Santa Claus arrived in full costume and distributed presents to them all. Before closing the teacher, J. D. McFadyen, was presented with a beautiful leather purse containing two sovereigns, and a very feeling address by the scholars. The address was read by Miss Mabel Gallagher and the presentation made by Miss Ruby Kennedy. The closing scene between teacher, pupils and parents showed what a strong attachment had grown up between them. The program ended by singing "God be with You till We Meet Again."

BROWN'S SCHOOL

(Special to The Post.)

The basket social and concert took place last Friday evening and a first-class program was rendered. The meeting was opened by a unison selection from the choir. The program merited the enthusiastic reception it received. Much credit is due our teacher, Miss Mary Graham, for the training of the school children. After the concert came the selling of the basket sale by our energetic auctioneer Mr. Peter Brown. The warm hearted hospitality of the ladies of the neighborhood was very evident as they had provided lunch for those who might not be able to secure baskets. The schoolhouse was filled to the doors, a large number being obliged to stand. Mr. R. P. Hill's announcement that the proceeds exceeded fifty dollars was more than a surprise.

The address read the follows: Miss Aggie Jamieson: Dear Sister Hall: There will, also be a concert given on Friday night under the same auspices, when a special programme will be contributed.

A Christmas tree and entertainment will be given by the Sunday-School children of the Presbyterian church on Christmas eve.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The dedication of the new Baptist church was held on on Sunday and Monday, Dec. 14th, and 15th, and was a great success. The new pews of the congregation must have been highly pleased with the large turnout. The different denominations are usually represented on such occasions and there were no services held in the morning at any of the other churches. Services in the Baptist church were held morning, afternoon and evening and were conducted on each occasion by Rev. Dr. Thomas, of the Jarvis-st Baptist church, Toronto. The large congregation at each service were highly delighted with the eloquent minister of the city. On Monday evening a very large number of citizens took in the fowl supper, which was held in the basement. After supper addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Martin and Jolliffe of this town, Mr. Boyle M.P.P., Rev. Mr. Hughson, of Lindsay, and Rev. D. P. Thomas, of Toronto. Music was supplied both Sunday and Monday evening by the Manilla choir. Rev. Mr. Martin, pastor, officiated as chairman Monday evening. The proceeds amounted to $127.40.

The Peaceful Dove Lodge, No. 135, I. O. O. F. and friends, spent a very enjoyable evening on Friday last at the Queen's hotel. A fine turkey supper was served by mine host Edwards. About sixty were present and the supper was thoroughly enjoyed by all. After all had satisfied the inner man the remainder of the evening was spent in songs and speeches.

A very pleasant evening was spent in the commodious basement of the Methodist church on Monday evening, when the annual Christmas tree and entertainment was held. A large and total number of presents for the scholars. Rev. Mr. Martin was chairman on the occasion. A very interesting program was prepared by the Misses Wilson.

Miss Crocker, Mr. Wilson's millinner, has returned to her home in St. Mary's to spend a month.

COUNCIL OF LINDSAY

FOR ALDERMAN.

To The Ratepayers of Lindsay:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—At the earnest and repeated solicitations of a large number of friends, I have consented to become a candidate for the position of Alderman for Ward No. 1.

Several matters of importance await the attention of the new council, and other questions will present themselves from time to time. In the consideration of these I will, if elected, devote my best intelligence, and my guiding principle will always be "The best interests of the municipality." In canvassing with my supporters I learn with regret that our hotel men have already taken a stand against me, owing to my sympathy with the Referendum vote, and that I am being injured in my business as a result. This is a free country, thank God, and while I would be compelled or driven to look at the traffic through their spectacles their course will not tempt me to commit my ballot.

Obediently Yours,

WM. McWATTERS.

FOR COMMISSIONER.

To the Electors of Division No. 1 of the County of Victoria:

Gentlemen,—I have been a mistake as a candidate for the position of Commissioner for Ward 1 of the County of Victoria, comprising Township of Mariposa, and respectfully solicit your votes and influence.

Wishing you the compliments of the season, I am, your servant,

W. W. JORDAN.

Dec. 22nd, 1902.—w2.

FOR COMMISSIONER.

To the Electors of No 2 Division of the County of Victoria:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—I am a candidate for County Commissionership for No 2 Division, and will be able to see you all personally and therefore take this opportunity of soliciting your votes and influence. I have had considerable experience in County affairs, and if elected will discharge the duty to the best of my ability and to the best interests of the County, and particularly for the division which I represent.

Wishing you the compliments of the season.

E. H. HOPKINS.

FOR COMMISSIONER.

To the Electors of No. 2 Division of the County of Victoria:

Gentlemen,—As it is the desire of a large number of my friends that I retain my seat for County Commissioner for another term I respectfully request your support. I have served you for seventeen years as County Councillor, and have tried to do my duty to myself and to the interests of the Municipality which I represent.

Thanking you in advance for your further support and influence, and wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a bright and prosperous New Year, I am, ladies and gentlemen,

Obediently Yours,

ROBT. BRYANS.

Lindsay, Dec. 23rd, 1902.—d w.

A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS FROM GOUGH.

TAKE OUR "MERRY CHRISTMAS" to-day as a personal one. It is given in much the same spirit as a cheery "Good Morning" from friend to friend.

To all who have helped to make this the most successful year in the history of this store, we extend the glad hand at this Christmas season. Having sowed a big crop of gilt-edged bargains, we have reaped a bountiful harvest. Therefore we have cause to be GRATEFUL.

Perhaps some may have received a gift from an unexpected quarter. If so, it won't cost much to make a return by a New Year's Gift' if you purchase it at Gough's, If you haven't filled all your wants, come round to the Big Corner Store day after Christmas.

You'll Buy. We Must Sell.

Another Christmas and Another Greeting,
Just the old wish that many are repeating,
And yet we wish one half as much and more
As these few words—Bright be your Christmas Day.

B. J. GOUGH.
